Eight Districts Hit In 'Barbarous' R. A. F. Attack on Civilians, They Say

The War Today

DEATH FROM THE SKIES has brought home first-hand comprehension of modern warfare to residents of Berlin.

Myth Shattered

Berlin, Aug. 29. — British fliers may not have struck any objectives of military value in the Third Reich's capital in their raid early today, but they have certainly brought home to residents of Berlin some comprehension of modern warfare with its sudden explosive death from the skies.

They have, furthermore, shattered the myth which has circulated through all strata of the population here since the beginning of the war that Berlin is so well protected by antiaircraft batteries that it would not be possible for an enemy bomber to get within bomb-dropping distance of the city.

It was not, however, only Berlin which was visited by enemy fliers in the course of last night. For the Germans officially admit the British also dropped bombs on the Leuna plant of the Igfarben Chemical Trust, on Bad Homburg, on Halle in Thuringia and in open areas about three unnamed villages.

Admit Plant Was Hit

Although in the past there have frequently been unconfirmable rumors about the important Leuna plant having been struck, today for the first time German high command makes a statement to that effect. The enemy dropped 15 explosive and incendiary bombs on Leuna, it is officially reported, although it is added "the damage inflicted here was slight." One workman was seriously injured by the bombing, it is reported, and another

Secret Weapon?

British Planes Made Invisible, Nazis Claim

By the United Press

Berlin (Friday), Aug. 30.—A secret type of varnish which makes British bombers invisible under the glare of searchlights has made it impossible for German antiaircraft gunners to turn their fire on enemy raiders attacking Berlin, air force officials said today.

The British bombers, such as those which attacked the capital for nearly three hours early yesterday, were said to have been "completely invisible" when the full glare of searchlights was turned on them.

As a result, it was asserted, the German antiaircraft guns protecting the capital were able to shoot only at the shadows which the raiders threw against the clouds.

London, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—British air circles early today described as "a lot of nonsense" Nazi reports that British bombers attacking Berlin were painted with a secret substance making them invisible against searchlight rays.

London Suffers 'Nuisance' Raid For Sixth Night

Suburbanites Killed; Day Attack of 200 Planes Beaten Back

By the Associated Press

London (Friday), Aug. 30.—Scream bombs dropped in a residential district of the London area caused a number of casualties early today.

In a northwestern town some casualties, including three dead, and property damage resulted from a bombing raid.

(Censorship prohibited an estimate of the number killed or wounded.)

While Nazi bombers generally avoided the metropolitan area or circled it warily, other raiders spread out over English towns and countryside.

A lone raider over a southeast coast town dropped a number of scream bombs without causing much property damage and with no casualties reported.

Some houses were damaged when about 20 high explosive bombs and several fire starters fell in a northeast coast town during the night.

The raiders departed amid a hail of antiaircraft fire. The night bombing followed a mass attack by 200 planes which were beaten away from the southeast coast late yesterday by British fighter craft.

Tonight's raid, the sixth consecutive night attack, was in sharp contrast to the seven-hour pummeling London took overnight, Wednesday-Thursday.

However, an inland northwestern

House Sends Profits Tax To Senate

Defense Measure Passed by Voice Vote After Curb Is Put on Debate

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

With a shout of "ayes" after brief debate under extreme gag rule, the House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a triple-barreled tax bill designed to speed the defense program as well as to prevent industry from earning undue profits out of the expected armaments boom.

The measure, combining excess profits levies with provision for five-year amortization of new national defense plants and suspension of profit limitations on the production of warships and aircraft, was approved by voice vote of an almost listless House in approximately three and a quarter hours.

The House Ways and Means Committee had spent several weeks in preparing the bill; but actual time of House debate, restricted by the gag rule, was the shortest for any tax measure in many years.

Faces Senate Storm

The highly complicated bill is expected to run into stormy weather when the Senate Finance Committee begins consideration of it next week. Brief hearings will open Tuesday.

The proposed rates, which experts believe will yield $305,000,000 for the current year and over $700,000,000 when the defense program gets under full steam, are too high to suit some Senators and too low for others.

In any case, a $5,000 exemption in the bill means that only some 70,000 of the nearly 500,000 active corporations in the United States would be subject to the excess profits tax. Rates range from 20 to 50 per cent of abnormal profits—considerably lower than the World War maximum.

The pending measure, applicable only to corporations, is in addition to the increased personal and corporation levies imposed in June to help pay for the armament program.

Knutson Opposes

Principal opposition to the tax bill on the floor yesterday came from Representative Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota, a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

Declaring his disbelief that "any member of this body understands" the bill, Knutson denounced "extravagant haste" in passing the measure. He asserted that normal profits rather than excess profits were really being taxed, and that small, undercapitalized companies were being penalized.

The bill as it stands would "stop the healthy development of small, growing businesses and compel them to come to the Government for financial aid," he said.

Bitter denunciation of the stringency of the gag rule came from several members, including Representative Voorhis (Democrat), of California, who declared that the limitation of debate was imposed "on the excuse that nobody can understand the bill."

Protest Overruled

Terming the restriction "a broadgauged attack on the legislative process," he vainly urged liberalization of the rule "in the interests of parliamentary government."

The five-year amortization feature of the bill is an answer to the complaints of Administration officials that some defense contracts were being held up because of businessmen's uncertainty over the extent to which they will be permitted to deduct from taxable income the

Anglo-U.S. Deal On Bases Near Completion

Use of Islands For Hemisphere Defense Sought

Negotiations for use by the United States of British air and naval bases in the Western Hemisphere were reported here last night to be near completion.

It is understood that use of bases in Jamaica, Newfoundland, Trinidad and Port Castries on the island of St. Lucia are to be acquired, in addition to that in Bermuda which was announced August 24.

There is a possibility also that the United States will obtain the use of an air base in British Guiana, on the mainland of South America. In the case of Bermuda, the governor general of that colony announced to the Bermuda Assembly that the United States was being given a 99-year lease on defense facilities there.

Meet Hitler With 3d Term, Wallace Urges

G.O.P. Called 'Party Of Appeasement' In Acceptance Speech

(Wallace Text, Page 8.)
By the Associated Press

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—Henry Wallace tonight declared another term for President Roosevelt would constitute an antidote for Hitlerism in the Western Hemisphere.

Formally accepting the Democratic vice presidential nomination here before a cheering, cornstalk-waving crowd, the candidate said:

"Most Republicans may not realize it, but their party is the party of appeasement in the United States today."

Democratic party officials estimated the crowd at 7,000.

Titling the speech, "The New Fight for Freedom," Wallace declared this Nation "must face the fact that the dictators have definite designs against this hemisphere."

"Their tactics here, as in Europe, are to divide and conquer," he said. "They hope by propaganda and bartering agreements to set one nation against another . . . Out of the confusion which they have created they hope to build political power and eventually military power . . .

"They hope to get rid of the unyielding Roosevelt."

The nominee said he did not "wish to imply that the Republican leaders are willfully and consciously giving aid and comfort to Hitler."

"But I want to emphasize that replacement of Roosevelt, even if it were by the most patriotic leadership that could be found, would cause Hitler to rejoice. I do not believe the American people will turn their backs on the man Hitler wants to see defeated."

Maintaining that President Roosevelt has "understood the Hitler menace from the start," Wallace declared:

Willkie Calls Plant Seizure 'Dictatorship'

(Willkie Text, Page 5.)

By William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 29.—Wendell L. Willkie said late today that a provision of the conscription bill authorizing the Government to take over private plants would set up "a potential dictatorship." He demanded that President Roosevelt state his views on the provision.

In a formal statement, the Republican Presidential nominee declared that the conscription of manpower was the democratic way to obtain defense personnel, but he added:

"At the eleventh hour (of Senate debate), however, an amendment was introduced by New Deal Senators Overton (Democrat), Louisiana, and Russell (Democrat), Georgia, and passed by the Senate, which gives the President, whenever the Secretary of War or Secretary of Navy is unable to arrive at an agreement with the owner of any plant or facility which is deemed necessary for national defense, power to acquire such plant or facility."

Are at People's Disposal

Willkie's statement, which he read to reporters during a press conference on his front porch, said that "in the event of emergency, the industries and assets of this country are at the disposal of the people."

"Let us not create that emergency before it actually exists by setting up a potential dictatorship," he added.

Declaring that the Russell-Overton amendment had been supported by Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley and other "Senators known to be close to the Administration," the Republican nominee noted that the President had declined his suggestion that the two debate campaign issues.

"That is his privilege," Willkie added, "but in this instance so much is at stake that I put this question to him directly:

"Is he for or against the Overton-Russell amendment?"

"I put this up to the President now," the nominee added, "and I hope that he does not answer with any quip about how Wendell Willkie loves property and he loves humanity. I say, without any personal criticism of the President, that it has been his good fortune at every stage in his life to possess and enjoy more wealth and more income than I have. This is true today as it was in the past."

In response to press conference questions, Willkie described the Senate-approved amendment as "stupendous," "staggering" and "revolutionary."

Ex-Service Men Likely To Go on Deferred List

The former service man unwilling to "start over again" as a trainee, the transient in doubt as to where he should register, the defense agency worker who feels himself entitled to deferment—these are among the perplexities reflected by questions of Post readers.

Wrote a Reconstruction Finance Corporation official:

"I enlisted in the Navy in December, 1936, went through my period of training at San Diego, Calif., was rated a seaman, second class, and subsequently was assigned to a battleship for duty at sea. In June, 1938, having successfully passed the entrance examinations, I was appointed a midshipman and entered the United States Naval Academy. In February, 1939, I tendered my resignation to the Navy Department and again became a civilian."

A postal worker declared he had "served four years of active duty in the Navy, and four years in the Naval Reserve, after which I was honorably discharged as electrician's mate, second class."

Both desired to learn if they are subject to the draft, along with citizens without past training, or whether they would be taken back into seasoned Navy complements.

Both are subject to registration. Only former service men who are at present members of the Organized Reserves or National Guard are exempt. (The President Tuesday signed legis-

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 29.—President Roosevelt introduced Norwegian royalty today to one of America's famed rural institutions—a typical county fair with its exhibits, sideshows, races and hot-dog stands.

With Crown Princess Martha by his side and her two daughters clambering over his car, Mr. Roosevelt spent an hour watching a horse show at the Dutchess County Fair at nearby Rhinebeck.

Then they drove through a building of grange exhibits, in which the President's own Chapel Corners Grange took the blue ribbon. They passed up all the other attractions except a display of Dutchess County flowers.

Speeds Plan for 19,000 Warplanes; House Is Expected To Concur Shortly

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

A peacetime conscription bill, broader in scope than that passed by the Senate, was approved by the House Military Affairs Committee yesterday as the Congressional log-jam delaying $5,000,000,000 in defense orders was broken.

The draft bill which went to the House floor for consideration next week would require the registration of all men from 21 to 44, inclusive, and make them liable for a year's military service. The bill passed by the Senate Wednesday would apply only to men 21 to 30, inclusive.

The Senate, with the draft bill out of the way, quickly passed the $5,133,628,277 supplemental defense appropriation bill that has been awaiting action on the calendar, and sent it back to the House for concurrence in amendments.

Early Passage Expected

With passage of the measure, expected within a few days, funds will be released for ordering 19,000 Army and Navy planes, complete arms for a 1,200,000-man Army, and 200 warships—a big start toward a "two-ocean" Navy.

Downtown, meanwhile, the Navy announced an agreement with the United Aircraft Corporation for the purchase of 17,000 Pratt & Whitney aircraft engines to cost about $160,000,000. Officials said the order, which will be formally signed when supplemental defense funds become available, is the largest of its kind in history.

Some 24,000,000 men are in the 21 through 44 age conscription group, about double the number aged 21 through 30. Army plans contemplate the drafting of 400,000 men this fall and 400,000 next April, with a total of 3,400,000 being called by 1944.

Vote Is 20 to 4

Chairman May of the House Military Committee said the vote on the draft bill had been 20 to 4, and that the group had instructed him to ask for a special rule to bring up the measure on the floor Tuesday for two days' general debate. He predicted the House would pass the bill by next Friday night.

The committee failed to act on an amendment offered to empower the Army and Navy to take over arms factories where they cannot come

Ickes May Give 3d-Term Plea Before Senate

Secretary to Be Invited To Present New Deal Case at Hearings

By Robert C. Albright

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, the Administration's "original third termer," will be invited to present the New Deal case for a third Presidential term when a Senate Judiciary subcommittee opens hearings late next week on limitation of White House tenure.

This was learned last night, as Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, tentatively set Wednesday for opening of the first formal Senate airing of arguments for and against more than two terms of office for any President.

Freed from Senate floor duties by passage of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill, the Nebraska Senator scanned a list of 70 volunteer witnesses against a third term and extended a blanket bid to third-term advocates to appear as well.

Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, who resigned as Undersecretary of the Treasury under Roosevelt in 1936, and who was one of the first Democrats to declare for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee, may be the No. 1 witness against a third term.

Those indicted included former Gov. Richard Leche, of Louisiana, and Seymour Weiss.

Berlin Accuses Dies of Defaming Ross, Nazi Lecturer

By International News Service

The German government has protested to the State Department against the Dies Committee over a report in which the committee criticized Dr. Colin Ross, German writer and lecturer, last December, it was learned last night.

In an unprecedented action, the German government charged the name of Dr. Ross, whom the note described as just a "citizen" and not an official of the Reich, had been "defamed."

Dr. Ross, after a Nation-wide tour in which he obtained photographs and motion pictures of American industries, cities and Government activities, left this country following the Dies Committee's report on his activities last December. The report branded Ross as a "spy."

Dr. Ross was the subject of discussion at at least one Cabinet meeting, it was learned. At that session President Roosevelt directed his department heads to give no more information to the German.

250,000 Spanish Refugees Reported Going to Mexico

By the Associated Press

Les Verrieres Franco-Swiss Frontier, Aug. 29.—France and Mexico have signed an agreement at Vichy whereby all Spain's refugees in France since the Spanish civil war, numbering about 250,000, are to migrate to Mexico, it was reported tonight.

It also was reported from Vichy that the Mexican government was negotiating with Washington to charter United States ships to transport the homeless Spaniards to Mexico.

Three conditions were reported attached to the agreement:

1. That transportation expenses and upkeep in France for the refugees from today until their departure will be paid by the Mexican government.

2. Mexico to accept all Spaniards without regard to creed or political beliefs.

3. France reserves the right to hand over any common-law criminal in the ranks of the refugees if the Spanish government asks her to do so.

Mexico City, Aug. 29 (A.P.).—A responsible government official declared tonight that President Cardenas' administration, already host to 11,000 refugees, regarded the Spaniards as highly desirable immigrants.

Defense Program a Boon To Needy, Sightless Women

Several thousand sightless women in homes for the blind throughout the country will have some extra spending money as a result of the Army expansion program.

For under Army regulation soldiers must have pillow cases, and under the law the Nation's blind have first chance on all the Government buys. Yesterday, the War Department bought 625,000 pillow slips and orders for 400,000 of them, costing $81,937, went to six homes or associations for the sightless.

Eighty-one thousand dollars is pin money to the Government, but to old ladies sewing in the dark it means money for the little extras that make life a little brighter. It means money for Christmas, for young relatives who may come and see them.

They have been sewing pillow-slips for soldiers for more than a year now, and in ever-increasing lots since the Army started to expand, but yesterday's order was the largest ever. It is to provide for the National Guardsmen to be mobilized this fall and for the first of the drafted men.

The order was so large that what work there was did not have to be thinly spread among the blind-women as in the past. There was all that they could handle and over, so some of the work went to commercial companies. Later there will be even larger orders for the pillow cases as conscription gets under

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

CLOSED SEASON ON WILLKIE? Although the hour was late and I was sleepy, I was aghast the other night to hear one of America's most gifted and eminent columnists say ruefully:

"I don't dare write anything really critical of Willkie. Not if I want to remain in this business."

* * * *

Harlan Miller

"I'm certain he misunderstands the American newspaper publishers. I'm convinced American publishers are too smart to permit such a misconception to become prevalent. At least I hope I am . . . They might as well cover their presses with sand.

* * * *

Much better is the infinite fairness of the doughty Register and Tribune papers of Iowa, which in past tumultuous campaigns have measured with a steel ruler the equal inches of news, lambasting and plaudits devoted to each candidate.

* * * *

LESSONS FOR HENRY? Among the thirty-third degree New Dealers, sentiment is growing in favor of lessons in oratory for Henry Wallace. Right now, they say, he's no better over the radio than Wendell Willkie. Some even want him to take from Senator Lister Hill, the man who drafted Roosevelt,

"—Willkie not a fair target?"

BEAR STORIES: To judge by Democratic bear stories, their headquarters are so short of funds that the whole staff may have to go on relief . . . In his flivver campaign Henry Wallace may have to pass the hat at each meeting to buy enough gasoline to reach the next town . . .

* * * *

In fact, the whole party may have to go on a soy bean diet, as Henry once did . . . The solemn news is that the gilded boys with the dough just won't shell out for Democrats this year . . . You'll hear the same sort of bear stories from football coaches soon, as their halfbacks come down with athletes' foot.

* * * *

By the whiff of football weather and the kick-in-the-pants school of statesmen now blocking conscription, I'm reminded of the kick-in-the-pants guards and tackles we used to have on our high school football team out in Iowa.

* * * *

These players suffered from inertia, and would never charge until too late to stop the enemy plays . . . So the coach assigned backfield men to give them a sharp kick-in-the-pants at irregular intervals. It improved their alertness. Some of our Senators belong to the kick-in-the-pants school of thought. So did some of the countries now learning to goose-step.

"—they measured the fairness."

NEW NEW DEALER: At the moment Tommy Corcoran and his beauteous Peggy are agog about an event more important in the Corcoran family (though they may not admit that) than the election . . . The celebration is due around inaugural day. Might be a Wendell Corcoran . . . More likely a Franklin D. Corcoran.

TWO STATES SHY: Bettors who have been wagering that Roosevelt will carry 30 States, win or lose, are perking up a bit, since the last Gallup poll showed him ahead in 28 States . . . Most of the betting right now seems to be at even money, with an occasional gloating Willkie amateur willing to give slight odds; but that's passing.

* * * *

TWINS ON WPA: Some of the progressives are chortling because they find a remarkable similarity between Willkie's allusions to the WPA and something Bernard Baruch, long a New Deal backer, said in a speech in 1938 . . . They wonder if Willkie knew the source, or even if Baruch helped Willkie on WPA.

Retailers Warned On Price Spiraling

Merchants Told U. S. Would Get 'Tough' For Unjustified Rise

Retail merchants of the Nation were on notice last night that the Government intends to get "tough" with them in cases of unjustified price rises.

Ben Lewis, chief economist for the consumer adviser of the National Defense Commission, warned 140 retail trade representatives at a conference yesterday in these words:

"We shall look upon any spiraling of the prices, any hidden deterioration of the quality, or any substantial shortages in the supplies of civilian commodities, at least provisionally as evidence of a breakdown of the free market as an effective instrumentality of national defense."

Lewis held over their heads the threat of Government regulation, saying:

"If price rises occur which cannot be justified by increases in costs or by results in terms of nationally desirable effects upon production, or if resort is had to undisclosed deterioration of quality to mask the exaction of unfair prices, we hope to be smart enough and tough enough to bring about a rapid, effective and lasting correction."

The warning came at the first conference of national retail trade organizations, called at the Carlton Hotel by Harriet Elliott, consumer protection member of the Defense Commission. Miss Elliott presided.

Continuing his stern message, which had a marked effect on the delegates, Lewis outlined for them steps in enforcement to include seeking an explanation, publicity, and, finally, Government action.

Would Be Publicized

Said Lewis:

"We shall undertake a realistic analysis of threatened or actual increase in prices, and shall seek an explanation from parties participating in the increase in those cases where our study discloses no sound economic cause or purpose. If the explanation does not explain, and if the increase is not abated, we shall be prepared to resort, through the commission, to publicity."

The weapon of last resort for the Government against transgressing merchants was described by Lewis in these words:

"In extreme cases, where the facts warrant and will sustain such action, we shall not hesitate to call upon the assistance of the appropriate Government agencies in breaking log jams which clog the channels of consumer goods and threaten the program of civilian defense."

Warns on "Buy Now" Drive

For the buying public Lewis had the consolation that the Government knows of "no total sacrifice—as distinct from minor inconveniences—which any consumer can properly be asked to make at this time in the name of national defense."

Specifically, he warned merchants who urge the public to "buy now and buy more because goods are scarce and prices are going up."

Miss Elliott, who opened the meeting, also issued a warning against the "buy now" type of advertising, which she termed "a type of scare advertising which contributes very definitely to the development of just the kind of price spiraling that we ought to be resisting with every means at our command."

Fred Lazarus, jr., vice president of the F. & R. Lazarus Co., Columbus, Ohio, speaking for the industry, told the delegates that if they fail to discipline themselves "we can look forward to Government regulation such as we have never known before."

"Unless by our actions," Lazarus said gravely, "we can prevent price increases and shortages at the pre-retail levels we shall be drawn into a situation in which Government regulation becomes inevitable."

Gordon H. Selfridge, jr., formerly of the London department store that bears his father's name, told some of the experiences of British merchants during the present war.

At a closed luncheon meeting, Isador Lubin, chief of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, spoke on the present economic situation.

Committee Named

Concluding the one-day conference, the retailers elected the following committee of nine to represent them in dealing with Miss Elliott's office:

Oswald Knauth, chairman of the economic advisory commission of the National Retail Dry Goods Association; Bruce McLeish, of Carson, Pirie & Scott, Chicago; Lewis Cole, chairman of the executive committee of the National Association of Food Chains, Louisville, Ky.; Garrett van der Hooning, past president of the National Independent Grocers Association, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Clark Mauchley, of New York, director of the United States Chamber of Commerce; John Goode, an Asheville, N. Two-Thirds of Young Men Willing to Serve In Army; Public Backs Senate Draft Bill

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 29.—With the Burke-Wadsworth draft bill headed toward a final vote in Congress, a question of vital importance is how the young men of draft age will take to the idea of spending a year in the Army or Navy if the bill is finally adopted.

Will they look forward to the new experience with misgiving, or will they enter into it willingly?

To find the answer to this interesting—and human—question, the Institute has interviewed a Nation-wide cross-section of young men from whose ranks the draft would presumably draw most heavily. It finds that an overwhelming number say they would have no objection to spending a year in the armed forces, in fact, many of them say they would actually welcome the physical training and discipline.

Two Groups Polled

The study covered two groups—men between the ages 21 through 24 who, because fewer are married or have permanent jobs, would probably be among the first drafted, and men between 16 and 20 who will mature to draft age if the war emergency lasts long enough. To all of them it put the question:

"If the draft law is passed, will you, personally, have any objection to spending a year in some branch of military service?"

The vote is:

	Would Have No Objection	Would Have An Objection
Men 21-24	68%	32%
Men 16-31	81	19

The results clearly show that the younger the men, the more the willingness to serve. As a matter of fact, a similar variation is found in attitude toward the principle of the peacetime draft. Young men 21 through 23 are for the draft by a vote of 63 per cent, while those 16 through 20 are for it by the higher vote of 67 per cent.

Their Simple 'Duty'

The reasons given by the young men for having no objection to spending a year in the armed forces are many and varied. One of the chief ones is that given by a 19-year-old clerk in Maryland: "It would build me up physically and put me on my own for a while." A 17-year-old drug store clerk adds: "Sounds like good training. A year in the Army would do me some good." A few actually look upon a year's Army service as a sort of holiday. As a 22-year-old carpenter puts it: "I have no obligations now and it would be on the order of a vacation for me."

Some regard it as their simple "duty" to their country, while others say, "It might give me a chance to learn a trade." Still others take the attitude expressed by a 21-year-old Iowa farm boy: "If I have to fight, I want to know how."

Those who have some objection to serving mention, in order of frequency, obligations to support their families, and the belief that a year spent in the armed forces would hinder them in their training for careers.

The public as a whole, all age groups and both sexes included, has been polled successively in recent weeks by the Institute on the principle of the peacetime draft, and each time has supported the draft by more than two to one.

In the most recent study, completed this week, a vote was taken on the specific principle of the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The question was:

"Do you favor increasing the size of our Army and Navy now by drafting men between the ages of 21 and 31 to serve in the armed forces for one year?"

Those with opinions voted:

Yes	71%
No	29

Only 1 voter in 20 (5 per cent) was undecided or had no opinion.

Places Polled

The stars show the areas in Montana where voters were interviewed by the Gallup Poll in its latest survey on conscription sentiment.

The results are virtually identical with those of the earlier poll to which Senator Wheeler took exception.

The earlier survey covered the general principle on conscription in the following question:

"Do you think every able-bodied young man 20 years old should be made to serve in the Army, the Navy or the airforce for one year?" Montana voted as follows:

Montana—August 11 Survey

YES	64%
NO	36

The new survey put to voters the specific issue involved in the Burke-Wadsworth bill. The question was:

"Do you favor increasing the size of our Army and Navy now by drafting men between the ages of 21 and 31 to serve in the armed forces for one year?" The results were:

Montana—Latest Survey

YES	62%
NO	38

Approximately one voter in every nine (11 per cent) was undecided or without an opinion.

Montana Re-Check Confirms Results

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, leader of the fight against the draft bill in the Senate, challenges the American Institute of Public Opinion's figures reported August 11, showing 64 per cent of the voters in his home State favoring compulsory military training.

The Institute has just completed a recheck of Montana, conducting a new survey on conscription in 13 areas which Institute statisticians have found to give a representative picture of sentiment throughout the State: Bozeman, Billings, Choteau, Fort Benton, Polson, Dillon, Wolf Point, Red Lodge, Scobey, Great Falls, Forsyth, Hardin and Butte.

U. S. to Transfer 451 Nazi Seamen

Columbus Crewmen Await Removal To 'Safe' Inland Spot

By the United Press

A Justice Department spokesman last night revealed plans to remove 451 members of the crew of the scuttled German liner Columbus from the Angel Island (Calif.) Immigration Station to a secluded inland spot.

The seamen are being held at the station until officials determine whether they should be deported or permitted restricted entry into the United States. They have been Federal charges since early this year, when they scuttled their ship off the coast of Florida to escape a British man-of-war, and were rescued by a United States cruiser.

Two developments are involved in the plan to move the Germans, the spokesman explained.

First, they have been the target of charges that they used shore liberties to engage in Trojan horse and propaganda activities.

Attorney General Jackson ordered an investigation of these accusations and the department spokesman said preliminary reports indicate they were exaggerated. The reports still are under consideration, however.

Second, a recent fire at Angel Island reduced accommodations for persons waiting admittance to the United States, and the seamen were transferred to temporary quarters.

The German government now is paying the United States the cost of maintaining the seamen, and will bear the financial burden of the new quarters.

A site for the quarters has not been selected, the spokesman said, but he emphasized that it will be isolated from "any strategic point or population center."

The justice spokesman emphasized that the men are not prisoners and that no charges are pending against them. He pointed out that since the crew's captain still is with them a system of discipline exists.

Willkie Condemns Plant Seizure Bill

prise," he continued. "If they do, that is all right, but that is one of the fundamental issues of this campaign and I want to debate it."

The amendment, Willkie asserted "raises an obstacle" to House passage of the conscription measure. He added that if he were a member of the House he would vote against the bill if it contained authority for the Government to take over private facilities in peacetime.

Such a provision, the Republican nominee said, actually would retard the defense program because private enterprise would be reluctant to build or expand plants "if the Government could step in and seize them at any time."

He expressed belief that a majority of the people would welcome Senate approval of manpower conscription. He said he hoped the House "will quickly follow suit," and added that under a selective program "the sons of the rich as well as the sons of the poor and all others will serve."

Discussing the Overton-Russell amendment, Willkie said that "no such sweeping powers were ever heretofore granted to a President of the United States, even in time of war," he continued.

"This amendment, if it becomes law, will further impede and disorganize the defense program at the very time when we must speed it up.

"It will constitute a threat to the American labor and particularly union labor, for the President of the United States sometime ago told American labor: 'You cannot strike against the Government.'

"Thus those persons who become employes of the Federal Government would be deprived of the right of collective bargaining, another step toward what took place in Germany—industries conscripted, unions abolished."

your TASTE, too, has changed

In the Bare-Knuckle Days of toe-to-toe slugging, boxing was a heavy-handed science. And any friendly bet-settling was done with whiskey equally heavy. But times have changed—and so have whiskey tastes! Your modern taste demands a light whiskey, a whiskey like Signet—first bonded whiskey of its kind.

AGED IN AGED WOOD
Signet is aged in charred casks that have been pre-mellowed by repeated prior use. Scotch and Canadian whiskies and the rarest French brandies are also aged in casks that have been thus pre-mellowed.

Valor Legion Seen Favoring Draft

Resolutions Lauding Bill May Be Passed At Session Today

The Army and Navy Legion of Valor says it's not a lobbying group but when something gets on its mind it still can rattle 99 Congressional Medals of Honor, 850 Distinguished Service Crosses and 53 Navy Crosses to attract attention.

EADIE

Entirely informally, just man to man, it had conscription on the mind yesterday. All seemed to want it. They aren't so quick with resolutions, but some may come from the business sessions today.

Sterling Morelock, of Aspenwall, Pa., who wears the Congressional Medal of Honor, said, "If I had sons or daughters I would want them in the Army now. At least they would be taught discipline and obedience to help them the rest of their lives."

He knows, too, what they probably would face. On October 4, 1918, his company near Exermont, France, was held up by heavy fire. Morelock, a private soldier, led a group of volunteers and cleaned out his immediate front until his company commander arrived with reinforcements. The entire patrol were casualties. But they had captured 10 prisoners. Then the company commander got a wound and Morelock was badly struck in the hip.

MORELOCK

Thomas Eadie, of Newport, R. I., who wears the Congressional Medal of Honor and two Navy Crosses, was retired from the Navy but is back in an advisory capacity. Is he willing to go back? "I've been examined. They say I'm fit for sea duty."

He earned his highest award when the U. S. S. S-4 went down, in December, 1927, off Provincetown, Mass. A diver in the salvage operations became "seriously fouled" in trying to connect an airline to the submarine at a depth of 102 feet.

PRAGER

"Eadie, under the most adverse conditions, deliberately, knowingly and willingly took his own life in his hands by promptly descending to the rescue in response to the desperate need of his companion diver. After two hours of extremely dangerous and heartbreaking work, by his cool, calculating and skillful labors he succeeded in his mission and brought Michels to the surface."

Sing Kee, Chinese restaurant operator in New York and Washington, said America needs conscription now. "Quick," he believed. He was a private in Company G, 306th Infantry, Seventy-seventh Division. His D. S. C. was won at Mont Notre Dame, France, August 14-15, 1918.

KEE

"Although seriously gassed during shelling by high explosives and gas shells he refused to be evacuated and continued practically single-handed by his own initiative to operate regimental center relay station at Mont Notre Dame. Throughout this critical period he showed extraordinary heroism, high courage and persistent devotion to duty."

H. H. Horton, of Laramie, Wyo., knows what war is like, too. A high explosive shell in the Argonne struck him and two others simultaneously. He got up and found help for his comrades—and got the D. S. C. The war and his wound didn't stop him. He was president of the Wyoming Senate last year.

KOCHLI

Fred Kochli, 5717 Thirty-second street, Chevy Chase, D. C., said the convention may express itself about conscription. He knows what it would mean, too. He served in the 146th Infantry, Thirty-seventh Division. In September, 1918, in the Meuse-Argonne he took a patrol out, where his line had been halted and captured 14 machine guns. He won the D. S. C.

Benjamin Prager, of Pittsburgh, wearing the D. S. C., knows what it's about. He was a sergeant in E Company, 111th Infantry, Twenty-eighth Division.

HORTON

"On his own initiative and under heavy fire, he led an automatic rifle squad to a house far in advance of our lines and by purposely exposing himself at a window drew fire from an enemy machine gun, thus exposing its position and enabling his squad to destroy it."

The legion visited Arlington National Cemetery yesterday and in the evening held an informal party at the Casino Royal. Nearly 300 were registered yesterday. They were meeting at the Willard Hotel.

Baby, Including Accessories, Costs $270.17 for First Year

At Least That's the Itemized Account Kept by Chicago Couple; Doctor, Hospital, Doll, Even Paint for Crib Are Figured

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 29.—How much does a baby cost?

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Derer have the answer down to the last cent in their family ledger.

Mrs. Derer, who is 26, decided to keep a daily record of expenditures for baby Sharon. The account book showed today that Sharon has cost exactly $270.17 in the year since she was born.

The Derers have been married two years. Papa Derer is 32 years old, and earns slightly more than $1,600 a year as an icer of refrigerator cars.

Omitting only the cost of some clothes which friends provided at a baby shower, the budget on baby Sharon for the first year was as follows:

Doctor bill	$54.00
Hospital bill (10 days)	60.00

Refugee Liner Overdue With 200 Children

Teachers Also Aboard Vessel Two Weeks Out From Bahamas

By the United Press

Nassau, Bahamas, Aug 29.—Delay in arrival here of a British liner reported to have left England with 200 refugee children aboard caused anxiety today.

The vessel had been expected two weeks ago with the children, said to be accompanied by teachers who would set up one of the first schools for children evacuated from the British Isles for the duration of the war. Arrangements for housing and school facilities have been made.

Because of wartime restrictions imposed on information regarding ship movements, the only information available here was that the vessel had left England.

(It was learned, however, the children were expected to arrive on the 15,000-ton liner Orduna.)

Nazis Oppose Sending U. S. Ships

Berlin, Aug. 29 (AP).—Authorized sources said tonight that "Germany is likely to look with the greatest disfavor upon the project of sending American ships into the war zone to fetch children."

The source added, however, that since the United States Government has not approached the German government, no official reaction could be given. "Mines don't say where they are," this source said, to cover the reason for German aversion to the project.

Rained Out, D. C. Marines Drill Indoors

Battalion Reports Mess Is Best Ever, Illnesses Are Few

Special Dispatch to The Post

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 29.—For the fourth consecutive day heavy, cold rain beat down on members of the Fifth Battalion Marine Corps Reserve encamped here for field training, but failed to dampen the spirits of the District's leathernecks.

Four infantry companies drilled in the gigantic dirigible hangar, while infantry auxiliary special weapons were stripped and reassembled. Part of Company D of the Twenty-third Battalion, Roanoke, Va., and all of Headquarters Company of the Fifth Battalion await a break in the weather to complete record firing.

A night attack maneuver remains unfinished and awaits more favorable weather. Some military competitive events also remain to be staged in the Naval Station Auditorium. Meanwhile, lectures are continuing in personal and field hygiene and sanitation.

A few minor cases of sore throat and "plain sniffles," induced by the rainy weather, are the only breaks in the command's record of excellent health. Mess is rated as "the best the battalion's ever had," by the men.

In accordance with usual Marine Corps procedure, the battalion's general performance is observed and reported upon by a board of observers from the regular Marine Corps which is headed this year by Lieut. Col. James F. Moriarty.

Acid Discovered To Turn Gray Hair Dark in Rats

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Discovery that pantothenic acid turns gray hair dark in rats was announced today in Science, official journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This acid, one of the numerous fractions of vitamin B, is something new, and recently was made synthetically at the University of Texas, with the result that for the first ime enough was available for important diet experiments.

For three years dieticians have reported that something in vitamin B has the ability to turn gray hair darker. When graying has been caused by lack of this somewhat mysterious vitamin fraction, the restoration has been complete.

These previous experiments were all on animals. But there have also been some unpublished tests on humans, indicating the vitamin has some influence on human gray locks too.

Defense Experts Survey Halifax

Halifax, Aug. 29 (AP).—Naval and air officers of the Canadian and United States services toured the Halifax area today on their survey of East Coast defenses for the permanent Joint Defense Board.

The three American and two Canadian officer members of the board, who flew here from Ottawa yesterday, were expected to leave tomorrow. Their destination was not disclosed, but it was believed likely they would go first to Newfoundland, considered the most likely site for the establishment of new United States air and naval bases.

11 More Qualify For Air Squadron Of District Guard

Eleven men have qualified and 12 more will take the physical examinations today for the 121st Observation Squadron of the District National Guard, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox stated yesterday.

The men in the first class will be sent, early in September, to the primary training school at Lakeland, Fla., for a nine months' course. On completion of their training, they will return here with pilots' ratings and the rank of second lieutenant.

Men, to be eligible for the course, must have had two years in an accredited college, be unmarried, in perfect physical condition and between the ages of 20 and 27. Another class will start training in October, applications for which will be received for two days before physical examinations are given.

Church Moves To Enjoin License For Nearby Cafe

The Union Methodist Church, 812 Twentieth street northwest, yesterday sought a District Court injunction against the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to prevent the issuance of a light wine and beer license to the Colonial Coffee Shop, 832 Twentieth street northwest.

Previously, the coffee shop has twice been refused a license to sell liquor because of its proximity to the church. It was contended in the petition that four years must elapse under present laws before a rejected applicant may again apply for a license.

On September 5, Judge Pine will be asked to decide whether a beer license may be issued within less than the prescribed period after a rejection of a liquor sale application.

Windridge Nominated For Arlington Office

The Arlington Republican committee last night selected Fred Windridge, Rosslyn, Va., automobile dealer, as the party's nominee for the Arlington County board.

Windridge will oppose Leo Lloyd, incumbent and Democratic nominee who was chosen several weeks ago. In running for renomination Lloyd defeated Minor Kavenaugh.

The Securities Exchange Commission yesterday marshaled the forces of the Nation's 24 "country" stock exchanges in a fight for business they are facing with New York City's "Big Board."

Apparently taking the side of the small, regional marts, the SEC called on the 24 exchanges to send in their opinions of a multiple trading rule the New York Exchange says it will put into effect September 1, a rule that some regional exchanges believe would rob them of 50 per cent of their daily business.

The New York ruling would prevent any member of the big board from acting as an odd-lot dealer or specialist, or otherwise publicly dealing, either alone or through a joint account, on any regional exchange in any security which is also traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Half Their Business

Odd-lot deals in issues handled in the New York market represents about half the business done on many regional exchanges by local traders who are either partners of New York firms of act with them on a joint-account basis.

The threat of the Big Board to expel from membership any New York firm that continues after September 1 to be a party to trading in Big Board issues on regional exchanges would cut into the heart of "country" exchange business, regional spokesmen feel.

Especially affected would be the income of security dealers in Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cincinnati and on the West Coast, Washington, with a less important volume of trading in New York Stock Exchange issues, might not be so seriously affected, it was said.

Strongs Words to McMartin

At the same time the Commission called for a show of hands from the regional exchanges, it sent a strongly worded letter to William C. McMartin, jr., president of the New York Exchange, pointing out to him that "the public interest may be involved," and enclosing a copy of the letters to the smaller exchanges.

The Commission had received on Wednesday a refusal from the New York Exchange to postpone for 60 days the effective date of its multiple trading ruling, pending a study of the question by the SEC.

The Commission did not postpone the date, which remains September 1, and McMartin replied to the SEC saying that the exchange's policy of granting time extensions "to prevent undue hardship" to any member firm having "a legitimate reason," would be continued.

Looming in the background is the fact that the SEC has power to call the New York Exchange on the carpet for a public hearing on its ruling.

Tears Dampen Runaway's Ardor For Open Spaces

The wanderlust struck Hugh Berdan, 11, of Berwyn Heights, Md., yesterday and his 4-hour disappearance led to a widespread search by more than two-score Prince Georges County volunteer firemen.

For two hours searchlights of fire apparatus played on the woods around Berwyn Heights, while firemen beat the brush, seeking the youngster. The Branchville and Berwyn Heights companies took part in the search.

A Washington couple, whose names were not learned, brought the youngster back to his home at 8:30, after they found him at Glendale, where he was sitting on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks and crying that he had run away from home. The boy is the son of Mrs. Catherine Berdan.

Bill Would Empty Gas Plants Upon Invasion

Representative Case (Republican), of South Dakota, yesterday introduced a bill which would require the emptying of all gas tanks in the District as a safety measure upon proclamation by the Secretary of War that invasion or threatened invasion impended.

The tanks affected would be only those connected with gas plants of the Washington Gaslight Co.

Italians Report Bombing of Suez

Warplanes Blast Both Port Said And Alexandria

By International News Service

Rome, Aug. 29.—Italian aerial efforts to sever communications between Egypt and Palestine while blocking traffic between the Mediterranean and Red seas were discerned tonight in the disclosure that Fascist bombers for the first time had attacked the Suez Canal.

One of the most vital connecting links in the British Empire, the canal—"Britain's Panama"—was heavily blasted by Italian planes Wednesday from its northern entrance at Port Said down to Ismailia, about halfway to the Red Sea, the high command announced today.

Of especial significance was the fact that the Fascist bombers centered much of their destructive work on the canal's Alkantara Crossing, which is the railway ferry connecting Egypt and the Holy Land. Should the Italian air force succeed in severing this connection or even impairing it, the British would find it difficult to transfer quickly troops and material from one front to the other in the middle east.

Alexandria Blasted

In addition to the Suez Canal, the Italian fliers also struck once more at the frequently raided Alexandria naval base, the communique revealed.

The announcement also claimed the capture of the Polignac Fort by Fascist native Dubat troops inside the British colony of Kenya, south of Ethiopia.

Italian bombers, meanwhile, raided the Khashm El Ghirba Railway Station in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and the Kenya Airfields of Wajir and Garissa.

Panzer Force Repulsed

In a sharp battle at the well of Adarde, a British armored car column, which had broken into Italian Eritrea from the Sudan, was declared to have been repulsed with the aid of native Askari militia. More than 12 Australian soldiers killed, machine guns and other weapons were said to have been left behind by the British force as it retreated, taking its wounded. The Italian losses were described as "slight."

Other British incursions into Italian African territory in the neighborhood of Gallabat were stated to have been beaten back by colonial troops.

Sidelights On Defense

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 29 (AP).—C. L. McCuen, General Motors Corporation vice president in charge of engineering, said today "the public is going to be shocked when they realize that industry can't build at once" equipment for the National Defense program.

Addressing a meeting of automobile salesmen, McCuen said delays were being encountered in the planning of units that industry must manufacture for defense purposes.

"Even if we knew what they wanted we still would have a problem," McCuen said. "It takes a year to put into production something we know all about.

"For instance, we already are working on our 1942 model automobiles."

The Senate yesterday completed Congressional action on a bill to increase by 270 the number of Naval Academy midshipmen by making eligible to admission first alternates as well as principals appointed during 1939 and 1940.

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Army Ordnance Department is preparing to buy $40,000,000 worth of ammunition components in the seven-State Chicago ordnance district, Col. Donald Armstrong, executive officer, announced today.

Ammunition components would include shell forgings, shell machining, aerial bombs, fuses and cartridge cases. Letting of contracts presumably would begin shortly after passage of the defense appropriation bill pending in Congress.

Ex-Service Men Expected To Go on Deferred Draft List

lation authorizing him to case to the colors the National Guard and Army Reserves.)

(However, both men would probably be put on the deferred list. This would depend on the discretion of the local selection board which will base its decisions on how recently registrants had obtained their military or naval training.)

Commander B. S. Killmaster, U. S. N., chairman of the Joint Army-Navy Selective Service Committee, said the men would undoubtedly receive preferential ratings in the Naval Reserve should they wish to enlist, thus assuring themselves exemption from the conscription.

Naval Reserve officials at the Navy Yard confirmed this statement.

While unable to specify in what bracket these men would be placed without taking into consideration all their qualifications, officials said that both would be ranked with experienced members of the Fleet Reserve Force. Pay in this organization starts at $20 per month, but members are liable for active duty at Regular Navy salaries.

The postal employe, would probably be reinstated at his former grade of electrician's mate, second class, while the one-time Midshipman might even qualify for a Reserve officer's rating had he obtained any additional education following his eight months at the Naval Academy.

The Navy this year expects to commission upwards of 5,000 "Reserve Midshipmen" who have had the equivalent of two years' college training. These men will reach officer's grade after a month's training cruise and three months at one of 12 training centers located at accredited universities.

Many Washington students returning to distant colleges within a month are in the same category as a reader who may be away from his place of residence on registration day.

Rather than incurring the expense of a trip home to register for a draft although they might be put on the deferred list, these individuals will have the opportunity to register by mail, in the manner of absentee voters, according to selective service experts. A special staff to handle candidates registering by mail is already a part of the conscription machinery, it was said.

What about the man employed in a clerical capacity by the National Defense Commission?

In its night session two days ago the Senate clarified a section of the bill which would exempt legislative, executive and judicial officers of both Federal and States' governments.

It was expected that the word "officers" might be interpreted loosely when the time of selection arrived, so that Government workers of subordinate capacities might be also exempted.

But, said the amendment which was offered Tuesday night by Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, only such officials "whose continued employment is necessary to the maintenance of the public health, safety, or interest" of the Nation would be excused.

Commenting on the question, the selection committee said the mere fact a man was employed in a defense agency would be no grounds for his exemption. A clerk who could easily be replaced also is not "vital to the Nation's health," it was said. A high-ranking and specially qualified official would be.

The postal employe, previously mentioned, might, however, be deferred should he be an expert in some phase of postoffice work, and hence indispensable to the operation of this country's communication systems.

Policemen, firemen and even Weather Bureau employes in all probability also will be skipped over, at least on the first calls. These men are necessary to the national interest, in the eyes of the services.

How fast law enforcement officers would be drafted should this country find itself in war depends on the development of home defense forces.

(Tomorrow The Post will again answer questions of readers about conscription technicalities.)

to terms with owners. The Senate wrote this "industry-draft" into the conscription bill late Wednesday night.

To Be Debated On Floor

When offered as an amendment to the House version of the bill yesterday by Representative Brooks (Democrat), of Louisiana, a modification was proposed by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Connecticut, and it was decided to consider the proposal Monday, and, if approved, move to insert it on the floor. Smith's proposal was to let factory owners retain title to their plants and operate them under Government supervision in cases where the authority is exercised.

Aside from the difference in age limits and the authority to draft industry, the House bill generally conforms to the Senate measure. Both limit the use of conscripts to the Western Hemisphere and American possessions, including the Philippines, and both provide for the same method of selection and exemptions.

Numerical Limit Varies

One difference is the top limit placed on the number of draftees who could be in service at any one time. The Senate fixed the maximum number at 900,000 for the Army, while House bill permits 1,000,000 in both the Army and Navy.

The House bill, it was revealed yesterday, also would defer the training of any college student who may be called this year until the end of the school year. It would not apply during future years.

Earlier the committee had announced such deferment for college seniors.

The Senate added $110,459,000 to the defense appropriation bill on the floor. One hundred million of this was to provide temporary housing facilities at Army and Navy posts and other housing for national defense workers near arms factories and arsenals. The President could allocate the funds to various Government agencies for direct construction or loans.

Ten millions were added for constructing a large graving dock at New York, capable of handling the largest battleships, and $210,000 was provided for the expansion of the Naval R. O. T. C. Another amendment would make all arms work under the bill subject to the Walsh-Healy and Bacon-Davis labor standards act.

United Aircraft to Help

Secretary of the Navy Knox, in announcing the aircraft engine order, said United Aircraft will construct a $2,500,000 addition to its Hartford plant with its own funds, while the Government will provide $7,000,000 worth of machine tools for the work.

The contract will take care of all the Army and Navy needs during the 1941 and 1942 fiscal years for Pratt & Whitney motors. The Army will pay the Navy for what engines it needs and under a new policy will contract for the engine needs of both services with other manufacturers.

During the debate on the defense appropriation bill, Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, complained about the Senate's action in raising the profit limit on Army and Navy aircraft orders from 8 to 12 per cent "less than 24 hours after voting to conscript a year from the life of our youth."

The legislative situation on the limitation of arms profits, already involved, was made even more confused by the Senate action. On Wednesday, the Senate approved an amendment to the draft bill, extending the 8 per cent limit on shipbuilding and plane orders to cover Army contracts, while the House yesterday voted to suspend the limit during the emergency and substitute an excess profits tax.

There was no announcement of the names of the four House committeemen opposing the conscription bill, but later Representatives Shafer (Republican), of Michigan, and Anderson (Democrat), of Missouri, said they had voted against it and had cast the proxy of Representative Schaefer (Democrat), of Illinois, the same way. Representative Harness (Republican), of Indiana, reportedly cast the fourth negative ballot, but he declined to make any statement.

Should the bill pass the House next week, leaders predict it should become law before the middle of September. Under Army plans, registration would take place 15 days after its passage and the first men enter camps 25 days later.

First Draftees Won't See Camps Until Late Fall

By the Associated Press

Prospects are that the first trainees drafted under the Burke-Wadsworth bill, if it finally becomes law, will not reach Army camps until mid-November.

When the question of conscription was first raised, plans of the War Department were to induct the first group of 75,000 on October 1 and to continue taking them until nearly 400,000 were enrolled by December 15.

No change in those plans has yet been announced, but the time schedule has been upset by the lengthy Senate consideration of the measure.

Original plans allowed six weeks to get the selective service system in operation. Hence, if the compulsory service bill became law today it would be mid-October, according to that schedule, before the first trainees were enlisted.

U. S. Interprets Alien Data

The task of translating the Federal Government's alien registration lists into useful data began yesterday as the first 20,000 completed forms were received by Earl G. Harrison, of the Justice Department, director of the project.

It was the third day of the alien registration drive which went into full swing at 7,300 postoffices throughout the country as all finally were supplied with sufficient forms and fingerprinting equipment. The job had been held up in a number of cities on the first two days because of inability of a Philadelphia manufacturer to deliver the printing sets in time.

Locally the registration slowed down to a routine tempo, according to Postmaster Vincent Burke, who said a little more than 200 aliens filed out the official blanks yesterday, as compared with 306 the first day, and 397 the second.

Alexandria, Va., held back in the drive because equipment had not arrived, yesterday began by registering 12 of the 50 aliens in the town, according to Postmatser J. Owen Lynch.

Officials were pleased and indicated there would be little difficulty in registering the Nation's 3,600,000 aliens within the allotted hundred days ending December 27.

To further speed up the job, Director Harrison announced that provisions would be made to register aliens who are ill at hospitals, in homes for the aged, and even in private residences when necessary. Several such requests have been made here. Postmatser Burke said, and the persons would be accommodated.

A number of persons continue in the mistaken assumption that they need not register if they have taken out first papers. Harrison warned emphatically that no one is exempt until full citizenship has actually been granted.

Britain Tells Paish to Leave U. S. at Once

Alleged Propagandist Gets 'Suggestion' From Embassy Here

The British Embassy has "suggested" to Sir George Paish that he leave the United States as soon as possible, it was learned here last night.

Sir George, a 72-year-old economist, had intended to deliver a series of lectures in this country "to present the facts to the American people and let them decide whether they should get into this war."

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, charged Monday that the Briton told him: "I was responsible for getting this country into the last war and I intend to get it into this one."

In the furore following Wheeler's statement, several Senators demanded investigation by the State and Justice departments of Sir George's activities in this country and failure to register as a foreign agent. Sir George insisted Wheeler had misquoted him.

Questioned at the home of friends in Larchmont, N. Y., Sir George said he was in the United States "to help America in any way I can," the Associated Press reported. He declined to discuss future plans and said he would communicate with his government.

Text of Willkie's Criticism Of Plan to Draft Industries

Russell-Overton Amendment Sharply Attacked by Nominee

By the Associated Press

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 29.—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, issued the following statement late today:

The great majority of the American people will welcome the passage, after prolonged debate, of the Senate's military selective service bill. Although I respect much the high standing of those who opposed this measure, nevertheless, I approve of the Senate's action and hope the House will quickly follow suit. In my judgment, a selective service method is the most democratic way of creating an Army with which to defend our country. Under its provisions the sons of the rich as well as the sons of the poor and all others will serve.

At the eleventh hour, however, an amendment was introduced by New Deal Senators Overton and Russell, and passed by the Senate, which gives the President, whenever the Secretary of War or Secretary of Navy is unable to arrive at an agreement with the owner of any plant or facility which is deemed necessary for national defense, power to acquire such plant or facility. In addition, he may take immediate possession of the plant or facility and may operate it by Government personnel. This amendment gives the President of the United States absolute and arbitrary control of virtually the entire economic system of the United States, for within the term "facility" all American business, and perhaps American agriculture could conceivably be included. Likewise the discretion to determine when and whether there is a disagreement will lie entirely with the President.

Criticizes Industrial Control

No such sweeping powers were ever before granted to a President of the United States even in time of war. This amendment, if it becomes law, will further impede and disorganize the defense program at the very time when we must speed it up. It will constitute a threat to the American labor and particularly union labor, for the President of the United States some time ago told American labor: "You cannot strike against the Government." Thus, those persons who become employes of the Federal Government would be deprived the right of collective bargaining, another step toward what took place in Germany—industries conscripted, unions abolished.

It will further stop normal industrial expansion, increase the depths of the present depression and cause further unemployment. I am against it.

The Defense Act of 1916 granted certain such powers to the President. But that act authorized commandeering only in the event of definite disagreements over procurement of supplies. The present law is far different. It authorizes the commandeering of plants and facilities in the event of any conceivable disagreement with the owner over "its use or operation by the War Department or Navy Department," and with the Government determining whether there is a dispute.

May Be War Necessity

While extraordinary powers to commandeer American enterprise similar to those of 1916, may be necessary in the event of war, I cannot understand why they should be necessary at this stage of our defense program, when we are at peace and presumably intend to remain so. I believe with Woodrow Wilson that "the highest and best form of efficiency is the spontaneous cooperation of a free people." Can it be true that the people of this country are not cooperating with the Government in its defense efforts? If this is the fact, we should hear about it. But the sponsors of this measure have not given any such confidence.

It is said that if men are to be conscripted, wealth must be conscripted. If this statement is taken literally, if our assets and enterprises are to be taken over by the Government at its sole discretion, I cannot understand what we are undertaking to defend. For my part, I want to defend free men in a free land. Neither I nor anyone else can do so without proper guarantees of our freedom.

The "conscription of wealth" is a phrase without meaning. In the event of emergency, the industries and assets of this country are at the disposal of the people. Let us not create that emergency before it actually exists by setting up a potential dictatorship.

Senators known to be close to the Administration, supported this amendment and an important factor in its adoption was the statement by Majority Leader Alben Barkley, that he is for it.

Are we to infer from this that the Administration favors the passage of this amendment and its incorporation into the final measure to be framed by joint action of the House and the Senate? I put this question up to the President and ask for a direct answer.

In my acceptance speech at Elwood, I suggested that President Roosevelt and I join in face to face debate before the people of this country.

Would Debate on Bill

I did not make this suggestion in the spirit of gay and thoughtless bravado. I did not make it for the sake of something in elocutionary dialectics of which President Roosevelt is a brilliant master. I made that suggestion because the American people are faced with issues of momentous importance which should be expounded for them by the candidates for President.

The so-called Overton-Russell amendment is such an issue.

I put this up to the President now and I hope that he does not answer with any quip about how Wendell Willkie loves property and he loves humanity. I say, without any personal criticism of the President, that it has been his good fortune at every stage in his life, to possess and enjoy more wealth and more income than I have. This is true today as it was in the past.

The issue at stake cannot be intelligently set in such terms.

The issue is the form of government under which we shall live, the way of life for which we shall stand.

The issue is also our power to defend ourselves. In my view, the present amendment would weaken us further.

The President in his own judgment declined to debate such issues. That is his privilege, but in this instance so much more is at stake that I put this question to him directly:

Is he for or against the Overton-Russell amendment?

The Senator also asked that the Attorney General investigate the award of the contracts, which reportedly totaled $28,859,081.

"Senator Bridges, if he desires to be honestly constructive," Robert, president of the Atlanta company, said, "should read the record and learn that this company and its associates have been continually and without interruption doing business running into millions for the Federal Government since the Coolidge Administration.

"As a professional firm, all of this work has been by negotiated contracts based on ability and readiness to serve and in competition with countless other firms.

"I heartily welcome the investigation suggested by the Senator and the quicker the better before he attempts further to clog up the vital defense program by petty political sniping."

The firm, Robert satid, has had a business volume of over $500,000,000 in the last 23 years.

"But because I, as a stockholder, have been elected to an honorary and payless position as secretary of the Democratic National Committee," he continued, "then this important firm of over 400 skilled architects and engineers should be counted out altogether and not use its talents and facilities at this vital period."

Robert said "my distinguished Republican friend, Albert Kahn," a Detroit architect, has obtained "far greater jobs for national defense. But the Senator has not time to go into this at the moment. He evidently just wants to complain for political purposes."

Bridges made his statement after reading a list of the Robert firm's fees, ranging from 2.8 to 4.5 per cent, which was placed in the Congressional Record Wednesday by Chairman Vinson (Democrat), of the House Naval Committee.

The House committee had requested the information of the Navy after two of its members, Representative Vincent (Democrat), Kentucky, and Darden (Democrat), Virginia, had questioned a naval officer about "negotiated" contracts.

The statement showed Robert & Co. received 8 out of 66 "negotiated" awards.

"The President will be derelict in his duty if he doesn't demand Robert's resignation," Bridges asserted.

He added that "with the high sense of political morality which can be attributed to the President," he believed the Chief Executive would "want to look into this matter."

In demanding a Justice Department inquiry, the Senator declared it would be "interesting to find out whether these contracts were put up for bidding or just passed out."

Heart Attack Kills George McManus, New York Gambler

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—"Big George" McManus, the Broadway gambler, died of a heart attack at his summer home in Sea Girt, N. J., last night, still cloistered from the limelight thrust on him a decade ago when he was accused of the murder of Arnold Rothstein.

McManus, who was 48, was acquitted in 1929 of the mysterious Rothstein slaying, a prohibition era crime which still remains unsolved.

Rothstein, also a notorious gambler, had stumbled out of a theatrical district hotel, mortally shot, and died without disclosing his assailant. A coat left in the hotel room was identified as belonging to McManus.

The State attempted to prove that McManus lured Rothstein into the hotel and shot him during a dispute over a gambling debt involving several hundred thousand dollars.

cost of new plants built exclusively for defense needs.

The committee report released yesterday stated that, according to the Defense Advisory Commission, "substantial amounts of private capital will not be invested in the construction of such facilities" unless some special amortization provisions are enacted.

Suspension of the special profit limitations of the Vinson-Trammell Act were deemed advisable, said the committee, because the proposed tax would apply to all corporations.

The bill would allow excess profits to be calculated in either one of two ways: On a basis of average earnings over the base period 1936-1939; or on a basis of the relation of earnings for the base period to invested capital.

If the average earnings method is used, an additional 4.1 per cent is added to the normal corporation income tax of 20.9 per cent, and the excess profits rates are applied on top of that.

On the other hand, if the invested capital method is used, corporations are allowed to earn a minimum of 5 and maximum of 10 per cent on their capital (depending on prior earnings and amount of capitalization) before the excess profits rates apply.

Hertzog Urges South Africa To Bow to Nazis

Capetown, South Africa, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—A motion demanding that the Union of South Africa start immediate peace negotiations with Germany and Italy was introduced in the Assembly today by former Premier Gen. James Hertzog.

Gen. Hertzog, who was forced out as premier two days after Britain's declaration of war last September 3, alleged in his motion that Britain was carrying on the war "in a spirit of despair" after being abandoned by France.

"On land the superiority of Germany is beyond argument and in the air she has showed daily that she is England's superior. On and under the sea Germany has provided proof that she has no need to be afraid of Britain," he said.

Premier Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, who succeeded Hertzog as head of the government a year ago when the Parliament voted to sever relations with Germany, replied angrily to Hertzog's motion, that the Union of South Africa government will not be deflected from its war course, he said, by the victories of Hitler or Hertzog's "glorification of Germany."

Carol May Form New 'Axis' Cabinet

Move Reported As Parley Seeks Balkan Peace

By the Associated Press

Bucharest (Friday), Aug. 30.—Reports circulated in the Rumanian capital today that attempts are being made by King Carol II to form a new cabinet in the midst of Axis mediatory efforts to settle territorial demands of Rumania's brittling neighbors.

After an extraordinary cabinet session, in the royal palace until near dawn, the King called in a number of prominent Iron Guard (Rumanian Nazi) members for private audiences.

The King also summoned the royal councilors for an unprecedented crown council session to discuss the four-power conferences in progress at Vienna, in which the Rome-Berlin Axis seeks peaceable settlement of the Rumanian-Hungarian dispute over Transylvania.

The pro-German George Bratainu, Peasant Leader Juliu Maniu and John Mihalache, who are not members of the council, were to meet with Carol today.

To Bolster Soviet Border

It was reported unofficially that there was full discussion of yesterday's meeting at Vienna.

An attempt will be made to reach an agreement on a course decided on at Vienna and then to transmit approval of the plan to Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu, it was said.

Rumania will throw the bulk of her army into a new line of defense near the Russian border as soon as territorial disputes with Bulgaria and Hungary have been settled definitely, diplomatic sources reported.

The Rumanian-Bulgarian settlement of the Dobruja question awaits only formal signature, but the Transylvanian dispute with Hungary still is hanging fire.

The Rumanian general staff, diplomats said, already is working on plans to make the Siretul River an "impregnable second line of defense" which Rumanians are convinced they could hold, even against the Red army.

Troops Fall Back

Withdrawal of certain troops and supplies from the Soviet-Rumanian border, mentioned in last night's communique, now are disclosed to have been made to the Siretul line.

There is no official confirmation of rumors of new Russian frontier incidents. Authorities said these probably were merely "amplification of earlier reports" of the clashes occurring earlier this week.

The delicacy of the Russo-Rumanian situation was emphasized by reports that the mixed Russian-Rumanian Commission, sitting in Odessa for the past two months, is swamped with complaints, demands and complicated technical problems arising out of the transfer of Bessarabia to Russia. Feeling is still tense along the new border.

Many residents of southern Bucovina, fearful of further clashes between Soviet and Rumanian forces, were reported moving hurriedly southward into the old Kingdom of Rumania. The flight was at its height between the River Prut and Siretul, where troops of both sides are heavily concentrated.

Negotiators to Meet

Vienna, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—The threat of war between Hungary and Rumania will be banished by a "definite and positive solution" of their territorial dispute within 48 hours, Nazi quarters predicted tonight after the first sessions of the Axis-sponsored Balkan conference.

Foreign Ministers von Ribbentrop of Germany and Count Ciano of Italy met separately with the foreign ministers of Hungary and Rumania at the Imperial Hotel today, and tomorrow the four negotiators are expected to be brought together for the first time.

The talks were adjourned this evening for formal receptions after what were described as "analytical" soundings, by Ribbentrop and Ciano, of a basis for a compromise settlement of Hungary's claims to Transylvania.

GREEN GUARD LEADER LEAVING COURTHOUSE—Mrs. Virginia Nowell, national president and founder of the Green Guards, women's "home defense" organization, leaves courthouse with her attorney, James F. Financial records of the Green Guards of America, Inc., were confiscated yesterday by United States Attorney Edward M. Curran at the conclusion of a three-hour conference with Mrs. Virginia Nowell, national president and founder of the women's "home defense" organization.

Curran said his investigation of the local group's activities would continue with "at least" six witnesses to be interviewed today. He assigned aids to study the books and records turned over to him by Mrs. Nowell.

Earlier, Curran conferred at length with Mrs. Ora Emge, of 128 Eleventh street southeast, named president of the Washington "Guards" following the resignation of Mrs. Frank A. Werner.

Charged Profiteering

Mrs. Werner, contending the organization was built on "profiteering" instead of "patriotism," resigned after a tiff with Mrs. Nowell. Curran, however, said Mrs. Emge told him she was "too busy" to succeed Mrs. Werner as local president.

Present at the questioning of both Mrs. Emge and Mrs. Nowell was Detective Sergt. Richard K. Felber, of the Police Department check and fraud squad and Assistant United States Attorney John M. Fihelly. Mrs. Nowell was represented by Attorney James F. Reilly.

Mrs. Emge was identified by Curran as an employe of the Bureau of Statistics, Interstate Commerce Commission. She declined to discuss her testimony with reporters.

Court-Martial Snubbed

Meanwhile, Mrs. Werner said she had "no intention" of appearing at her scheduled "court-martial" before the Green Guards. Mrs. Nowell had announced that the former president would be tried for "treason" tonight at 1747 Church street northwest.

"I have no intention of appearing," said Mrs. Werner. "I wouldn't do it even if I were still a member—which I am not. They sent me a registered letter, which, I understand, would have told me about the court-martial. I refused to accept the letter."

The "court-martial" will be held regardless of the "defendant's" refusal to appear, Mrs. Nowell declared.

Raiders Harm Britain Little, Writer Finds

Soldiers, Civilians Alike Confident They Can Hold Out

By Drew Middleton.
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the British Army's Southern Command, in the Field, Aug. 29.—In three days' travel through military and naval areas which the Germans have been bombing nightly, I have found little damage which would hinder Britain's war effort, an unshaken faith among soldiers and civilians that they can "stick it out"—and considerable contempt for German marksmanship.

A British officer told me service casualties have one soldier killed and "a very few injured, and they not seriously."

Officers have allowed me to go where I wished, and I personally have seen this damage.

In a machine shop where recruits are taught to use tooling machines—two machines damaged, shop partly damaged, but now well on the way to reconstruction; no casualties.

A vicar and his housekeeper shaken up by two bombs which fell near his house, miles from any military objective.

The men of this army of defenders tell you stanchly that Adolf Hitler's invasion, "which may come any night," will be defeated by mobile British columns because "we have improved on the German's new conception of warfare. We will defeat him at his own game, as we always have."

Not only that, these officers here claim their vast training program is getting them ready for "future offensives" of their own.

Lieut. Gen. C. J. E. Auchinleck, commander in chief of the southern command, who scored Britain's sole land success in Norway, by leading a mixed force of Poles, French and British in the capture of Narvik, says:

"In Flanders and France we learned that first of all we must have increased cooperation between the Army, Navy and the Air Force. We really get inside each other's minds now and we meet at the high water mark on the beaches of Britain . . .

Nazis Admit Raids Have Hurt Berlin

Eight Areas Hit; Chemical Plant Is Also Damaged

slightly injured, while a fire was caused in a "lumber yard."

In Bad Homburg the Germans allege a hospital was struck by British missiles while, they add, the job of rendering harmless duds dropped by the enemy is now in progress.

British planes are reported also as having tried to attack Hamburg as well as French Channel ports. The latter raids, the Germans declare, were fought off before the enemy could inflict any damage.

Bombs fell in eight different sections of greater Berlin in the course of last night's raid, the Germans assert. They were Wilhelmsruhe, Reinickendorf, Wedding, Weissensee, Moabit, Kottbusertor, Goerlitzer Railroad Station and Gruenau.

Today's German high command communique reported activities of the German air force against the British yesterday in which enemy flying fields in eastern and southern England and at the mouth of the Thames, harbor appointments at Bognor Regis, Liverpool, Cardiff, Bristol, Middleborough, Chatham and Thames, as well as munitions plants in Chefield, Norwich and Coventry were bombed and a total of 44 enemy planes destroyed with a loss of only 15 German machines.

Second Place in Berlin

This report, however, is definitely relegated to a sorry second place in the interest of Berliners. For their attention, it is safe to say, is unanimously directed to the militarily less effective, but which, because it was right at home, very much more real British raid here.

Final official figures report 10 civilians killed and 28 others injured in the course of this morning's bombings. How many of the casualties were caused by shrapnel or dud shells from German anti-aircraft batteries, however, is not known. The press declares that no one would have been killed or injured if air-raid rules had been followed out by all civilians and they had betaken themselves to cellars instead of remaining in their apartments or standing in doorways in order to hear the motors of British planes or watch the fireworks in the sky.

"Persons were hit by splinters from British bombs and also by unpreventable splinters of German antiaircraft batteries, the Nachtausgabe illiminatingly declares, who failed to obey the air-raid rules.

Particularly interesting as an indication of the turn the conduct of this war appears to be taking, however, is the perhaps ominous wording of the German high command communique relative to the British raid.

"British airplanes in the night attacked residential sections of the Reich's capital systematically. A number were killed and injured by incendiary and explosive bombs while fires started on the roofs of a few dwellings and damage was inflicted upon them."

Retaliation Foreshadowed

The usual terminology employed by German high command in the past declared the British dropped bombs "without system or plan," thereby killing and wounding civilians. When, therefore, German high command declares the British "systematically" dropped bombs on residential sections of Berlin, that appears tantamount to asserting the objective of the British raid was these residential sections. And the Germans have constantly reiterated they are keeping an accurate record of what the British do and when the time is ripe they will retaliate in kind a hundredfold.

The press calls this morning's raid "the English bombing attack on the civilian population of Berlin," and brands it variously as "murder," "a dastardly act of cowardice," and a systematic maneuver of Prime Minister Winston Churchill "to place the German civilian population under a reign of murderous terror."

Berlin's air-raid cellars demonstrated their worth last night, it is asserted here. One mother, it is reported, had not the heart to awaken her two young children, who were sleeping peacefully, so she went to a cellar alone, leaving the children in their bedroom. The children were both killed while the mother escaped unscathed in the cellar when the house in which they lived was struck.

People left homeless and without clothes by last night's raid are being provided for by the city, which is finding new dwellings for them and will furnish them with wearing apparel. Schools, anticipating frequent recurrence of these raids, have announced that children must come at the regular hour of 8 o'clock if the raid lasts one hour, at 9 if it lasts two hours and at 10 if it lasts three hours.

Defense Proves Inadequate

If last night's raid seemed to prove anything, meanwhile, it was that antiaircraft and searchlight batteries alone or together are incapable of repulsing enemy raiders at night. All they appear able to do, which is also their major function, is to force enemy fliers to maintain such altitude that they cannot accurately aim their bombs, thus minimizing the possibility of the enemy's inflicting serious damage on vital objectives.

For British bombers cruised above Berlin on two occasions, around three hours each time, without antiaircraft batteries being able to drive them off—and Berlin, Germans have always claimed, is one of the best protected cities against air raids in the world.

Equatorial French Africa Reenters War

Colonies Repudiate Petain Government, Join Under DeGaulle

By the United Press

London, Aug. 29.—Nearly one-fourth of France's overseas empire today reentered the war on Britain's side, opening up a new battlefront against Italy, when Gen. Charles de Gaulle announced that all of French Equatorial Africa and the Cameroons had joined his "free French" forces.

De Gaulle announced by radio to the French people that the vast area of more than 1,000,000 square miles and 3,250,000 people had repudiated France's "abominable" armistice and joined his refugee French regime.

The enlistment of the Cameroons and French Equatorial Africa, which contain about 9 per cent of the total population of the French empire, not only gives the de Gaulle forces a means of continuing the war from French soil, but enables Britain to tighten her blockade of Italian East Africa.

It means, according to British quarters, that Germany and Italy will be cut off from sources of raw materials in central Africa.

The territories are rich but relatively undeveloped, their principal exports being ivory, wild rubber, coffee, copra, cattle and sheep. In the French Congo are some deposits of copper, zinc and lead.

"The French Empire is rising to wage war," said De Gaulle in a radio broadcast to the French people.

He predicted that other French overseas possessions will follow the example of equatorial Africa and the mandated Cameroons.

The British ministry of information announced that Gen. George Catroux, former governor general of French Indo-China and one of France's best known military leaders, has joined the "free French forces" of De Gaulle.

Catroux was relieved of his post at Saigon by the Petain government at Vichy after the surrender to Germany because he opposed the capitulation, it was stated.

The French Cameroons and the Congo "virtually constitute the whole of French equatorial Africa," De Gaulle said, and "this vital development will have a deep influence on the conduct of the war."

(In Vichy, the French government of Marshal Henry Philippe Petain confirmed that three French colonies have thrown in their lot with De Gaulle to continue the war against Germany and Italy—the Cameroons, New Caledonia, in the South Pacific, and the Chad Territory).

[The Associated Press reported that not only were native troops available in those areas but that there were "a certain number" of planes there.]

The territories which have swung over to De Gaulle's leadership, together with the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and British Nigeria, provide a solid bulwark across Africa from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean and the Red Sea, it was pointed out by British authorities.

Simultaneous with his radio announcement, De Gaulle, who is under sentence of death by the Petain government on charges of treason, named Gen. de Larminat as new high commissioner of French equatorial Africa. De Larminat becomes commander of the army, navy and air force in all the French equatorial colonies.

Boy, 15, Shot Accidentally By Best Friend

RICHARD BRADSHAW
"I Slipped . . . the Gun Went Off . . ."

EDGAR MELIA
Wounded by Playmate's Gun

Edgar Melia, 15, was near death in Georgetown Hospital last night, accidentally shot in the back by his best friend, Richard (Richie) Bradshaw, 12, who was hunting crows with a .22-caliber rifle his father had forbidden him to use.

Doctors performed an emergency operation on Edgar late yesterday afternoon. They said the bullet passed through his abdomen and lodged just under the skin in the front. He suffered critical internal injuries, it was said.

Both boys, with Edgar's stepbrother, Roy, 16, and another playmate, Jerry Jennings, 12, all of Wheaton, Md., were hunting on the farm of William Weiser, which adjoins the Melia property, on the Wheaton-Four Corners road.

Richard said he was using his father's gun despite the fact that he had been warned never to use the weapon unless his father was with him. Edgar, Richard said, was using a similar gun which he had borrowed from Alfred Jennings, Jerry's brother.

"We were back in the woods hunting crows," Richard said last night. "I had just taken a shot and was getting ready to put in another bullet. When I pulled the handle the gun slipped and fell to the ground. It went off and the bullet struck Edgar in the back. He was standing in front of me."

Edgar was taken to a physician's office in Silver Spring, Md., by Alfred Jennings, but was advised to take him to the hospital immediately.

Silver Spring police last night said there was no question the shooting was accidental.

town suffered its heaviest raid of the war today. Incendiary bombs plummeted down on one of its main streets, struck a vicarage and a cattle market. Casualties were not immediately determined. Residents took shelter in hotel basements and available underground hideouts, as the raiders crossed the town again and again.

High-flying raiders also were active over northeastern coastal cities, weathering an intensive anti-aircraft barrage. Flares were seen dropping, followed by heavy explosions. Water mains in some country districts were broken.

The London raid began as anti-aircraft fire roared out in only one suburb. Thus, a "nuisance" visitation was under way—one designed not so much to destroy buildings as to strain London nerves.

The heart of the city was curiously quiet this morning. Searchlights sent aloft their beams only intermittently.

Meanwhile, other raiders were over other British towns—northeast, northwest, southwest, southeast.

Summing up yesterday's daylight operations, the ministry of home security declared the Germans had machine-gunned civilians in the Scilly Isles and in a southwest town, that a "small number" of civilians had been injured, and some fires set off by Nazi incendiary bombs. Nine German planes were declared shot down yesterday, against three British craft lost.

Yesterday afternoon, British fighter planes had put to rout a 200-plane wave of German bombers which was heading for London.

A big formation of German fighter craft was beaten off, too, on the outskirts of a south coast town at 20,000 feet. They centered their attack on British barrage balloons, using aerial cannon. Three planes were destroyed in that single engagement, one of them British.

This, however, came during a comparative lull in the vast aerial battle of island and continent, and it took second place to the accounts by the young men of two R. A. F. squadrons who, in the words of the air ministry, rained "high explosive and incendiary bombs on a series of carefully selected military objectives and on works vital to airplane production" in Berlin Wednesday midnight.

Authorized accounts told of an eager scramble for places in the British planes; in one case, a coin was tossed to decide which pilot would get a seat, and then the beeline flight to Berlin.

"We took seven hours exactly," said one pilot.

Typical was a captain's story of an assault on a power station:

"We bombed at midnight exactly . . . Somebody had been here before us . . . When we arrived we found the target well on fire . . . We could see it when we were 25 minutes' flying time away . . . We put our stick of bombs down just to the left of this big fire . . . Then four more fires started . . . They were burning with very bright, white lights . . . Altogether we were cruising around over Berlin for about half an hour."

The main target was stated officially to have been "only 4 miles from the center of Berlin.

Norse Royalty Are Roosevelt Guests at Fair

President Proudly Shows Grange Work To Princess and Sons

royal family, refugees from a country conquered by the Nazis, found a temporary haven in the serene Hudson Valley home of the Chief Executive and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The crown princess and her children, Princess Ragnhild, 10; Princess Astrid, 8, and Prince Harald, 3, drove up from New York City this morning in time for lunch.

Envoy Present

They were accompanied by the Countess Ragni Ostgard, lady in waiting; her son, Einar, 11; Wedel Jarlsberg, master of the Norwegian court; the Norwegian Minister to the United States, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, and Mrs. Morgenstierne; Capt. Daniel J. Callaghan, the President's naval aide, and George T. Summerlin, State Department protocol chief.

All were luncheon guests, but only the members of the royal family and the Ostgaards remained, for perhaps a week's stay, while efforts are made to find them a more permanent home in America.

Mr. Roosevelt spoke with pride of the prize-winning exhibit of his grange, with its bins of vegetables and fruits and home-canned produce.

Fred B. Pulling, of LaGrangeville, a past deputy master of Dutchess County Grange, pointed out a vinegar barrel to the President, and said he couldn't tell what was in another one.

"Probably cider," the Chief Executive remarked. "If it isn't, it ought to be."

Turning to the crown princess, he asserted: "That's my grange."

White House officials, meanwhile, said it was a safe bet that Mr. Roosevelt would listen in on Secretary Wallace's acceptance address tonight.

To Speak Tomorrow

The President arranged to make a short, informal talk of his own Saturday at an annual reception given him by neighbors and friends who are members of the Roosevelt home club.

Harry L. Hopkins, who resigned as Secretary of Commerce because of bad health, also accepted an invitation to speak.

Presidential aides said Mr. Roosevelt's talk would be only of "local interest." Dutchess County residents wondered whether he might take cognizance of reports that Hopkins would become superintendent of the Franklin D. Roosevelt library and archives here.

Defense Plan Boon To Needy Blind

way, officials say, for regulations provide that each soldier must have two, in addition to a gun, bayonet, blankets and uniform.

The corner the Nation's blind women have on the Government's pillow-case business results from a law passed by Congress two years ago. It provides that all "brooms, mops and other suitable commodities" purchased for Federal use must be obtained from the blind, as far as they can meet the need. An inter-departmental committee was set up to fix the prices of such goods and administer the act.

Robert LeFevre, executive member of the committee, said yesterday that under a policy laid down by the group, blind men produce brooms, mops, door-mats and mattresses for the Government and blind women, pillow-cases. There hasn't been the boom in brooms, mops and door-mats that there has in pillow-slips, he said, though the Army program has stepped up mattress buying.

The blind workers are paid the prevailing wage of the localities for such work, Mr. LeFevre said. Most of them live in institutions where they receive room and board, earning pocket money by their handicraft. Between January 1, 1939, and March 15, 1940, the blind of the country earned $341,964 for making such products for the Government.

"The work is valuable for psychological reasons as well as to give them spending money," he explained. "They don't make a great deal, but most of them can turn out as much work as people who have their sight. You'd be surprised how skillful they become."

Political Arena

Five "isolationist" Senators last night announced a "hands-off" policy toward the week-end peace rally in Chicago.

SEN. NYE

Senators Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and Clark (Republican), of Idaho, listed in the Daily Worker, Communist publication, as speakers, said they would not attend and so notified the sponsors. Senators Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana; Capper (Republican), of Kansas, and Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado, also said they were not going. The latter three had been named in the New Leader, New York publication, as speakers.

The Chicago rally is the outgrowth of a resolution adopted in July by the American Youth Congress and coincides with activities of the Committee to Defend America by Keeping Out of War.

New York, Aug. 29 (INS).—Betting odds that President Roosevelt would be reelected lengthened today in Wall Street, where 7 to 5 was offered in one commission of $3,500 and 6 to 4 in another of $1,500. The previous odds of 6 to 5 stand, however, until the new offers are taken.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, who says that in past Presidential years he has been able to name the likely winner by September 1, asserted today he was "completely up in the air" this year because "neither of the major party nominees are discussing the real issues."

He asserted that both President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie "are doing a bad job in statesmanship and political leadership—not a good job."

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, said today he would "do anything" in the campaign that Democratic Chairman Edward J. Flynn wanted him to do, but that at the moment he had no plans to take an active part.

Roosevelt was interviewed before he left by airplane for Chicago en route to Los Angeles.

Petition Asks Congressional Club Bankruptcy

A petition asking that the 18-year-old Congressional Country Club be declared bankrupt was filed yesterday in Federal District Court at Baltimore by several second-trust bondholders. The petition asked also that a proposed reorganization of the club, which the bondholders contended would imperil their interests, be stayed.

According to the petition, the bondholders own more than $5,000 in second mortgage bonds. Liabilities of the club are represented as $444,634.23 and assets as $406,496. Suit was instituted through the firm of Colladay, McGarraghy, Colladay and Wallace, whose senior member, Edward F. Colladay, is a petitioner.

The Congressional Country Club was organized in 1924 and a golf course laid out and a clubhouse built in Montgomery County, Md. Former President Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, was its first president.

faction with certain New Deal policies, received a letter from Mr. Roosevelt at the time expressing the President's "deep appreciation for your loyal and able help during a difficult period."

Burke Rushes Plans

Burke, chairman of the special Senate Judiciary subcommittee, rushed plans for the hearing as the Senate paid a round of glowing tributes to James A. Farley, retiring as Postmaster General Saturday to take over the New York Yankees following cleavage with the President on the third-term issues.

Seven Senators, led by Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, rose to applaud Farley's record of services and human qualities. Mead said "men and women in every walk of life know and regard Jim Farley as a personal friend," while Senator Wagner, of New York, praised Farley's "great qualities, leadership and loyalty."

The lone Republican to rise, Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, said that despite political differences, he regards the Postmaster General as a close personal friend, "one of the greatest and most colorful figures in a generation and one of the rarest human souls in our time."

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, lauded Farley as "honest, straightforward, efficient and very, splendid," and Senator Ellison D. "Cotton Ed" Smith, of South Carolina, observed that when Farley "made a promise he kept it." Senate Majority Leader Barkley declared Farley has accumulated "the largest body of personal friends in the United States ever enjoyed by any public man."

When Farley steps out of the Cabinet tomorrow, Frank C. Walker, of New York, is favored to follow him as Postmaster General, if he is willing to take the post. An "acting" Postmaster General from the Department's official list may be named if Walker declines.

Occupied with conscription legislation for weeks, Senator Burke, one of the first Democrats to bolt to Willkie, will lay his own proposed Constitutional amendment and a resolution by Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, before his subcommittee. The Burke proposal calls for a single Presidential term of six years, while the Bridges measure would constitutionally limit Presidential tenure to two terms.

Asked if Ickes would testify, Burke predicted his committee would formally invite him. "As the foremost exponent of the third term, I think it is his public duty to give his views here," said Burke. "I would like to hear Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as well, if he wishes."

A long list of historians, political economists and college officials, many of whom appeared against the court bill, will be asked for their views. James Truslow Adams, historian and third-term opponent, already has prepared a statement, but may be unable to personally present it because of illness. William Starr Myers, professor of politics at Princeton, and President William A. Eddy, of Hobart College, are among the many educators invited to testify.

Told that Ickes will be invited, Senator Smith, of South Carolina, one of the Senate's most outspoken third-term opponents, said in that case he might ask for time before the subcommittee.

Burke predicted hearings would run about two weeks.

Wallace's Address Text, Calling G. O. P. 'Appeasement Party'

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 29.—The following is the text of the speech tonight by Henry A. Wallace accepting the Democratic Vice Presidential nomination and entitled "The New Fight for Freedom:"

Mr. Chairman and Ladies and Gentlemen:

You are officially conferring upon me tonight the greatest honor of my life. The office of Vice President under the Constitution serves in a unique way as a link between the Executive and Legislative branches of our Government.

And it is an unusually great honor to be the running mate of the one man who, more than any other, represents security for democracy in the modern world.

For nearly eight years President Roosevelt has battled for democracy and freedom, for their preservation at home and abroad.

Both Germany and the United States were shaken to the depths by the crisis of 1932. Germany met that crisis with dictatorship and Hitler. The United States met it with democracy and Roosevelt.

Hitler believed in government by a band of Nazi overlords, with Hitler himself as the dictator at the top. Roosevelt believed in government by the people and for the people.

Hitler believed in reducing the status of working men and women to that of serfs. Roosevelt believed in putting the common man first—improving his wages and working conditions and upholding in law the right of collective bargaining.

Hitler believed in dominating both individuals and nations by force. Roosevelt believed in the good neighbor policy, among individuals and among nations.

Hitler believed in war through preparedness. Roosevelt believed in peace through preparedness.

Hitler believed in barter deals, so as to fight his economic war preliminary to military war. Roosevelt believed in freer world trade and a higher standard of living for all nations.

Hitler believed that all freedom must be crushed. Roosevelt believed in freedom of speech, press and religion—which we in America hold dearer than life itself.

Adolf Hitler was the implacable enemy of all democracy. Franklin Roosevelt was its eager servant and faithful defender before the whole world.

Tens of millions of Americans shared the Roosevelt belief in 1933. But not one in a million saw so early and so clearly as he the world-shaking significance of the Hitler doctrine.

Only Roosevelt had the unusual combination of many months spent as a boy in European countries, a comprehensive knowledge of history, experience as Assistant Secretary of the Navy in the First World War, access to the day-by-day information brought in by the trained observers in the State Department, and wisdom to relate that information to its significance for America.

Thus it was that Roosevelt, earlier than almost anyone else, saw that the dominating world issue was freedom and a higher standard of living versus slavery and a lower standard of living for all except the Nazi governing class. Week after week and year after year I have sat in Cabinet meetings and heard the complete accord between the President and Secretary Hull on this issue when most Americans were not aware of the terrible storm cloud on the horizon.

Time after time the President voiced the broadest possible warnings to the public in an effort to stir our people from their slumber. For these efforts he was charged with being a war-monger. But the President kept on telling the truth as he saw it, and events have proved both the sincerity of his warnings and the accuracy of his judgment.

Turning to the farm issue the candidate said the G. O. P. has selected "a campaign manager who in 15 years in Congress has never voted for one vital and constructive farm law."

Wallace also said the Republicans voted, 106 to 38, against appropriations for commodity loans on farm crops "four weeks ago in Congress."

"Mind you," he observed, "this attempt to deal a mortal blow to the farm program was made only five weeks after the Republican Party in solemn convention had pledged itself to help the farmer, including in such help commodity loans. . . . The Republican leaders say nice things about the farm program to get votes from the farmer. But when it comes to voting for the farmer, they don't deliver the goods."

Wallace Calls For Third Term

sition will, if the Republicans come into power, force us to make one economic concession after another to the totalitarian countries.

"These appeasers will have their way if the Republicans win, because they have contributed largely, both politically and financially, to the Republican cause. These people believe the Republicans in power would give them profitable business with a German-controlled Europe at the earliest possible moment."

"Those who stand for business appeasement with Germany," he continued, "are the backbone, even though unwittingly, of the most dangerous of all Fifth Columns.

"For the sake of a profit in 1941 they would sell out their own future and their children's freedom."

Wallace linked the economic destinies of nations in the Western Hemisphere with the outcome of the present European conflict.

"It is a war," he said, "to prevent the people of North and South America from developing their resources without paying tribute to Europe, and without being victims of European secret police serving a self-appointed master race."

The Vice Presidential nominee characterized President Roosevelt as a symbol of democracy, particularly to the Western nations.

"He has proved his friendship for them by more than seven years of fair dealing as a good neighbor," the speaker said. "Hitler must not be permitted to break the solidarity of the Americas.

"If the Americas present to the Axis powers the same divided front as the democracies of Europe presented them, we shall assuredly walk the same path of destruction and lost freedom."

Both Germany and the United States were shaken in 1932 by the depression, he continued, but "Germany met that crisis with dictatorship. The United States met it with democracy and Roosevelt."

POLITICAL PICKET—Farmer C. C. Armstrong displayed his politics on his back yesterday as he "picketed" Vice Presidential Candidate Wallace's notification ceremonies at Des Moines, Iowa. Candidate Wallace (right) smiled approval

no matter what happened to Asia, no matter what might be our relationship to Latin America. When Roosevelt tried to adjust the internal affairs of the United States to a sick world, they fought him at home as Hitler fought him abroad.

Some of the bitter attacks on Roosevelt's program were directly inspired by the agents of Hitler in this country. Others were merely blindly partisan. But, whatever the motive, the effect was the same—these attacks on Roosevelt and his program played into the hands of Hitler. Every evidence of opposition to Roosevelt within the United States has been reason for rejoicing in Berlin.

For more than seven years, Roosevelt has been working steadily to help the American people build an up-to-date democracy capable of bringing security to the families of this nation. Farm income and factory pay rolls, the two strong legs of recovery, have both been more than doubled. Business profits have been restored and increased.

The danger to democracy from within, which threatened us in 1932, has been safely met. The Roosevelt remedy was not a resort to dictatorship, which so many conservatives were demanding in 1933, but merely simply more democracy. The Roosevelt programs gave more power to the people.

Now we have launched a great national effort to build up our defenses against the threat from abroad. Under the leadership of Roosevelt, this effort was begun several years ago. We now have nearly twice as many airplanes as in 1933 and double the tonnage of fighting ships afloat or under construction. We have more than doubled our Army. This is a splendid start, but it is only a start. It will be pushed until America is fully prepared to defend herself against any emergency.

Like the measures of economic adjustment, defense preparation also met with short-sighted obstructionist tactics. Why build so many airplanes? Why build another set of locks at the Panama Canal? Why spend Government money to store up strategic war materials? Why create a Tennessee Valley Authority to harness the power and water and soil resources of a great region, against a day of military need?

To some extent those interests obstructing the national defense did have their way. They caused appropriations to be whittled down, and brought needless delays. The TVA was fought in Congress, in the courts and in the press. Even a few weeks ago this opposition was still trying to block the building of one more TVA dam, the power from which is needed in producing aluminum that is indispensable for our airplanes. Fortunately that particular opposition has been overcome. But of the 93 votes cast against this measure in the House on July 30, every one was a Republican vote. Such resistance to our military progress was encouraging to Hitler, but it was definitely injurious to our own welfare.

Now, at last, some of the Republicans are beginning to see that the Nation really is in danger. National defense is going ahead, and the whole country can give thanks that the program is in such wise and experienced hands.

The total defense of modern war requires thousands of officers and men skilled in the mechanics of the gas engine, the airplane and the tank. We must not only construct a gia... air force but know how to operate and service it. We must protect the Panama Canal. We must enforce the Monroe Doctrine with an increased Navy, with air bases and through cooperation with Canada and the rest of the Americas. By preparing completely now, we shall have the best chance of keeping out of war.

But we must face the fact that the dictators have definite designs against this hemisphere. Their tactics here as in Europe are to divide and conquer. They hope by propaganda and bartering agreements to set one nation against another. They hope to set each class against another class. They inspire a multitude of angry voices in every democratic nation. Out of the confusion which they have created they hope to build political power and eventually military power.

The fact that our Presidential campaign and election come now is most welcome to the dictators. They hope to get rid of the unyielding Roosevelt. They know that a political campaign is distracting to our people. And they know that in the many months that would elapse before a new administration could act effectively, they might have their chance.

I do not wish to imply that the Republican leaders are willfully and consciously giving aid and comfort to Hitler. But I want to emphasize that replacement of Roosevelt, even if it were by the most patriotic leadership that could be found, would cause Hitler to rejoice. I do not believe the American people will turn their backs on the man that Hitler wants to see defeated.

In the opinion of the world—in the eyes of the Nazis and of the stricken nations under their heel—Roosevelt has become the symbol of democracy. And more important, he is the symbol of democracy to all the nations of this hemisphere. He has proved his friendship for them by more than seven years of fair dealing as a good neighbor. Hitler must not be permitted to break the solidarity of the Americas.

If the Americas present to the axis powers the same divided front as the democracies of Europe presented to them, we shall assuredly walk the same path of destruction and lost freedom. In the United States, as well as in the other Americas, we find certain men who for purposes of their own profit want England to give up her fight against Hitler and who are strong for economic appeasement between the Americas and a German-controlled Europe. In that direction lies slavery, even though it is sugar-coated with promises of prosperity. Those who stand for business appeasement with Germany are the backbone, even though unwittingly, of the most dangerous of all fifth columns. For the sake of a profit in 1941 they would sell out their own future and their children's freedom. The business men of Western Europe followed this path to their sorrow. If we of the Americas are not made of sterner stuff, we shall go down as they have gone down. Our weapons are unity for total defense and a determination not to engage in economic appeasement.

Here in this country we are developing preparedness on all fronts.

On the agricultural front we have stored in the ever normal granary tremendous reserve supplies, while at the same time by commodity loans we have protected farm prices and the purchasing power of farmers for city goods. We have increased our soil fertility. In every county and every township there are farmer committees which are prepared to meet any defense need involving agriculture.

The farm program has been such a success that Republican leaders are now commending it in the hope of getting farm votes next November. But the real attitude of the Republicans, which for many years has been against farmers' interests, has been revealed anew by two things that have happened in the last few weeks, since the Republicans adopted their platform and nominated their candidate.

One is the selection of a Republican campaign manager who in 15 years in Congress has never voted for one vital and constructive farm law. The other is the vote in Congress four weeks ago on funds for commodity loans—the loans on corn, on wheat, on cotton, which bring about the storage of reserve supplies and protect farmers' prices and income. Democrats voted 100 per cent for these loans. Republicans, led by the personally-selected Republican campaign manager, voted 106 to 38 against them. Mind you, this attempt to deal a mortal blow to the farm program was made only five weeks after the Republican Party in convention had solemnly pledged itself to help the farmer, including in such help commodity loans. And it was made only four days before the farmers were given assurances by the Republican standard bearer right here in Des Moines that their program would not be harmed. The Republican leaders say nice things about the farm program to get votes from the farmer. But when it comes to voting for the farmer, they don't deliver the goods.

There are now enough Democrats in Congress to protect the farmers against attempts like this to hamstring their program. Those Democrats will be needed again and again after the November election.

On the social security preparedness front the Administration has started the job of taking care of our aged and unemployed. Continually we have put human values first. We believe that no one who is willing to work should be allowed to starve. We have improved the health of millions by means of food stamp and school lunch programs.

We have stood at all times for national unity. To aid in our national defense we have called in the best men regardless of party. In terms of action, the National Defense Commission represents splendid cooperation between agriculture, labor, industry and government. We are obtaining national unity on the fifth column front by enlisting in a commonsense way the cooperation of local and State authorities. We are determined to break up the gigantic international conspiracy through which the Nazis are trying to subjugate our country.

A materialistic religion of darkness, based on force and lies and led by prophets of evil, is striding across the world. This war is more than a clash of rival imperialisms. It is a war to destroy freedom and democracy. It is a war to prevent the people of North and South America from developing their resources without paying tribute to Europe and without being victims of European secret police serving a self-appointed master race. There is no denying the strength and fanatical zeal of this satanic doctrine. It transcends economics and politics to invade the personal life. It proclaims might as the supreme god and the new Nazi master race as the mightiest of all, with a special destiny to direct and exploit and enslave every people in the world.

Against this dark and bloody faith we of the New World set the faith of Americanism, of Protestantism, of Catholicism, of Judaism. Our faith is based on belief that the possibilities in an individual are not determined by race, social background or wealth. We believe in the maximum of freedom which can be obtained without anarchy or intolerance. Democracy is the very heart of the religions which have the largest following in the United States. Democracy and Americanism are identical. Both are utterly opposed to totalitarianism with its exaltation of might, its suppression of freedom, and its claims to racial supremacy.

I am happy to respond to the notification ceremonies this evening with an acceptance, because I believe the Democratic Party under the leadership of President Roosevelt is far better equipped than the opposition to preserve the freedom of the Americas. He has understood the Hitler menace from the start. Powerful elements in our opposition will, if the Republicans come into power, force us to make one economic concession after another to the totalitarian countries. These appeasers will have their way if the Republicans win, because they will have contributed so largely, both politically and financially, to the Republican cause. These people believe the Republicans in power would give them profitable business with a German-controlled Europe at the earliest possible moment. Most Republicans may not realize it, but their party is the party of appeasement in the United States today. It is the party which the totalitarian powers will back in every way possible. Of all men in the United States, Roosevelt best knows the danger of making economic concessions to the dictators.

Between now and November, I propose to do everything I can to arouse the American people to the need for peace through preparedness, to the importance of the Americas and to the duty of business men, workers and farmers to cooperate together for full employment and for the national defense. For I sincerely believe the Democratic Party under Roosevelt will best give us a higher standard of living, unity within our own country, safety from external aggression and freedom on this hemisphere for ourselves and our children.

NEW NIGHT CLUBS: Mme. Rumor, the pretty trick, is spreading talk about a flock of new night spots due to open this fall. . . . But it's sure that one new place with full floor show and orchestra will blossom in the downtown sector. . . . And if certain director's meetings now being held in New York have a happy ending, there'll be a new topflight luxury spot right in the heart of the financial district. . . . And the owner of one of Chicago's biggest night spots is now shopping around Washington for a good location. . . . And there is more or less well-based talk about a new setup in the closed Flagship and a "Beachcombers' Club." . . . It looks as if the answer to that old query, "What's new?" is going to be "Plenty."

Matt Windsor will be back making music in the Anchor Room next week after his month's vacation. . . . Frank Meyer, who's subbed elegantly for Matt, will take his new accordion to Mayfair and join "Mousey" Garner's crew. With Frank at the piano, "Mousey" can step out in the middle of Mayfair and really go to town with his clowning.

"THREE STARS" BACK IN NEPTUNE. "Curly," "Smiley" and "Reds" are again stirring up rhythm in Neptune. Meaning that our town's pet combination of "Curly" Fox, Jimmy Smiley and the one-and-only Evelyn Tyner has been again ensconced in Neptune at the customers' insistence. They'll remain for a couple of weeks, at least . . . That paddle-wheel gadget on top of Jimmy Smiley's electric organ is his own invention. It intensifies tremolo effects.

HOMETOWN GIRL MAKES GOOD. Lee Loyes, dancing star at Casino Royal, is known to thousands of Washingtonians. Four years ago she was head check girl at the Wardman Park Hotel, studied dancing on the side. Then she married her young dance instructor, Hughie O'Donnell. Now they're O'Donnell and Loyes' ballroom dancers, with loads of bookings all around the country, thank you. Their act is swell, especially the "Rhythm in a Top Hat" . . . Another current and choice Casino Royal star is Len Lenihan, acrotap dancer.

SATURDAYS SUPERB. Both the big Palm Room and the cocktail lounge at Maryland Gardens are always jam-packed on week-ends. The folks who come to M. G. on one Saturday are always back the next—with more friends. The "Continental Revue," presented at 9:30 and midnight, is a diller with a hula-dancing chorus, emcee Sidney Boyd doing resonant baritone solos and comedienne Yvonne Logan in a bouncing version of "Ferdinand" . . . Nadine's Co-Eds will remain. Their contract, due to expire on Labor Day, has been extended indefinitely. They've had offers from Florida, New York, New Jersey and Ohio. But like Maryland Gardens best.

Arthur Todd, of the King Cole Room, will organize his own band this fall and open in a prominent Washington spot. Later in the winter he expects to take his new orchestra to New York's Rainbow Grill.

MUSICIANS' MOVES. The Rainbow Room orchestra will shortly be enriched by accordionist Davy Crocker and drummer-singer Ralph Cannon. . . . Mayflower's impresario, Maurice Kafka, tells us that Frank Coviello will leave the Mayflower Lounge next week to piano at the Earle Theater, that Ralph Hawkins (former Madrillon, Artie Shaw and Harry James) will join N. B. C. and the Sidney-Kafka organization, that Toby Tyler (former Krupa and Woody Harman) will join the Capitol Theater orchestra.

RIVIERA LOUNGING. News commentator H. R. Baukhage apparently enjoying "Two in a Taxi," hit tune from "Keep Off the Grass" that recently nose-dived with Ray Bolger and Jimmy Durante . . . Singer Harriet Derck has a new "up" hair-do. Pretty . . . There's talk of the Riviera being enlarged this fall.

The "Cocoanut Grove Revue," straight from Boston's Cocoanut Grove, will open in the Lotus next Monday. This is another Tom Ball show, meaning that it's big, glossy and spectacular.

GAY 90'S WEEK-ENDS are something scrumptious. Tonight and tomorrow there'll be floor revues headed by Teddy Buccolo with the Wasteland Boys, recently starred at the Atlas Theater, and Felice and Jimmy Page, harmonizing brother and sister. Sweet but dynamic dance music by Al Oddone and his band. The floor shows start at 11:30.

CONFIDENTIALLY — ABOUT GLEN ECHO MUSICOS. Trumpeter Jack Torry used to be a traveling salesman for ladies' underwear. . . . Woodcarving is the hobby of drummer Sammy Ferro. His masterpieces leave his friends speechless . . . Trombonist George Smith is the son of a Northwest mountie, was born in the Canadian woods . . . Pianist Ken Foy cuts his own hair.

Flash! Flash! Name of the Carlton's Shar-Zad was changed to the Sapphire Room five minutes before this was written. Be ready for the gr-grand opening of the Sapphire Room on September 13. The new decorations are astronomical—really. Particulars in our next.

POPULAR PEOPLE. Andy Miller, chef and part owner of the New Bavarian. Andy's a great one for circulating around at lunch time and chatting with his favorite customers. . . . Owner Louis Rosenfeld, cordial owner of the Rustic Cabin. All the regular patrons are his friends and all the casual customers soon become regular customers. . . . Oscar of the Hi Hat, whose beaming smile has been so much missed during his vacation. . . . Owner Dick Ashby of Dick's Grill, who knows every musician in the city. . . . Herbie Sachs, Del Rio's handsome head man who mysteriously remains a bachelor. . . . Suave Bob McLaughlin, manager at O'Donnell's Farms, who looks out so well for everyone's comfort.

EGYPTIAN BALLET will dazzle Shoreham Terrace next week. It will be done by Harriet Smith's Five Lovely Ladies who recently completed four years at Chicago's Edgewater Beach Hotel. Also in the revue will be Comedian Stanley Rich and dancers St. Clair and Day.

Worry of FALSE TEETH Slipping or Irritating

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wabbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug store. Adv.

'Cold Terror' By Mexico's Nazis Charged

German Residents Forced to Support Movement, Is Claim

Copyright by New York Times

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 29.—"Cold" terrorism, without bloodshed but with psychological and economic compulsions to make its victims conform to party demands, is the name Mexicans have for Nazi methods that have been extremely successful in regimenting the German community in Mexico into a well-organized organization for the promotion of Chancellor Hitler's aims in Latin America.

German firms have been strongly established in Mexican commercial and industrial life for many years, especially in drugs and chemicals, hardware, machinery and mining equipment. As soon as Herr Hitler took power in 1933 the Nazi Party began seizing control of long-established German commercial, social, cultural, religious and athletic organizations, ousting old officials and installing "good" Nazis.

In 1935 Dr. Heinrich Northe, then first secretary of legation, reorganized the Mexican section of the Nazi Party as controlling power over all Reich subjects and began propaganda to spread Nazi influence among the Mexican public.

Mexican Nazis are obliged to devote week-ends, holidays and spare time to drills and other activities. All German children are required to join the Hitler Youth, which has headquarters at a German school, where the swastika emblem is prominently displayed. Even students of Mexican parents and birth must give the Hitler salute and swear loyalty to him.

After Dr. Northe was transferred to Shanghai, Arthur Dietrich, press attache of the legation, became head of Nazi Party work, until expelled from the country in June for subversive activities. Under Dietrich's high-pressure methods "cold" terror was applied ruthlessly to Germans who failed to take part actively in party organization. Gestapo agents were assigned to see that all Germans carried out orders and made appearance at propaganda lectures, movies and the like.

Many Germans who were neither non-Nazi or anti-Nazi, were coerced nto party support by boycotts of their business enterprises, threats against themselves and families, and especially against their relatives and friends in Germany. Similar threats have forced many Germans to quit the anti-Nazi German Culture League in Mexico and to keep silent when official investigators have sought information. They make it clear that they fear the Nazis some day will control the Mexican government and take vegeance on any one who has given information or worked against them.

Dietrich also attempted to apply this method of terrorism against nationals of countries seized by Germany and against refugees from Germany and occupied territories with varying success.

He had greater success in forcing Mexican newspapers and radio stations to adopt a strongly pro-Nazi and anti-American tone by organizing all German advertisers into a solid bloc, which he controlled, so that he could grant or withhold tremendous amounts of advertising revenue at will. In addition, he subsidized certain papers and reportedly regular payments to certain writers, editors and radio commentators.

The result was not only a flood of Nazi propaganda, but also suppression or distortion, especially in headlines, of much impartial news from American news agencies. Dietrich also controlled the Communist and left labor press, which "class-angled" its news as always, but with a Nazi as well as a Communist slant.

Since Dietrich has been ousted, the new No. 1 Nazi remains incognitio, although the assistant manager of a German bank, known to be a militant Nazi, is suspected.

Hans Burandt, the commercial attache, is active in organizing German business firms and their Mexican employes for party work in cooperation with officials of the German Chamber of Commerce. The legation has about 25 regular employes, besides volunteers supplied by business firms for special jobs, which diplomatic circles regard as excessive for any normal legation work.

The German Club, to which only "true blue" or "racially pure" Germans belong, is the core of the "German popular community in Mexico," to which all Germans have to contribute. A special collection raised $200,000 at the war's start, partly by "cold terror" pressure. Additional assessments for special purposes are made from time to time, besides a regular monthly "tax" on all German firms, organizations and individuals.

Under party pressure, German business houses also gather and supply the legation and other Nazis with military, political and industrial information, spread Nazi ideas by word of mouth among Mexican customers and distribute propaganda circulars and pamphlets. Some German houses act as agents for United States products whose sale in Mexico affords profits from which a certain percentage goes to Nazi funds for anti-American propaganda.

Senate Hears Eulogy of Dead Press Chief

Majority Leader Barkley yesterday paid tribute to the memory of William J. Collins, superintendent of the Senate press gallery, who died Wednesday, and the standing committee of correspondents of the press galleries of Congress adopted resolutions of regret.

"All those who knew him and were associated with him had the greatest respect for him," Senator Barkley said. "He was a man of the highest standards of moral conduct, official integrity, patriotism, and loyalty to American institutions.

"The untimely death of a man no older than he was seems a real pity. I am sure that I not only express the feeling of all Senators in regretting his premature death but in expressing our appreciation of his loyalty and high standards of life not only during his services in connection with the Senate but during his entire life."

The committee of correspondents declared in their resolution that Washington newspaper men "have lost an outstanding friend and coworker."

Collins, during his 32 years' service in the Senate press gallery, the resolution said, "has gained recognition and respect from members of the press and public officials."

The standing committee will attend the funeral tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the Holy Trinity Church, Thirty-sixth and O streets northwest.

The following committee will represent the National Press Club at the funeral of Mr. Collins: Harvey D. Jacob, James D. Preston, James North, Charles A. Hamilton, Clergue Schilling, William J. Donaldson, Russell Riordon, Harry Ward, Ewing H. Scott, Charles O. Gridley, Edwin W. Gableman, Paul J. McGahan, James Shay, Homer J. Dodge, Charles E. Stewart.

Arms Plant Blast Kills 10 in Italy

Rome (Friday), Aug. 30 (AP).—An explosion in a Bologna munitions factory last night killed ten persons and injured many others. Big fires broke out and flames caught a nearby pavilion as firemen fought the blaze.

Troops and Red Cross workers, engaged in rescue work early today hunting for victims and removing the injured, Fascist officials also went to the scene in an attempt to determine the cause.

The Konoye Committee

The frequent changes which have taken place in the Japanese cabinet during the last three years have all been directly or indirectly the product of the undeclared war on China.

During these years Japan's military forces have achieved one victory after another. According to the calculations of the Japanese high command, the outcome of these battles should have forced the Chinese to give up long ago. But nothing of the kind has happened. The Chinese still fight on.

For this unpleasant circumstance the military leaders of Japan eschew all blame. They have persistently attributed Japan's failure in China to civilian bungling. The successive governments at Tokyo have been the scapegoats. But changing the political guard has had no more constructive results for Japan than winning military victories.

Consequently, an increasing number of Japanese have for some time been insisting that it is not enough to replace one premier by another. What is needed, it has been argued, is a fundamental alteration in the political setup at Tokyo. And, in view of the successes scored by Hitler, the totalitarian system has won many adherents in the island empire. The Japanese have long since been known as skillful imitators.

In answer to this clamor, Prince Fumimaro Konoye, now again premier, has announced the creation of a "Preparatory Committee for the New National Structure." That body will have for its purpose, he has stated, the creation of a new political system combining the merits of fascism and democracy. But it will be organized along purely native lines suited to Japan. The land of the Rising Sun cannot take over the one-party system since that "would be contrary to the basic principle of our national policy of 'one sovereign over all.'"

Just what kind of a governmental order will emerge from the deliberations of the committee is difficult to envisage. Probably it will make precious little difference what form the new regime takes. The old system had its glaring faults. Some of these were undoubtedly the result of structural defects. But what Japan has suffered from during recent years is not political inadequacy but army domination. There is no sign that Prince Konoye or anyone else in Japan is as yet prepared to take that bull by the horns.

WPA And Defense

Nearly half a billion dollars of WPA expenditures have been used for national defense purposes to date, according to Howard O. Hunter, deputy Works Projects Commissioner. This is an imposing total, although it seems somewhat less impressive when broken down into annual outlays for the five-year period covered.

Mr. Hunter has been rather liberal in his definition of defense projects, putting all WPA outlays for airports and airway improvements into that category. Expenditures for such purposes totaled over $181,000,000 during the five-year period ended June 30. Nearly $150,000,000 was spent by the WPA in rehabilitating Army posts.

The shocking state of disrepair into which some of these posts were permitted to fall during the depression years was a public scandal, testifying to the indifference of the country and Congress toward national defense needs. In a number of instances, the improvements made by the WPA were the only important rehabilitation work attempted over a period of years.

During the coming year it is planned to concentrate efforts upon the construction and improvement of strategic roads and roads leading to military and naval reservations. Another promising development is the training of WPA workers for employment in defense industries. Regular vocational classes have been formed for that purpose as a WPA project sponsored jointly by the Defense Commission and the United States Office of Education.

One of the greatest weaknesses of the WPA has been its failure to equip men for useful work in private industry and its inability to find enough useful jobs to go around. In view of these handicaps the defense program affords a great opportunity for the WPA. That agency can now lay more stress upon the value of the service it performs and less upon the mere number of men employed. One can only hope that the useful tasks it is performing will not be employed as fresh arguments in favor of continuing to spend vast sums on less essential projects.

On Drafting Industry

The conscription bill passed the Senate carrying the so-called Russell amendment empowering the Government to take over plants and facilities for defense purposes if satisfactory agreements cannot be reached for production of necessary equipment. The proposal was denounced by some Senators as a form of industrial conscription bearing Hitler's stamp. Others approved it as an industrial counterpart of the drafting of young men into the armed services.

In the heat of the debate a good many Senators seemingly forgot that the problem of most pressing importance is to enlist the wholehearted support of industry so as to achieve maximum defense results. If it were necessary for the Government to take over and operate industrial plants to carry out the defense program, no valid objection could be raised to passing permissive legislation for that purpose. But there is no reason to suppose that a mere threat to dispossess recalcitrant industrialists would have much effect upon innumerable small subcontractors who are finding it difficult to operate under the Vinson-Trammell Act.

Obviously the Government could not successfully operate thousands of small concerns of this sort if it did take them over. So the controversial amendment to permit the drafting of industry is an ineffectual threat rather than a careful declaration of intention.

Moreover, if an emergency calling for drastic action should arise, a law passed in 1916 gives the President extensive powers in "time of actual or imminent war" to demand priority for Government orders for products and materials. Congress then made it a felony for a manufacturer to refuse to accept orders. And in case of noncompliance with demands the Government was authorized to take immediate possession of plants belonging to recalcitrants.

As a matter of fact, the power to demand priority in placement of orders would doubtless give the Government all the coercive power required to obtain the desired results.

At this moment the most pressing need is for prompt Congressional action on pending legislation and better teamwork on the part of the House and Senate. The two houses are now working at cross-purposes, adding to the confusion and uncertainty which largely accounts for the reluctance of some contractors to accept Government orders.

The Russell amendment, for example, is merely an extension and modification of a measure for drafting industry inserted in the Navy bill last June, applicable only to plants engaged on contracts for the Navy Department. The House has since voted to repeal that proviso—the repeal clause being inserted in the $5,000,000,000 defense appropriation bill now before the Senate.

A more serious mix-up is likely to result from the Senate amendment on the conscription bill extending the profits limitations of the Vinson-Trammell Act (now applicable only to aircraft and shipbuilding) to Army ordnance contracts. These restrictions are partly responsible for delays in placing airplane orders because many small concerns incidentally supplying airplane parts have no means of complying with the red-tape requirements of the law.

The excess-profits tax bill passed yesterday by the House calls for repeal of these special profits restrictions and application of a general tax on excess profits to all corporations. In voting to generalize and extend the profit restrictions imposed by the Vinson-Trammell Act the Senate has, therefore, acted contrary to the House program. The result may be further delay in stepping up actual production for defense.

With Congress unable to decide the terms on which the Government shall transact business, industry does not have a fair chance to cooperate with the defense program. Until the tax bill, with its appended amortization plan and provisions for repeal of profit restrictions, is finally enacted, the placement of orders is certain to be delayed. The Senate has reversed the logical order of procedure in voting to permit coercion of industry before it has even cleared the way for voluntary cooperation.

William J. Collins

The death of William J. Collins, superintendent of the Senate Press Gallery for the past nine years, will be deeply regretted by his multitude of friends and admirers in the newspaper profession, in Congress and in governmental circles.

It was many years ago that "Willie" Collins last worked on a newspaper. Yet his entire working life was bound up with journalism. From 1909 to 1913 he was in charge of the Senate Office Building press room. During the next 18 years he served as assistant superintendent of the Senate Press Gallery under "Jim" Preston and succeeded the latter.

Unfailingly helpful, he won the esteem and friendship of the working press for the effective manner in which he served as liaison between the Senate and the Fourth Estate.

Negotiated Contracts

Criticism of the awards made through negotiated Navy contracts to the firm of Laurence W. Robert, jr., secretary of the Democratic National Committee, draws attention to the difficulties confronting Government officials in such cases.

When contracts are awarded on a competitive basis to the lowest bidder, praise or blame does not attach to the officials allocating them unless there is evidence of dishonesty or evasion of the law. But when contracts are negotiated, a very great responsibility devolves upon the authorities to see that no favoritism is practiced.

For the sake of getting extraordinary defense work under way, it has been necessary to abandon the usual safeguards and permit contracts to be put through by direct negotiation. Criticism is almost certain to follow no matter how earnestly officials try to avoid all unfairness. And when a contracting firm is so much as suspected of having a political pull, the position is exceptionally awkward for the Government's negotiators.

The best defense against charges of unfairness lies in complete frankness. By giving full publicity to the nature, amount and conditions of awards, abuses will be reduced to a minimum. They cannot, of course, be entirely eliminated since the negotiated contract lends itself to abuse. That, however, is a risk which has to be run because of the exceptional nature of the emergency that confronts the country.

Sigh Of Relief

We can all rest a little easier in our minds now that Representative Dies has cleared Miss Luise Rainer and Messrs. Franchot Tone and Francis Lederer of the suspicion of being undercover agents of the Comintern. Although, says Mr. Dies, these three have contributed money to causes in which the Communists have had a fairly fat and none-too-clean finger, "there is no evidence that their cooperation was for any other purpose except humanitarian."

So that, thank Heaven, is that. It would have been terrible to think that the Red revolution was being presented to us in any such attractive packages. It would have been even more terrible to think of Hollywood on the brink of a great and perhaps bloody uprising of glamour gals and screen lovers. We could not have endured the thought of these favorites disposing of Messrs. Hayes, Breen and others and proceeding to confiscate their own incomes or to pillage their own chateaux. And the idea of a politbureau in the Brown Derby and an OGPU headquarters in the Wee Kirk of the Heather is simply intolerable.

There remains, of course, the doubtful case of Mr. Lionel Stander. Concerning the politico-philosophical status of Mr. Stander, Representative Dies has promised, after fuller investigation, to file a special report. But to delay for very long decision on so grave a matter would be a serious injustice both to Mr. Stander and to his public.

Moreover, it seems to us there is a very simple and almost infallible way of deciding the question once and for all. Instead of investigating Mr. Stander's current and recent activities, why not take a hint from the psychiatrists and look into the influences affecting his early life?

For example: Was the name "Lionel" inflicted on him by the cruel caprice of his parents? Or is it a name that, following a long-standing and well-known privilege of the theatrical world, he chose for himself? It is certainly unreasonable to expect that an infant so named at baptism could grow up into anything short of an anarchist or bolshevik, especially if he had also been made to wear a Lord Fauntleroy suit.

On the other hand, any man who chooses such a name of his own free will, while in full possession of his senses, automatically exculpates himself of any complicity whatever in the revolt of the masses.

Joseph In Egypt

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch

There are things in baseball that never get into the box score. Profound bits of philosophy, enunciation of eternal verities, affirmation of dogmatic postulates. Apropos that last item, consider the case of that once Cardinal luminary, Joseph Medwick.

How the Brooklyn Dodgers looked with longing eyes at walloping Joey was well known through all the degrees of fandom from the harmlessly deranged to the padded cells of the incurables. "Give us Medwick," said the redoubtable MacPhail, "and fond, devoted Brooklyn will cop the emblem of its heart's desire." "With Medwick in our line-up," confessed the taciturn tactician, Mr. Durocher, "and it's a promenade. Gaze any direction you will from Brooklyn Bridge, and Joisey Joe is our indispensable man."

Well, Brooklyn got Joe for a king's ransom and see where the Dodgers are now, and look at Medwick, benched for mediocrity, and peer through the front-office windows where the David Harums of the diamond, Messrs. Breadon and Rickey, are counting their gold, and behold the luckless Medwick, latest of the line to explode the myth of the forlorn, razzberried Mr. Indispensable.

Against The Draft

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many great nations of the past and present have resorted to compulsory military training, but never in the history of the world has any nation had so little justification for it as the United States of America. Compulsory military training did not save France; premature suppression of civil liberties and an overzealous censorship destroyed France. However, historical truth is now instantaneously branded anti-British vitriol. Tolerance has taken a flight for the duration of the war. The filthiest Fifth Columns in this Nation are the hobgoblins of hystericists.

Why is it that the advocates of conscription are opposed very bitterly to giving voluntary enlistment a decent trial? Simply because they fear it might work satisfactorily.

The masses of the American people are profoundly opposed to any type of peacetime conscription. Congress and the President are fully aware of this fact; hence they hatefully circumvent any suggestion that the people of this Nation are entitled to vote on the momentous question of crucifying the American form of Government.

It is not necessary, and never will be necessary, to eradicate the last vestige of human liberty in order to defend it. Just as suicide is the paradox of self-preservation, the draft is the dirge of democracy.

Victims Of T B

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Tuberculosis has been given a lot of publicity in the press and on the billboards. Almost everyone knows something about the seriousness of this disease and, perhaps, many have learned something about its symptoms. We wonder how many of your readers are aware of a special problem that confronts those tuberculous who are fortunate enough to recover. That is, the high rate of relapse.

It is estimated that 50 per cent of those who have been discharged from tuberculosis hospitals or sanatoria relapse or die within five years. Specialists in the field of T B have pointed out that 75 per cent of these relapses can be avoided under suitable environmental conditions. This means, in common parlance, jobs, nutritive food, decent lodgings and economic security all around.

Our organization is pledged to publicize this problem so that the former patients will be given adequate rehabilitation and employment. This is a health problem that we are tackling and as such it should arouse the sincere interest of every citizen.

In Defense Of Modern Youth

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I be permitted to answer C. R. G.'s vehement letter in The Post of August 27? According to him, the youth of America are yellow cowards—nothing less. As a fair representative of United States youth in all ways and being of conscription age (21), I believe that I am qualified to tell him he has been laboring under false ideas.

We are not afraid of Hitler and his Teutonic supermen. Just let him try to use them against us—the American youth—and you will witness some real scrapping.

By ridiculing us for not marching about in large militaristic groups with enblazoned placards on our chests, he openly advocates a hyper-patriotism, a state unhealthy for the national mind.

I believe I am a patriot, for I love my country, what it stands for, and its system of government. That doesn't mean, however, that I must advertise my feelings by sensationalism. I believe that we youth recognize the gravity of the situation. We realize that it must be cleaned up and that we must be the ones to do the cleaning.

Are the hundreds of boys on the waiting lists for Air Corps training, the men already in service, the boys still in college who are eagerly awaiting graduation so that they may take advantage of military training—are they all, C. R. G., scrawny, shrinking cowards?

F. W. H.
Washington, Aug. 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that C. R. G. in his letter on "Youth and Dictatorship" in The Post of August 27, in which he condemns European youth for supporting dictators and American youth for not supporting conscription, misses at least one important fact. What he does not see is that the youth of the world are weary of uncertainty and insecurity, that what they want most and need are jobs and a decent standard of living.

In Europe that seemed to be promised by the dictators. In America the youth know better. They know that dictatorship promises much, but delivers little. And they know that conscription is a step entirely too close to dictatorship for comfort; that even if it does not lead to war, with ruinous economic consequences, it is a regimentation of life and action that has until now been intolerable to the American people.

American youth wants as much as ever to preserve what makes life worth living for, but it does not believe that can be done by measures which bring totalitarianism, under any name or any excuse, to this country. H. T.
Washington, Aug. 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If C. R. G.'s letter in The Post of August 27 is any example of adult thinking, it's small wonder that youth has a cynical and disrespectful attitude toward its elders.

The writer says that youth was responsible for the rise of the dictators in Italy, Russia and Germany. Has he stopped to think who was responsible for the conditions which led to these dictatorships? He berates young Americans for being reluctant to fight until this country is attacked. How about the expressions of these same sentiments being voiced in both houses of Congress by men to whom the welfare of this country has been entrusted by its citizens?

I can understand how C. R. G. can be disturbed at some of the attitudes expressed today by youth. But these attitudes are the direct result of the type of teaching and training given them and the examples set for them by teachers, parents and other adults.

If the older generation has raised a crop containing its share of radicals, slackers and cynics, then let's put the blame where it belongs. I'll still take youth, C. R. G., and you can have your generation.

Negro Volunteers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today, American Negroes are confronted with a strange phenomenon in our democracy. Army and Navy recruiting stations are informing Negroes that no vacancies exist for them. We are denied an opportunity to enlist for the defense of our country, although both branches of the service are desperately in need of men. We are citizens. Should we be denied the right which is granted all other Americans? The Negro soldier has never been guilty of treason.

It is difficult for loyal Negroes to believe that American leaders—our leaders—subscribe to such a policy. Everywhere Negroes are asking how can this be possible. Daily we read of devices such as shorter periods of enlistment, more compensation, etc., as means of encouraging enlistment, still, we are denied the opportunity. Understand, we are not opposed to this as the means of speeding up enlistment. However, we believe that this justifies our saying that the country is desperately in need of men.

We are not willing to accept the theory that the Negro's intelligence level makes him a liability as a soldier. If this is contended, set an I. Q. level as an admission requirement and Negroes will "measure up."

Conscription is upon us, yet thousands of Negroes have been denied an opportunity for voluntary service — Negroes who are ready, willing, and capable of helping in the preparation for the defense of our country. Picture thousands of young Americans being forced to leave their daily pursuits, yet thousands of their fellow countrymen, through no fault of their own, have been denied an opportunity for voluntary service. This is indeed a strange phenomenon for which those who formulate our policy will have to answer to the fair-minded American public and to those who will some day read American history of 1940.

Correction In Order

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of August 28, I was surprised to learn while reading the article headed "D. C. Commissioners Agree Budget Must Be Cut 12 Million," that I had said at the hearing Tuesday "lighting along Sixteenth street northwest between Blagden avenue and Piney Branch Parkway must be improved to protect citizens." That was not my statement, though it has some of the words I used.

After telling the Commissioners that this association was bringing to them the new Teachers' College to be placed on the site of old Tuberculosis Hospital, repairs and alterations to Macfarland Junior High School, and the paving of Upshur street and Arkansas avenue, I requested that serious attention be given to "adequate street lighting west of Sixteenth street between Piney Branch Parkway and Blagden avenue" as this section has completely outgrown the ineffective low-powered lamps (that have never done more than accentuate the darkness) placed there many years ago before the trees grew up around them. New streets have been cut through, houses have increased in number about 300 per cent in the last three years.

Because of this insufficient illumination we have a condition that is a source of much worry and apprehension on the part of those residing there, and many depredations have been committed.

President, Piney Branch Citizens' Association.

The Post Impressionist

Vacancy

THERE WERE only two other people in the house besides myself—two middle-aged women who lived on the second floor. The room next to mine was unoccupied, and remained so for at least five months after I had moved in. I often wished that someone would take it, so that I would have some company during those long evenings after work.

One day I came home to find a note for me on the hall table. It was in Mrs. Lyons', my landlady's, writing and it said, "Steven, a gentleman has moved into the room next to yours."

I was very glad, and I rushed upstairs to welcome the fellow, only to be confronted by a locked door. I knocked, but no one answered. Then I went into my own room, though I could have sworn that I heard someone moving around in the other. I imagined that he did not want any company because he was tired.

When I came home the next day his door was closed again, and so it remained for all the time he stayed in Mrs. Lyons' house. I began to dislike this person, and I thought it would be better if I did not meet him. But in small ways I did begin to know him, and in small ways our lives became intertwined.

For example, each morning at 7, 15 minutes before mine rang, his clock went off, and I could hear him get out of bed and go into the bathroom. He would leave in 15 minutes, and when I saw how careful he had been to clean the sink and the bath, I could not help liking him.

He kept his radio tuned softly, but I noticed that he turned on only two programs during the day. One was the Masterwork hour. The other was a news broadcast which came on just before I went to supper. In my opinion that particular news broadcast was the best on the air, and when I found out that he received the same weekly magazine which I did, I felt that most of our tastes would be similar.

One night, just as I had got into bed and was pulling the covers over me, I heard him being called to the telephone. When he picked up the receiver, for the first time I heard his voice. The quality was not unusual, but there was something in it that reminded me of the ocean beating against the rocks on a dark night. I fell asleep wondering what life had kept from him.

The next morning I determined that I was going to meet him, whether he wanted me to or not. I returned home from work at 4:30 on a rainy November evening and looked on the table in the hall where Mrs. Lyons left our mail. I noticed a post card addressed to Eric Lee, and before I could keep myself from doing so, I had read the message, written in a woman's hand, "It's Saranac now, Darling. Believe, believe in our future; I am afraid."

The hall was dark, and I could hear the steady noise of the rain on the skylight as I walked up the stairs. I knocked on his door. There was no answer, so I opened it. The room was dark. He was not in. I thought this strange, because he always arrived home before me.

I did not hear the news broadcast from his room before supper-time; nor had he returned when I came back from supper. However, before bedtime, at just about the end of the symphonic program, I heard him walking slowly upstairs and shut the door of his room. I knew that he was disturbed, so I remained in mine. I got into bed and dozed, only to be awakened by the sound of Mrs. Lyons' voice,

"Mr. Lee, a telegram for you." I heard him run downstairs.

He walked up again, and I could tell from the way he paced around in his room that he was disturbed. Then suddenly he did a thing which I unconsciously knew he would do. He knocked on my door.

I stepped into my slippers and opened the door. He was a tall, dark-haired fellow whom I had passed on the street without knowing his identity.

"I need $10 rather badly," he said abruptly. "Can you let me have it?"

"Sure," I said, taking my trousers from the chair and fishing for my wallet. I let him have the bill, and he thanked me. Then just before he turned to go, a look of pain filled his eyes and he said, "I shall be alone again."

"I'm sorry," I said. "I wanted to be your friend." He looked up, though I'm quite sure that he didn't hear what I said, and he nodded. Then he was gone.

Next morning I awoke feeling that something was wrong. Then I realized that it was 7:10, and that his clock had not gone off. I hurriedly slipped into my robe and walked into the hall. On the floor, in front of my door, was an envelope. I picked it up and opened it. Inside was my $10 bill and a slip of paper saying, "Thanks." I looked into his room, and I saw that all his things were gone. After dressing, I hurried downstairs to Mrs. Lyons. She, too, had received an envelope with some money in it, but there was no mention of a forwarding address.

I never saw him again, though I never fail to look at the faces of people in crowds.

War And Philosophy

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Sixty years ago there was given to the world in the textbook "Progress and Poverty" a philosophy based upon a scientific knowledge and exact justice, a program for the behavior of governments which when adopted would banish forever the reign of injustice, depression, unemployment and warfare which has prevailed intermittently since the beginning of time down to the present day.

This philosophy has been discarded by our halls of learning with the same degree of intelligence exhibited by a drowning man who discards the use of a life preserver which is thrown to him.

Had the League of Nations been supported by the United States of America at a critical time and had the philosophy of Henry George been adopted by our schools and colleges and universities the existing wars in Europe and Asia would never have taken place and we would have been at this time enjoying the abundant prosperity that is the birthright of all men.

'Padding' WPA Rolls

By Ernest K. Lindley

An Appraisal Of Willkie's Charge

THE ACCUSATION, already made by Wendell Willkie, that the Roosevelt Administration is preparing to "pad" the WPA rolls for vote-getting purposes doubtless will be heard again many times before election day. In appraising the truth of the charge and of the rebuttal by the Administration, two basic facts are helpful.

The first is that the WPA rolls are not a measure of unemployment. WPA and related relief agencies never have pretended to provide temporary work for all unemployed workers. They have never provided jobs even for all unemployed persons who were willing to work and in need of relief.

When WPA was set up in 1935 as the backbone of a Federal work-relief program, the theory was that the Federal Government would provide temporary jobs for all the needy unemployed who were willing and able to work. The States were to assume full responsibility for the care of the so-called "unemployable" needy unemployed. The unemployed who were not in immediate need were to receive no aid—although later the Federal-State unemployment compensation systems provided some of them with financial help.

HOWEVER, the plan to provide temporary work for all needy employables unemployed—at least to the extent of one job per family—never was fulfilled. This was because the sums appropriated were never large enough. As a result, WPA always has had a waiting list of persons certified by local authorities to be in need of relief and able and willing to work for WPA, but to whom WPA jobs could not be given because of lack of funds.

During the last 12 months this waiting list has remained in the neighborhood of 1,000,000. It is now about that figure. To absorb this waiting list, WPA would need now about a 60 per cent larger appropriation than it has.

The second basic fact to keep in mind is that as cold weather arrives, there is a seasonal rise in the demand for relief. Outdoor jobs, especially in the rural and small-town areas, dwindle. Construction slows up or stops in the North. This seasonal rise may be offset partly by increases in industrial production. But up to a point the latter may not reduce the relief load very much, since the first people to be reemployed are usually those who have been out of work for only short periods and have not gone on WPA or local relief.

The charge that the Federal relief rolls were increased for election purposes was made in 1934, 1936 and 1938. The 1934 figures on numbers on relief offer no substantiation whatsoever for the charge. The 1936 figures show a slight rise during the fall in WPA employment, followed by a decline beginning in December and extending until the fall of 1937, when the usual seasonal upturn began again.

THE DROP from November to December, 1937, was bout 10 per cent. This gives some support to the argument that WPA rolls were kept up until election and then pruned. However, there was an improvement in business generally during the winter of 1936-37 and the spring and summer of 1937.

In 1938, WPA rolls rose month by month until December. The rise was due to the economic recession and the overcoming of it by the appropriation of more money for WPA and other public works. Here, as in 1936, there was a small drop in the WPA rolls after the election—about 5 per cent from November to December. But, again, as in 1936, this corresponded with a business upswing.

On the statistical record, WPA cannot be completely exonerated of adjusting its employment schedules slightly—but no more than that in over-all figures—to political purposes. There has been evidence, also, of instances in which funds were channeled into particular States or communities for political purposes—as during the Senatorial primary in Kentuck in 1938.

THE BAD REACTION to the intrusion of WPA into politics in 1938 convinced the top people in the Administration that it was sound politics, as well as better government, to avoid anything savoring of it in the future. This undoubtedly has been the policy of Col. F. C. Harrington, the Army engineer who succeeded Harry Hopkins as WPA administrator.

When The WPA appropriation was before Congress this spring, Harrington took the pains to inform both the House and the Senate how he expected to apportion the funds, month by month. He told them there would be an increase in the rolls during September, October and November, due to the seasonal rise in need shown by past experience.

Harrington informed Congress he expected to employ a maximum of 1,700,000 persons in September, and 1,800,000 in October. These are the lowest WPA figures for those months since 1937. Congress was fully forewarned of them. Unless they are exceeded, there would seem to be no basis for Willkie's charge that the Administration is planning to "pad" WPA rolls for election purposes.

Byoir, Publicity Man, Called Nazi Agent, Assails Patman

By International News Service

Representative Patman (Democrat), of Texas, author of a chain-store tax bill pending in Congress, was assailed sharply before the Dies Committee Investigating Un-American Activities yesterday for having accepted honorariums to make speeches throughout the country in behalf of the bill.

Carl Byoir, New York publicity man, accused by the Texan as having served as a propaganda agent for the Hitler government, asserted Patman's charges may have resulted from his (Byoir's) activities opposing the chain-store bill.

"Patman felt that Carl Byoir was standing in his way of making $10,000 to $15,000 a year outside of his Congressional salary," Byoir told the committee, "or was in fear that Byoir might make public something that might reflect on him."

Byoir asserted that Patman had accepted $4,800 from Donald Coster-Musica, former head of McKesson & Robbins Co., reputed swindler, "to go around the country making speeches." Coster-Musica supported the chain-store tax bill as a means of destroying chain stores, to boost profits of his own company, Byoir declared, adding:

"Patman took $4,800 from Coster-Musica, the swindler. The checks were made out to cash and given to Patman in a round-about way. I do not say that Patman ought to be condemned just because of that. What is so is that Patman, while a member of Congress, did accept employment from Coster-Musica and did go around the country making speeches for legislation."

He asserted that while he was fighting the chain-store tax bill, certain interests were "paying Patman what I would consider large sums of money."

Patman clashed frequently with Representatives Mason (Republican), Illinois, and Casey (Democrat), Massachusetts, members of the committee, who asserted Patman had produced no new evidence since Byoir was exonerated by a subcommittee in 1935, the committee found—as Byoir testified—that his firm had received $6,000 a month from the German railways several years ago, but that it found no evidence Byoir was engaged in un-American activities.

A charge by Patman that "big business is cooperating with Nazi agents for the purpose of having this country follow an appeasement policy" met with a curt statement by Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, committee chairman, that committee investigators had delved into similar allegations and found "no evidence of any connection between big business and Nazi propaganda."

France Pays For Sins

THE INSTINCT to kick a Jew for every broken shoelace or hair in the soup is now taking command of the French government, and the turn to anti-Semitism prompts some recollections for the sake of honesty in the record. The Germans under Hitler were told that the Jew was the cause of their disaster, when the fact was that they had come apart politically, had quit cold in the field the minute the war finally turned against them and had been deserted by the most German German of them all, Kaiser Wilhelm, who ran away.

Their trouble was mostly humiliation, and finally they took it out on their half-million Jews on Hitler's promise that once these people were totally eliminated from German life all would be well. The Jews were eliminated, but Hitler, nevertheless, led the Germans on to war, and for the war, which began with a German invasion of a Catholic country, he now blamed not Jewish bolshevism, the original bane, but Jewish capitalism and the plutocratic countries.

THE FRENCH will have to work out their own problem, but they insult the facts and the intelligence of all who saw anything of France in the last 20 years if they attempt to ignore their own dishonesty and corruption among the causes of the fall.

This was not Jewish dishonesty and corruption, but a native French trait. There was no other nation on earth in which graft had become such a robust institution, although Americans, in gloomy moments, may think that our own country deserves at least a draw in the comparison.

In France, roughly speaking, everybody grafted. Their journalism was a mixture of harlotry and treason in the front office, and their reporters were we-boys and moochers. Their servants received a graft—which was condoned, perforce—on every article of food that came into a Frenchman's house, and the concierge, or janitor, was a privileged brigand or racketeer and a stool-pigeon for the police.

TO DO ANY BUSINESS in a straightforward or honest manner was to be naive and a sucker, and every Frenchman who put his chalkmark on a deal on its way through the works felt that he was entitled to a commission, or kickback, and usually got it. Even in their biggest and best hotels the traveler had to check his possessions against pilferage and examine the bill with care, lest the French multiply the items instead of adding them. Chiseling was a national custom.

Paris during this time achieved a world-wide reputation as one great honky-tonk or joint to which the people of other nations flocked to get drunk and otherwise misbehave, secure in the knowledge that, because the French were so broadminded, everything they did would be off the record. Americans far outnumbered all the others during most of this period, and in the boom years of prohibition, the transatlantic ferries wore grooves in the sea taking them over for the drinking and back for fresh money!

THE AMERICANS certainly contributed nothing to the moral tone of Paris, and their conduct was not endearing, but a nation which permits its capital city to become known abroad for licentiousness and little else certainly shares the blame. It is impossible to imagine the people of this country permitting Washington to become so known to the world.

What were the wares that Paris offered the tourist but night life, divorces, liquor, perfume, ladypants and styles, and what opinion did the French expect to establish abroad, and what regard for their own capital at home by their obsession with frivolous and sordid things? Not only was good faith lacking in most of their dealings with suckers who soon would be poured on the boat trains and probably wouldn't return but to the detriment of French life the people didn't mind. They seemed to think they were being quaintly French.

It certainly is true that France has paid terribly for her carelessness and generosity in offering asylum to political refugees of all political hues who abused her hospitality by promoting their selfish little conspiracies and dumping their dead weight on a people with problems of their own.

But the French themselves are chiefly to blame for the decay so thoughtlessly but accurately summed up in the drunken yelp of the tourist: "So this is Paris! Where are the naked women?"

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

Twentieth-Century America

LANGSTON HUGHES once said to Wallace Thurman: "If I could feel as bad as you do all the time I would surely produce some wonderful books." Thurman answered that you had to know how to write as well as how to feel bad. Langston Hughes retorted that he didn't have to know how to feel bad because, every so often, the blues just naturally overtook him, like a blind beggar with an old guitar:

You don't know,
You don't know my mind—
When you see me laughin',
I'm laughin' to keep from cryin'.

Langston Hughes is colored—and an American. That is, of course, the dominant fact on every page of his autobiography, "The Big Sea" (Knopf, $3). If he had been born in Russia, or in France, or in Mexico, it would not matter so much. There he would be simply a poet and a story teller. Here he is colored. By some grateful miracle he has not lost his native sense of humor in the process of becoming a writer. He has won fame, but never been comfortable among the consciously famous. He always—well, almost always—runs out and chuckles at them. And he chuckles at being neither black nor white but colored.

He went to Africa, the great Africa of his ancestral dreams, wild and lovely, the women dark and beautiful, the palm trees tall, the sun bright, the rivers deep. But the Africans looked at him and would not believe he was a Negro. His skin was too light . . . His blood is, by the crude calculation of pre-Mendellian genealogy, one-sixteenth Cherokee Indian, one-sixteenth French, five-sixteenths Southern white and seven-sixteenths Negro. One of his grand-uncles was a member of Congress from Virginia. He was born in Missouri. His mother was a stenographer in Kansas. His father was a prosperous business man in Toluca, in Mexico, hating Negroes and hating being a Negro.

And when Langston Hughes asked for an ice cream soda in the St. Louis railway station, returning from a summer with his father in Toluca, the clerk looked at him and asked: "Are you a Mexican or a Negro?"

"Why?" the boy asked.

"Because if you're a Mexican I'll serve you," the clerk said. "If you're colored I won't."

"I'm colored," said Langston Hughes, and went off, probably not humming "God Bless America, My Own Sweet Land."

HE WAS CLASS POET at the grammar school in Lincoln, Ill.—because, he thinks, the white children in his class knew that they could not write poetry and assumed, as most white Americans do, that every Negro had a sense of rhythm. That was how Langston Hughes came to write his first poem. At the Central High School in Cleveland he was class poet again. This time it was because the school was split between Jews and Gentiles, and the two factions comprised on a Negro. Later he wrote poetry because he could not help it or just because he felt bad. And one year in New York a white-haired Park avenue lady supported him for the good of the arts, and he wrote almost no poetry at all. He says it was because he didn't feel bad. She said that the poetry he wrote was not properly "primitive."

Poetry is not, ordinarily, remunerative. So Langston Hughes worked as a delivery boy in Chicago (and was beaten up for wandering into a neighborhood whose gangs disapproved of colored interlopers); as a hand on a Greek truck farm on Staten Island; as a messenger boy for Thorley, the florist; as mess boy on a "mother ship" tied up at Jones Point on the Hudson River; as a seaman on most of the world's oceans—and some of the stories he tells of that life compare favorably with B. Traven's strange classic, "The Death Ship"; as doorman, second cook and waiter in Paris cabarets. He went one year to Columbia University, where he found the Chinese students friendly; later he graduated from Lincoln University, near Philadelphia, where the students were colored and the faculty, like the trustees, all white. In Washington he worked as secretary to a Negro historian, but he found the colored society of Washington stuffy; he preferred a job as bus boy in the Wardman Park Hotel. There Vachel Lindsay "discovered" him and put him in the newspapers.

He had been "discovered" before. Floyd Dell was the first editor who ever wrote him a letter along with a rejection slip. Alain Locke, colored himself and a great scholar, had read his poems in "The Crisis" and tried to visit him on his ship at Jones Point; later Dr. Locke found him in Paris and encouraged him in his writing. In the 1920's he lived through the "Negro Renaissance" that made Harlem famous; Carl Van Vechten asked him if he had not enough poems for a book and sent the manuscript to Alfred Knopf, who is still Mr. Hughes' publisher . . . Nothing I have ever read by or about Mr. Van Vechten does him as much honor as Langston Hughes, account of their relationship; and neither Mr. Van Vechten nor James Weldon Johnson in his "Black Manhattan" has ever pictured the Harlem of the 1920's better.

Broke in Paris, Langston Hughes ran into a Russian girl, who found him a cheap room, then explained, "I have no mon-nee nedder;" and soon he was in the midst of Paris' Negro furor. He tells of a fight on the floor of the Grand Duc cabaret, when Florence Embry, then the toast of Paris as Josephine Baker was a few years later, threw her orchids on the floor and swept across the room like a gold tigress to defend a French danseuse and men fought women as never elsewhere save in the "movie" version of "The Women." He tells of seamen's brothels all around the world; of A'Lelia Walker's Harlem parties (and of the Park avenue lady who, hearing a lurid version of "My Daddy Rocks Me," exclaimed, "I just love Negro spirituals," to the vast delight of the audience); of investigating voodoo with Zora Hurston; of his life as a beachcomber in Genoa and of the time he and Alain Locke were invited to lecture and to lunch at the Hill School—the faculty asked some of the boys to volunteer to sit at the same table with the distinguished but colored visitors.

Some of his favorite poems are scattered through the book. Prose or poetry, Mr. Hughes' sense of color and rhythm lights up the pages and gives them a singing lilt. You may take "The Big Sea" as a string of good stories or you may read it as a strange commentary on twentieth-century America. This, too, is the United States.

He don't amount to much, though, I guess.

"Hello, Betsy . . . Is Connie up here? . . . What's he like here? . . . Scallawag Ul? . . . He got it from who? . . . Izzat so ! ! ! . . . I know he's been dropped away down . . . He can win in a spot like this . . . and look at his price! . . . Huh? . . . Oh, some nut tried to tout me on King Carl, but he's an awful bum.

"Lissen, Hemingaway! . . . Look! I can't make up my mind on this race . . . Whatcher hear? . . . Which one? . . . Number seven . . . Mincemeat Boy? . . . Muggsy Rosenstein is plunging on him? . . . Sure . . . I know what that means . . . Me? . . . Well, I had about made up my mind to play Scallaway Second or Baby Shoes . . . A feller at the hotel gave me King Carl, but he's outclassed and they tell me he's lame and a bleeder.

"Pardon me . . . Oh, hello, Steve . . . Yeah, I'm rushing to make a bet before they close them windows . . . Who ya taking? . . . King Carl? . . . Don't be a sucker!

(The curtain will be lowered to denote the passing of the race. King Carl takes the track at the start, is never headed and wins by four lengths.)

"Hey, fellers, no foolin' . . . Listen . . . I has this King Carl all day . . . I picks him myself . . . He's the standout horse and I lissen to a lotta friends and get switched . . . He pays 30 to 1, and I ain't on him . . . Look, how can a man, etc, etc., etc."

The Main Concern

With problems high and mighty,
To seize this world and shake it,
The question day and nighty
Is, "Will the Yankees make it?"

Night harness racing is to be held for 30 nights on the track built for auto speed racing on Long Island. A million dollars was sunk at this track to make it a motor speedway, and if the horses don't do well you can attribute it to a major outbreak of what is known as the horse laugh.

Nazi Protests Fail to Block Film Showing

A spokesman for The March of Time stated last night the film company will start public showing of its latest issue, which contains sections of the Nazi propaganda motion picture, "Baptism of Fire," despite protests issued through the German Embassy.

Baron Ulrich von Gienanth, second secretary of the embassy, requested that portions of the picture be deleted after viewing the film in New York Wednesday, according to Louis de Rochemont, publisher of The March of Time.

"Baptism of Fire," is a documentary used for propaganda in Holland, Belgium and Norway before their invasion. De Rochemont termed the picture "the most damning indictment of the Nazi regime in existence."

A spokesman for the German Embassy said yesterday that The March of Time had made the film "distorted and untrue" by the introduction of sections of the anti-Nazi book, "Voice of Destruction," by Hermann Rauschning.

Denying that the embassy played a major part in the question, the spokesmen said the matter was a "conflict of title over the use of the picture" in an agreement entered into by The March of Time and the Nfa Film Co., official releasers of the motion picture. He said officials of The March of Time had opened negotiations for the use of the picture through the embassy.

Divided Empire

By Barnet Nover

Desertions From Vichy

BEFORE FRANCE laid down her arms last June, Winston Churchill sent an earnest plea to the Bordeaux government urging the French, with the aid of their fleet and air force, to continue the war from their empire even if they had to abandon the struggle at home. He coupled this with an epoch-making offer to unite Great Britain and France in an indissoluble union.

His plea fell on deaf ears. There were, to be sure, elements in the Bordeaux government which favored an acceptance of the British offer and continued resistance. They wanted France to follow the example of Norway, the Netherlands and Belgium. But they were overruled. Marshal Petain and the majority of his colleagues were convinced that France had no alternative but to make peace with Germany and Italy.

In taking this stand they were prompted in part by the same spirit of defeatism which had contributed so heavily to France's collapse. But an additional factor in determining their decision was, no doubt, their utter disbelief in the readiness and capacity of the British to fight on. At the same time they felt that an unconditional surrender would mean more lenient terms from the victors.

WE KNOW what happened. France laid down her arms at home and in the empire; Great Britain found herself in an extremely exposed position all the way from the English Channel to the Indian Ocean and beyond.

A glance at the map shows the enormous advantages which Italy secured, the great handicaps created for Britain by virtue of the French decision. As long as France was in the war, the Italian colony of Libya was threatened from two sides. Now, with the Libyan frontier of Tunis demilitarized, Italy can concentrate her entire north African force against Egypt.

In the Near East, the armistice of Compiegne was followed by the disintegration of the large army which had been assembled under the leadership of Gen. Weygand. It is apparent that some of the French elements in that army have gone over to the British; the army as a unit has disappeared. As a result, Britain's position in Palestine and Irak is exposed.

In East Africa it was to no small extent the elimination of French Somaliland as a possible base of operations against Italian East Africa which enabled the Italians to overrun British Somaliland.

IN HIS SPEECH of June 28, Premier Churchill expressed the hope that "the French Empire, stretching all over the world and protected by sea power, will continue to struggle at the side of its allies."

But that, as indicated, did not happen. Churchill's hope remained unfulfilled. The local civil and military authorities in Morocco and Algeria, in French West Africa and French Somililand, in Madagascar and Indo-China and practically every other area in the vast French Empire followed the lead of the men of Vichy.

The French fleet, instead of joining forces with their erstwhile allies, was broken up. Some units came voluntarily under the British flag; others were put out of commission forcibly, as at Oran, or following peaceful negotiations, as at Alexandria; a few ships reached French ports and are there interned. But the positive and negative gains which the British derived from getting part of the French fleet and keeping the rest out of German and Italian hands could not compensate for the real losses suffered by the British as a result of the destruction of the French navy as an Allied fleet in being.

IT IS NOT clear just why the orders which came out of Vichy were so generally obeyed. It is possible to conjecture, however, that the colonial officials followed the lead of the home government in part because they, too, were convinced that the jig was up for Britain as for France.

Since the Franco-German armistice two months have elapsed. The British have not given up the struggle. On the contrary, the final Nazi triumph which loomed so close last June is out of sight today. And as long as the British fight on it must be apparent to all Frenchmen that only a British triumph can result in the reestablishment of an independent France.

That circumstance plus the Vichy government's utter lack of prestige may explain why during the last few days a number of French colonies in Africa and the Pacific have broken away from Vichy and openly proclaimed their support of Great Britain in the war with Germany.

These colonies include the Chad and Congo territories and the Cameroons in Equatorial Africa. Their strategic importance is said to be great. But great or not, the fact that these colonies have joined forces with Gen. de Gaulle and his committee constitutes something in the nature of a French vote of confidence in Great Britain, a vote of no confidence in the men of Vichy. And there is a strong possibility that if the British continue to resist, the other parts of the French empire will follow their example.

Are Farmers in Favor of America Feeding Europe?

Ambassador Cudahy and Herbert Hoover have predicted a famine in Europe this winter. Britain has indicated she would oppose any attempt to feed Hitler's victims on the basis that Germany would be aided. How do you feel about this question? Sunday's Gallup Poll brings you America's answer, and you will be particularly interested in what the surplus-laden American farmers think about sending food to Europe.

Exciting Tales of Sea Seem to Have Cinema Call

'Sea Hawk' Starts Bounding Main Cycle; Prankish Weather Plays Hob With Show Biz; This, That and the Other About the Theater

IT IS NICE to be borne out. Not on a shutter, but by corroborative evidence tending to substantiate an earlier prediction.

What we mean is that a day, or two, or three, ago we made some such forecast as that comedy would give way to melodrama in a new cycle of "escape" pictures. It seems, as usual, that we didn't know the half of it.

BELL

During forthcoming weeks—or maybe it is months—there will be quite a grist of sea pictures, put in motion, no doubt, by the Warner Brothers new edition of "The Sea Hawk." The next one on the line, according to all report, is "Tugboat Annie Sails Again," in which Marjorie Rambeau and Alan Hale succeed to the roles created for the cameras by the late Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery. Then there will be "John Paul Jones," with James Cagney as the great American naval hero. After that will come a new rendering of Jack London's "The Sea Wolf," with Edward G. Robinson in the title role, created on the silent screen, if we remember correctly—a highly doubtful likelihood—by our old friend Hobart Bosworth, one of the authentic eminents of the theater, whose career traces the history of the stage from the days of Augustin Daly to the present, and "Captain Horatio Hornblower," with Errol Flynn in the role of C. S. Forester's hero. These all will be coming from the Warner studios in Burbank.

Paramount runs a close second in the matter of sea narratives with "Mystery Sea Raider," "Reap the Wild Wind," by Thelma Strabel, and next on Cecil B. De Mille's list; Forester's "Captain From Connecticut;" "Botany Bay," by James Norman Hall, and "Dildo Clay," by Nelson Hayes.

Twentieth Century-Fox, by present charts, goes down to the sea in ships but once and that, by a strange coincidence, will be in "Down to the Sea in Ships." United Artists, just to keep the record straight, will come up with two maritime movies—"Captain Caution" and "The Long Voyage Home."

"The Sea Hawk," incidentally, seems to be not a bad barometer of public taste in the chosen premise. This remade Warner Brothers epic of the pirate main is continuing a second week at the Earle Theater, in bona fide response to an avid public demand to be "let in" on one of the season's major productions. There isn't too much of Sabatini or the old, silent "Sea Hawk" in the new "Sea Hawk," but there is enough of "what it takes" to keep the cash customer precariously close to the edge of his chair throughout the action—and I mean action.

You can blame it on the weather, or the weatherman, however it happens to be that your grudge lies. Meteorology has more or less played hob—whatever that is—with the August theater. It has played so much with the National Sylvan Theater, as a matter of fact, that the widely heralded and twice postponed Washington Players' production of "Rip Van Winkle" has been definitely called off by Impresaria Bess Davis Schreiner until sometime in September or October, when it will be done indoors. It was to have gone on Tuesday night and again last night, but the "ceiling" being what it is, the decision was "no dice."

Speaking of the weather, as somebody has been within memory, that unpredictable variant—long-range or short-range, to all appearances—has produced a strange theatrical anomaly these late summer weeks. Conditions have been ideal for indoor pastiming, just when everybody and his brothers and his sisters and his cousins and his aunts have been bent on getting the last crack at the outdoors over Labor Day's last legal holiday of the so-called heated term. The National has been unable to take advantage of this "break" for want of bookings. The pictures have done pretty well for themselves, by and large. So just as soon as everyone gets back home, ready to wrestle the fall duds away from that moth, the weather will turn hot as blazes again and no one will choose to go indoors. Well, as the man said, that is the way show business is!

The popular excursion steamer S. S. Potomac is by way of smashing a bit of its own precedent. Instead of having an ace dance band over the week-end, the Potomac is presenting Mitchell Ayres and his orchestra throughout the week for dancing on those theoretical "moonlight" cruises. Appearing with Ayres as vocalists are Mary Ann Mercer and Tommy Taylor. The whole organization, getting right down to the old, familiar brass tacks, is so versatile that it may be relied upon to satisfy every taste—as is attested by the fact that it has been on the air from three to six nights weekly with its "Fashions in Music." The Potomac's sailings are at 8:45 nightly, except on Saturdays, when an extra midnight cruise augments the regular earlier junket.

Five Smiling Stars Open Loew's New Season

BOOMERS WHO MAKE GOOD THE TITLE

RKO-Keith's

It's scarcely news that Keith's will continue "Lucky Partners" for a second week beginning this morning. With Ginger Rogers at top form despite black hair-dye and with Ronald Colman at his suavest in spite of too long a screen absence, "Lucky Partners" is a smart, sophisticated comedy.

This Sacha Guitry story is a farce that lacks riotous, boisterous humor. While its plot is essentially bedroom comedy, it depends for its laughs on quiet asides—a Colman smile, a Rogers eyelash, a touch of traditional Gallic sentiment which in happier days might be described as "Ooh, La, La."

A pretty Greenwich Villageite passes a whistler on the street. He wishes her good luck. Within an hour she has it when she falls heiress to a sparkling gown. She has an opportunity to buy a sweepstakes ticket and bethinks her of the man who wished her good luck. She finds him, talks him into sharing the ticket with her, thinking that if she wins she will be able to marry the insurance salesman she's engaged to. The walking good luck charm agrees on condition that she take a trip with him before she weds. Purely platonic. She's insulted. Consulted, her statistical fiance urges her to humor the zany. When the impossible happens and they receive their money, the zany holds her to the bargain.

Adept Supporting Roles

In Niagara Falls their registration at a hotel for different rooms causes consternation in the staff. Haled before a benign judge, their case becomes a national scandal. One of those courtroom scenes at which filmland has become so adept tops a happy denoument.

Besides two stars who are as adept as their reputations have them, there is a deliciously aware supporting company. Hugh O'Connell as the always helpful hotel clerk; Harry Davenport, who is "here to help you, young lady;" Jack Carson, as the client-conscious insurance man; Spring Byington as the aunt whose experience with the French novel makes her aware of nonexistant facts; Cecilia Loftus as a happy second-honeymooner, and Lucile Gleason as a forbidding mother-in-law, are all memorable. And for a good out-and-out laugh there's the spectacle of Ginger guarding her single blessedness in a chair facing her hotel door—a door at which an astounded maid continues to appear.

Today's incoming Pathe and Universal news will be added to the bill which also includes a Walt Disney, "Donald's Vacation," adding up to 120 minutes of top-of-the-bottle entertainment.—R. L. C.

Nostalgia

"Variety Hall of 1910" is the title of the special stage production which Gene Ford will present at Loew's Capitol the week of September 6.

Famous stars who are included in this company include Joe Howard and Fritzi Scheff, along with other favorites. An old-time music hall set will fill the Capitol stage, and the presentation promises to be of unique interest.

The New Yorker

Jean Dickenson, Metropolitan Opera soprano, is today's guest columnist for Leonard Lyons.

I'D RATHER SING than write, but Mother said, "Help the nice man, dear—he does need his vacation." So here's your column.

JEAN DICKENSON

You see, I have a debt to pay off to Mother. Once I put a terrific strain on mother-love, and I'm lucky to be alive. At the age of 4, Mother and I had to leave India because of a cholera epidemic. The converted cattle boat on which we sailed was struck by a monsoon, and everybody was sick but me. I was not only healthy—I was hungry and cheerful. I was Mother's little helper running to her bedside constantly with this sweet remark: "Mommy, please groan some more for me." I guess only her weakness saved me from death.

OF COURSE, occasionally I wonder if I really am alive, like one night last winter shortly after my Metropolitan debut. I was celebrating at the Stork Club, and a lovely girl came to our table and said, "Oh, it's so wonderful being here in the same place with you. Every time I hear you sing, I'm really thrilled. Please, Miss Durbin, may I have your autograph?"

I GUESS this business of mistaken identities happens often in New York. The other day I ran into Sally Ryan, the young sculptor, loading her plate with smorgasbord at the Gripsholm and she told me that people are always telling her she's a second edition of Amelia Earhart or Katharine Hepburn. Actually, "Tammie" Ryan looks like her grandfather, the late Thomas Fortune Ryan and the feminine version of Huckleberry Finn. With Tammie was Ellen Ballon, the Canadian pianist who will give a concert in Town Hall in November.

BESIDES WRITING a column for you, I'm told that Actress Ilka Chase is writing a little book. "If country doctors and country lawyers can write books, why can't a city actress?" says Ilka. (Incidentally, "Ilka" is a Hungarian name and means "cute little Helen.")

AND WHAT about you, Leonard—are you writing a book? Last Sunday night after my broadcast on the "American Album of Familiar Music" I met a newspaper man, and he said that practically every member of the Fourth Estate writes a book at one time or another. Right now he's doing some research for a scientific treatise on the component parts of office coffee. To date, he finds that office coffee is made from (a) amalgamated anthracite dust and mulsified axle grease, (b) 1939 elm leaves, (c) French spring water in which a mustard gas bomb has exploded, and (d) old copy readers.

AS FOR ME, I'll take curry. Whenever I get a wave of nostalgia for my childhood experiences in India, I go to the Rajah on West Forty-eighth street where the East Indian curry dishes are authentic and all the ingredients and spices are imported. Or, there's the Jai-Alai in the Village where the arroz con pollo or curried chicken and rice is supreme and where I saw Noel Coward a couple of weeks ago looking pretty worried about the fate of the British children.

IF YOU'RE DOING your fall housecleaning and find a lot of old china plates you might send them to Gladys Swarthout, the beauty of the Met. In her performance of "Carmen" she breaks a plate and uses the pieces for castanets.

DID YOU HEAR this story about Lothar Wolff, film editor at "March of Time?" He went down to the Bureau of Motor Vehicles to get a driver's license. "Do I have to take a driver's test?" asked Mr. Wolff. "Certainly," was the reply. Mr. Wolff showed his New Jersey license. "With that," smirked the New York official, "you'll need several tests and plenty tough ones, too."

DO YOU KNOW anybody with jobs for dogs? My Scotch terrier, Ghillia Bria is ready for another job. He's just finished testing a synthetic bone for a manufacturer of artificial dog bones. His pay was a pound of dog food per week—the real stuff. Now that the job is over, he seems a little bored with unemployment.

And before we leave this subject of jobs, just let me remind you again that mine is singing.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 29 (INS).—I am very interested to hear that Raoul Walsh is back of a plan to revive the old Hollywood tradition of selecting the 13 baby stars who have the most promise of succeeding. Directors Edmund Goulding and Mike Curtiz have offered full cooperation, and if Raoul's idea gets really underway, we'll have our prettiest and most talented youngsters given the opportunity that used to be handed the WAMPAS baby stars.

PARSONS

A director from each major lot will act as judge. Each studio will be privileged to submit two or three girls under 21 years of age who have played not more than two speaking parts. An eligible person may submit herself. What glamorous days those were when the press agents of the town (the WAMPAS boys) had their annual dinner and made their selections. When I tell you that among the girls chosen as WAMPAS baby stars were Janet Gaynor, Clara Bow, Joan Blondell, Fay Wray, Lupe Velez, Sally Rand, Dolores Del Rio, Anita Louise and many others you can see for yourself that a great service was rendered the motion picture industry.

Universal has agreed to lift the restraining order which prevented Margaret Sullavan from playing in "Floatsam" until she made a picture for them. I have an idea that if Maggie had wanted to refuse to make the Universal movie for Helen Hayes' famous "Act of God" reason she would have been within her rights. The rumor is that Margaret is expecting the stork. I have no confirmation, but I hear from an excellent source that a third child will arrive at the happy home of Margaret Sullavan and Leland Hayward. She will do her picture for Universal in July of next year—nearly a year hence, so that's another reason I think the stork item is correct, although I must repeat it is only a rumor.

The most sensational motion picture this reviewer has seen this year is "Foreign Correspondent." Wowie! What a movie! And what a credit to Walter Wanger, who gives us a picture that is so exciting that it takes you right out of yourself and makes you forget every trouble you have in the world. No small part of the success of this picture is due to Alfred Hitchcock, the director, who, better than anyone, knows how to get the most out of a melodrama.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Frances Robinson and Robert Riskin have set the date; Mrs. Paul Lukas' mother, who speaks not a word of English, is in the Good Samaritan Hospital for a major operation. Daisy will remain by her side as interpreter until she is well; the Frankie Albertsons have dated the stork at Christmas time. They have a boy 6 years old; Diane of the Diane and Dario dance team, who recently appeared at the Cocoanut Grove, and her husband, Clarence Gould, have said adieu to marriage. Her new heart interest is Frank Kerwin, Hollywood night spot impresario.

Carl Laemmle, jr., has grown an inch by taking stretching exercises; Norma Shearer and George Raft dining tete-a-tete at the Beverly Brown Derby; Edgar (Slow Burn) Kennedy and his bride of 16 years celebrated their wedding anniversary yesterday; Edmund Grainger and Helen Vinson glimpsed night clubbing.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

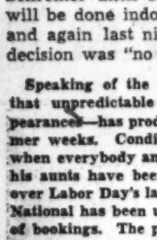
Hollywood, Aug. 29.

When Paul Muni fell in the studio-built bay at 20th Century, the company shot around his cold on "Hudson's Bay." Yet when the first British official of that company came from England and toured the upper reaches of Canada years ago, they had to cut a hole in the ice so he could have his morning dip. He shot the rapids in a canoe with an Indian guide, while he was dressed in a cutaway and high hat. And a high executive of that company, Victor Cazelet, M. P., tells me that they retain that custom today when they go over the same route.



HOPPER

David Selznick certainly knows how to play hard to get. Since he's delayed so long putting "Gone With the Wind" on the air, the price has gone up, and he stands to make half a million, which is just 10 times what he paid for the rights of the novel.

Now that Connie Bennett is again playing "We Were Dancing" on the El Captain, I'm reminded of what her father said opening night, when asked how he liked her performance. "Why, bless you, Connie was born an amateur—she'll never be anything else."

If a prominent director now shooting a prominent picture doesn't voluntarily offer money to the man from whom he took the story, he's going to have one of the juiciest lawsuits on his hands any writer ever started. And it isn't the first offense for this director. There's a suit pending over a picture he directed last year (which also stars the same much-publicized blonde). He's supposed to be a grand buy—but if what he did isn't grand larceny, then I don't know the meaning of that word. But I do know the inside of this story.

Wait until you see Frank Morgan's imitation of Ted Lewis and Rudy Vallee in "Hullabaloo," which lives up to its name. At last, Frank's been given his head.

Laird Cregar, who was so good in "Oscar Wilde," has a fine part in "Hudson's Bay," and was sent on location to McCall, Idaho, to pack in and get some of that wonderful background. But after landing there, they couldn't find a canoe or a horse big enough to hold his 309 pounds—so he came home. They're shooting the scenes on the back lot.

Posted outside a big bull-ring in Mexico City, there's a huge picture of Rita Hayworth and underneath, "Rita begs you to come and see Ramon Mendoza." They like her down there, and superimposed her face over the senorita, and there's nothing she can do about it. Well, that's Mexico.

Now that Claude Rains is playing David Belasco in "The Woman With Red Hair," I wonder if they'll revive Belasco's daily custom of sending a crisp dollar bill and a fresh rose to Mrs. Leslie Carter every morning of her life, whether she was touring or not. It was a small but gracious token. Belasco was a godsend to piano manufacturers. His first important gift to a new star was a piano.

Today Opens New Film Season On Loew's Washington Screens

Four Major Producing Companies Contribute To Imposing Schedule of Releases Booked For Impending Months on F Street

"Boom Town," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production which brings Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr to the Palace screen today, will begin the fall season of greater attraction at Loew's Washington Theaters.

Productions from four leading Hollywood studios—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, United Artists, Twentieth Century-Fox and Paramount—will be presented at the Capitol, Palace and Columbia during the months ahead, according to Carter T. Barron, Loew's Eastern Division Manager.

"Boom Town" was selected to begin the season because it is M-M-M's most ambitious multistar production since the well-remembered "Dinner at Eight," which scored so successfully seven years ago. It is expected to prove one of the most popular releases of recent years.

Comedy, drama, romance and adventure fill the other productions which M-G-M has scheduled to follow "Boom Town." Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland, who scored a hit last season in "Babes In Arms," will appear together in "Strike Up the Band," gay, fast-moving musical production in which Paul Whiteman also has a prominent role. Music by the late George Gershwin, with lyrics by his brother, Ira, adds zest to this tuneful release.

Drama and suspense are blended in an unusual story, "Escape," in which Robert Taylor has the male starring role and Norma Shearer plays the lovely countess, who risks everything to help him rescue his mother from a foreign concentration camp. This is the filmization of the best seller by the same name, written by Ethel Vance.

Another Stellar Cast

A distinguished cast will be presented in "The Ziegfeld Girl," lavish musical production. Eleanor Powell, Hedy Lamarr, Lana Turner and James Stewart are the stellar quartet who play the leading roles.

"The Philadelphia Story," one of last season's successful stage productions, will present Katharine Hepburn in the role she made famous behind the footlights. James Stewart and Cary Grant are co-starred in the leading male roles of this modern drama by Philip Barry.

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, co-stars of such musical hits as "Naughty Marietta" and "New Moon," will appear together in "Bitter Sweet," by Noel Coward. W. S. VanDyke II, a recent Washington visitor, directed the production. Miss MacDonald and Eddy also are slated to appear in "I Married An Angel," the stage hit by Rodgers and Hart.

"Go West," the latest Marx Brothers' mirthquake, is said to be one of their most entertaining releases. The comedy situations all were "tried out" before Midwestern audiences before being incorporated into the photoplay. This is the technique which proved so successful in the production of "A Night At the Opera" and "A Day At the Races."

Robert Taylor will have the starring role in "Flight Command," novel story of the Air Service, which will be a Frank Borzage production. Ruth Hussey and Walter Pidgeon head the supporting cast, while a Washington favorite, "Red" Skelton, has his first big comedy role in this subject.

Judy Garland will appear in the title role of "Little Nelly Kelly," the screen adaptation of the George M. Cohan play of the same name. With her in the cast will be George Murphy, Charles Winninger and Douglas McPhail.

Myrna Loy is now at work on "Third Finger, Left Hand," delightful romantic comedy in which she has Melvyn Douglas as her leading man.

More of the Hardys

The Hardy Family will appear in new adventures during the fall and winter season, as will Dr. Kildare and Nick Carter, the other two popular characters M-G-M has developed in these special screen series.

Photoplay productions from United Artists which are listed for early presentation in Washington include two notable Walter Wanger productions. The first is "Foreign Correspondents," in which Joel McCrea, Laraine Day and Herbert Marshall appear, under the direction of Alfred Hitchcock, who made "Rebecca."

The second Wanger release is "The Long Voyage Home," which was directed by John Ford and based on four short plays of the sea by Eugene O'Neill. This is expected to be one of the cinematic events of the year.

Other United Artists releases include "Captain Caution," from the novel by Kenneth Roberts; "Flotsam," with Fredic March and Margaret Sullivan; "Kit Carson," with Jon Hall as the noted Westerner; "Roadshow," comedy with Adolphe Menjou; "The Son of Monte Cristo;" "The Thief of Bagdad," in Technicolor, and Samuel Goldwyn's production of "The Westerner," starring Gary Cooper.

Columbia

With critical acclaim that has many a more ambitious undertaking blushing, "The Great McGinty" returns to F street today for a week at the Columbia Theater.

This is a wide-awake comedy written and directed by Preston Sturges. Baldly stated its tongue-in-the-cheek plot tells how one honest inclination ruined a successfully dishonest man and how one dishonest deed was the downfall of a previously honest chap.

There's political satire aplenty for this politically conscious year. The workings of a State government in all its shameful details are enough to make the red, white and blue turn purple. There's enough general scrapping around in district halls and taxicabs to cinch the claim that here is the perfect "Man's Picture." Its slam-bang events and cold shoulder to romance complete enviable qualifications for being just the picture the suffragette should take her boy friend to see.

Brian Donlevy has the best role of a sturdy career as the bum who becomes Governor of a great State.

Twentieth Century Lines Up Hits

"Young People," with Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood, opens today at Loew's Capitol. It is the first of a group of Twentieth Century-Fox productions which the Loew theaters will present during the fall and winter season.

Following "Boom Town" at the Palace will be "The Return of Frank James," in which Henry Fonda again plays the role of Jesse James' brother. It is said to be as full of adventure as the previous release.

Tyrone Power will be seen at the Palace soon in "Brigham Young," in which Linda Darnell has the leading feminine role. Another early release starring Power will be "The Californian."

John Barrymore's forthcoming production is a comedy. "The Great Profile," in which, quite naturally, Mr. Barrymore plays the title role.

Paul Muni will be seen in "Hudson Bay Company," historical drama.

Those Incorrigible Marx Brothers Revert to Type And Still Pursue Blondes Through Their New Comedy

By Frederick C. Othman,
United Press Hollywood Correspondent.

Hollywood, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—There is no doubt about it, and you can ask Miss June MacCloy—the Marx Brothers are tough on blondes.

The beauteous Miss MacCloy is the blonde currently being mauled, pulled, pushed, pounded, thumped, squeezed, pinched, tripped, jerked, yanked and smacked by the mad Marxes—who are crazy like so many foxes.

They earn their living, and a handsome living it is, too, by chasing blondes. With evil leers, the Messers. Groucho, Chico and Harpo Marx crawl under tables, climb through railroad windows, and swing from chandelier to chandelier, after blondes. It's good business. The customers always laugh.

Groucho, the Marx with the bobtailed frock coat, lenseless eyeglasses, and mustache of burnt cork, explained between bouts with Miss MacCloy at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, that he and his brothers were tangling now with the law of diminishing returns.

Each new picture they make is harder to do; the laughs are more difficult to find. Only situation which stands up consistently with the audiences is that wherein a Marx lurks on the trail of a blonde who stands at least a head taller than him. The people always laugh at that. The Marxes are certain about it.

For many years they went on a vaudeville tour with their entire movie company, preparatory to making each new picture. They'd test their gags on the customers.

Last year they decided to omit this guinea pig routine. It was expensive. It took a lot of time. And with all their experience, shouldn't the Marx Brothers know what was funny and what wasn't? So they made "A Day at the Circus," from scratch. It didn't win any prizes. The scenes which seemed extra funny in the making looked flat on the screen.

"And we learned that nobody knows anything about comedy," Groucho said. "Comedians know least about it of all."

When they decided this spring to make "Go West," an epic of the West to end all epics of the West, they resumed their vaudeville tour. Each night they'd try new jokes on the customers, and new ways to lure blondes into their clutches.

"And we must have thrown away hundreds of gags," Groucho said. "The people just sat there, glum, while we did what we thought were extra funny scenes."

The original scene one, act one, is a good example. That had Groucho, the city slicker, outfitting Harpo for a trip to the gold mining country. He sold Harpo a large sack to hold gold, a trap to catch bear, a gun to shoot Indians, a chunk of ice to keep himself cool, a bottle of bitters for snake bite, two potatoes to appease hunger, a coonskin cap to lure moose, and a red, white and blue railroad ticket, 20 yards long.

"In rehearsal we thought this scene was sure fire," Groucho said. "We even laughed ourselves. We told Irving Brecher, our writer, that he'd outdone himself. We opened in Joliet. The people didn't exactly boo, but neither did they roll in the aisles.

"We tried the script in Detroit and the answer was the same. The people didn't laugh. So we threw it out. Then we figured out what was wrong.

"The trouble was that the people didn't think it was funny for a slicker to outwit a sucker. There's too much of that in real life. What the scene needed was to have the sucker fool the slicker. So we got in that kind of twist and when we hit Chicago it was one of the big laughs of the show."

It was here that Eddie Buzzell, the director, called Groucho to resume the chase of Miss MacCloy, who was a Wild West saloon entertainer and who found herself eventually and inevitably on the lap of the Marx, where she looked uncomfortable.

When you're a blonde in the clutches of a Marx Brother you never know what is going to happen next. The pay is good, but the suspense is terrible.

Back From a Boat Ride—An early morning cruise on the Chesapeake Bay is one of the camp activities the girls enjoy. After yesterday's boat ride they wrote this poem:

Thank you, Cap, for the boat ride;
Thank you, Cap, for the fun.
We're happy and gay
As we sail away,
Out in the midst
Of the Beautiful Bay.

Thank you, Cap, for the boat ride;
We've had fun all the way.
So we sing sing,
Sing as we go
On Cap Decker's boat.

Girls at Boys' Camp End Two-Week Stay

A TWO-WEEK vacation at Camp Ernest W. Brown will end tomorrow for 150 girls—the first girls' group ever to have had a holiday at the Metropolitan Police Boys Club camp.

MEALS with fresh vegetables and melons right off the Potomac River farm at Scotland, Md., where the camp is located, are served in the big mess hall. The day's program starts with flag-raising at 7:10 a. m., followed by breakfast. Then the girls return to their cabins and put them in order for inspection. Two doctors and a nurse make the rounds, looking over both the campers and their living quarters.

IN each cabin are seven girls and their counselor. Four cabins form a unit for camp activities. Each chose a theme—one Indian lore, another Robin Hood, a third Hansel and Gretel—to carry out in handicraft projects and play. There have been hikes, nature study, classes in swimming and life saving, sailboat and motorboat trips and games of all kinds.

THE big reception hall, a fireplace at one end, is the center of activity on rainy days. There the Robin Hood group has been making hats and bows and arrows; the Indian group, moccasins, and the Hansel and Gretel girls, the witch's house.

THE girls' camp, sponsored by the Needy Children's Camp Committee, with Mrs. Frank A. Linzel as chairman, is an expansion of the camp activities carried on for the past 15 years by the Washington Council of Church Women, of which Mrs. Linzel is president. Maj. Brown, of the Metropolitan Police, for whom the camp is named, offered the use of it. It has been under the supervision of the Committee on Leisure Time Activities for Girls, Miss Sybil Baker, chairman.

MISS Etta Mai Russell, Juvenile Court worker for the council, and Mrs. Vivian Schaefer, of Miss Baker's committee, are assisting Miss Natalie Wandzilak, director of the camp. There is also a staff of junior counselors.

Employers Tour Defense Training Classes; D. C. to Expand Program for 1,200 More Men

Representatives of Government and private firms yesterday witnessed first-hand operation of Washington's national defense training program, which this week completes the first six-week course.

Sponsored jointly by the Office of Education, the local WPA, Council of National Defense and the Board of Education, the program has placed 550 persons at work training for a job in the defense program.

Paul Edwards, local WPA administrator, said the first phase of the course has been so successful the project will be expanded next week to provide training for some 1,200 persons.

The group of men visited three public schools, which have turned over facilities for this program. The schools are Abbott Vocational, McKinley High School and Chamberlain Vocational. Training is also provided for the colored at Phelps and Armstrong schools.

Following the tour of inspection, conducted by William D. Wallace, supervisor of the national defense training program here, the visitors commended the entire set-up and agreed the work would be helpful not only to the Nation but to the men as well.

Most of the men have not had a regular job in years and have tackled the new work with much enthusiasm, Wallace said.

Edmund O. Carl, head of the Call Carl automobile firm, which has already hired several of the men, said he believed the project was "splendid" because it provides the men with a chance for rehabilitation.

Commander D. H. Stuart, personnel officer of the Navy Yard, complimented those responsible for the smooth functioning of the project and said "it is helping to raise the morale of these men."

Present on the tour were Commander Stuart, Carl, Edwards, Wallace, Sam Solomon, of the Washington Airport; Jerome Fancuilli, Col. Harrison Brand, jr., W. H. Kessler, S. F. Merriam, H. J. Dorr, Robert Dulin, jr,, Lee D. Butler, Leopold Freedman, Paul T. Stone, John Davis, jr., Foster Wood and Miss Helen Seward.

Training is offered in the automobile shop, acetylene welding, steamfitters, electrical course, mechanical drawing, making of dies, tools, paint spraying, armature winding, etc.

Madame Chairman

by Suzanne

Ann Keebler, Elizabeth Powers, Fro mActive Units

SIX MEMBERS of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority from this section are attending the meeting of the Southern district of the organization now in session at Atlanta, Ga.

Anne Keebler, of Chevy Chase, president of Kappa Chapter at Randolph-Macon, and Elizabeth Powers, of Hyattsville, president of Pi Delta Chapter at the University of Maryland, are delegates from the active chapters, and Mrs. Frances M. Brotherhood, of this city, is representing the local alumnae chapter. Others from here who are attending are Mrs. Carlton W. Wahl, alumnae adviser to Pi Delta Chapter; Jane Howard and Marian Beck, both Pi Delta members.

Charlotte Granberry, a graduate of Randolph-Macon, is chairman of the convention. Delegates and representatives of the active and alumnae chapters from Maryland to Florida are the convention guests of the Atlanta Alumnae Chapter and Lambda Sigma Chapter at the University of Georgia, in Athens, joint hostesses. Mrs. Claude C. Ball, president of the Atlanta group, was a member of Alpha Omicron Pi at Syracuse University, and Miss Marie Richardson, of Atlanta, president of the active chapter, are assisting Miss Granberry.

Miss Keebler, representing Kappa Chapter, of Randolph-Macon, is a leader on that campus. Besides being the president of Kappa Chapter, she is a member of Sock and Buskin Club; is on the business staff of the yearbook and also on the art staff of the Old Maid, a humor magazine. Miss Keebler is a member of S. T. A. B. and Coffee Club, both secret organizations.

Mrs. Brotherhood, delegate from the Washington Alumnae Chapter, is a graduate of Cornell University. While in college Mrs. Brotherhood was historian, treasurer and president of Epsilon Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi. She was in the dramatic club three years and she was manager of the track team for a year. Since her graduation from college she has served as president of the Washington Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi three years. She is also past president of the Cornell Woman's Club of Washington and secretary of the board of trustees of the National Homeopathic Hospital.

Miss Powers, delegate from Pi Delta Chapter at Maryland, was historian of the sophomore and junior classes and is now secretary of the senior class. She is a member of Mortar Board, treasurer of Pan-Hellenic Council, and a member of the varsity debating team.

BIRTHDAY SUPPER—Epsilon Province, Alpha Zeta Beta National Sorority, observed "Founder's Day" last night with a supper dance on the Starlight Roof at the Roger Smith Hotel. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Stanton Kolb, province director, assisted by members of a social committee, comprised of representatives of each of the five local chapters.

Alpha Zeta Beta is the second oldest nonacademic sorority in the country. It was founded in Johnstown, N. Y., on August 29, 1897, and has grown to be one of the largest in the United States.

The recent convention held at the Hotel Lincoln, Indianapolis, Ind., closed a successful year for the sorority.

SEASON BEGINS—The regular weekly luncheons of the Washington Club will be resumed on Wednesday in the Little Cabinet Room of the Willard Hotel. This meeting will be a regular get-together party. Highlights of the recent biennial convention held in Salt Lake City in June and the regular topic of "vacations" by the members of the club will be discussed.

INSTALL OFFICERS—The George E. Killeen Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary will hold its first meeting of the year on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. New officers will be installed by Past Department President Mrs. Mary K. Killeen.

They include, vice presidents, Mrs. May Hart, Mrs. Anna Waters, Mrs. Evie Kidwell; chaplain, Miss Grace L. Stoek; sergeant at arms, Mrs. Mary Hilleary; property custodian, Mrs. Ercella Quinn; secretary, Mrs.

Nessler Studio.

MRS. WILLIAM P. STARR

Marguerite Buscher; treasurer, Mrs. Isabelle Steinbreaker.

At this time the new president, Mrs. Ruth Berryman, who was installed at the department convention, will appoint her committee chairmen for the incoming year.

Brazil Students Here to Study Federal System

Brazil has sent another group of its civil service employes to Washington to study the inner workings of the United States Government. The students were picked by competitive examination and their salaries are paid while they are here.

Seven enrolled yesterday in the School of Public Affairs, American University. Dr. John C. Patterson, the school director, expects about three others to be sent from Brazil.

Those enrolled yesterday are Othon H. Leonaidos, Gullherne dos Anjos, J. V. de Rezende, Antonio J. DaSilva, Lucio Bittencourt, J. T. Dias, Newton Ramalho and Mario P. deBrito, a professor at the University of Brazil, in charge of the group.

Contract Bridge

Four of our younger champions played today's hand at a recent duplicate at the Cavendish Club, lair of the experts.

Tobias Stone, a protege of Oswald Jacoby, and somewhat less than 23 years of age, managed to find a singleton king in Mrs. Helen Sobel's hand through strategy or intuition to win his optimistic contract of five hearts.

Charles Hutzler, Mrs. Sobel's partner, opened the eight of spades and Tobias saw at once that he stood to lose a spade and two diamond tricks, which would mean defeat. But if he could find the king of hearts, either doubleton with West or singleton with East, he could make the contract, winning one discard on dummy's long club.

He decided to lay down the ace of hearts, figuring Mrs. Sobel had the king for her overcall. He had little enough to go on, but the overcall was a clew and might make his play of the ace something more than sheer guess.

Tobias, who is neither timid nor reticent, said afterward of his partner's, Robert McPherran's, bidding:

"This is a typical McPherran stolen-contract. When youth plays with youth it is usually a few tricks too high. Youth is too optimistic." Tobias, Bobby and John R. Crawford, of Philadelphia, with whom Jacoby is playing in the masters' pairs this week, are the three youngest champions in the country.

Simple Meal Is Secret Of Successful Hostess

Home Economics Career Woman, Recently A Bride, Tells How Appealing Dishes Can Be Prepared by the Working Housewife

By Martha Ellyn,
The Post Food Editor.

A SIMPLE meal, well cooked, that relies upon subtle seasoning and attractive service is the ideal to be striven for by a successful hostess. Such is the tenet of one of Washington's home economics career women, recently a bride.

Mrs. W. P. Coppinger, the former Carolyn Chesser, has been Director of Home Economics, Electric Institute, for several years.

Martha Ellyn

But marriage has not taken her from her career, for she continues to direct the work of the home economic activities at the Electric Institute. Here she supervises the preparation of food and testing of the electrical equipment and recipes; cleaning, and anything that can be done by electrical equipment in the home.

Carolyn says that she is able to continue her career in business and run an apartment, too, because in her home economics training at Maryland University she learned to organize the duties of a home—and enjoy them while performing them. It is no trick for this home economist to have guests for a buffet supper, after a day at business, for she knows how to plan appealing dishes that are easily prepared; how to make the various items on her menu "come out" at the same and right time; to prepare food in advance and store it in her refrigerator, so that she has time for her guests, and does not have to hustle about in her kitchen leaving them alone to wait for their supper.

Much of the credit for being able to do two jobs (and she does them well) Carolyn says is due to her electrical "servants." An illustration of their advantages is shown in the buffet supper that Carolyn has planned for her guests. The menu follows:

Buffet Supper

Crab Cakes Sliced Ham
Scalloped Potatoes
Buttered Green Peas
Cheese Biscuits
Catsup Chili Sauce
Tossed Green Salad
Individual Orange
Refrigerator Pudding
Coffee

Carolyn had an innovation in the catsup and chili sauce bowls she used at her buffet. She is very enthusiastic about the way these two condiments are now being marketed. For years there have been complaints about catsup and chili sauce containers, for they have not been of the type to "go to the table." But the new twin crystal bowls that these two condiments are now being merchandised in, is a delightful twosome, and were graceful and attractive on Mrs. Coppinger's buffet table.

This food expert says that these twin bowls have more merit than being attractive enough to go to the table and being of fine flavor and color. First, she thinks they are excellent for storage in the refrigerator or elsewhere. They are economical because they do not necessitate the food being poured from the original container to another to be used at the table; they save time and there is no extra serving dish to wash. Then, too, she suggests that they can be utilized after the contents are used, by filling them with jellies, jams, pickles and other canned goods. These items, too, can go direct to the table.

Mrs. Coppinger has given the following recipes for three of the items that were on her buffet supper menu.

Crab Cakes

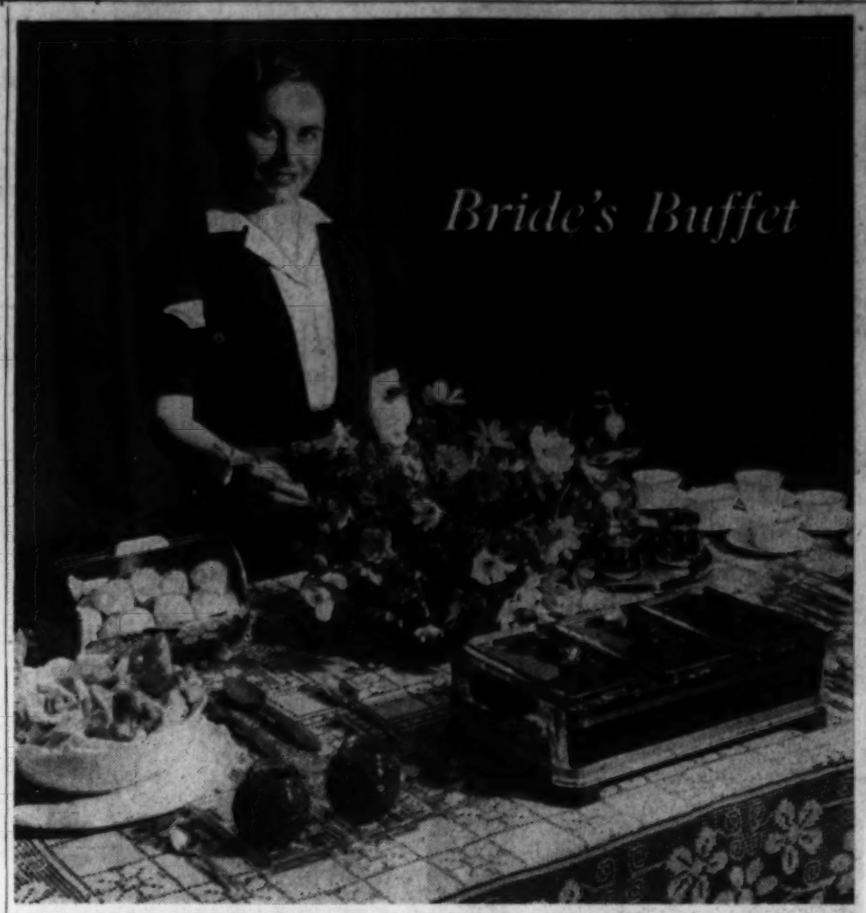
Remove shells from 1 pound of crab meat. Combine with 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon finely minced parsley, 1½ tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespoons commercial bread crumbs, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, loosely packed, and 1 teaspoon prepared mustard. Shape mixture into cakes and fry until a golden brown.

Cheese Biscuits

Sift together 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons shortening and 1 teaspoon salt; work in 4 tablespoons shortening with pastry blender. Add 1 cup grated American cheese. Add ¾ cup milk and mix to a soft dough. Toss on slightly floured pastry cloth or board. Roll or pat into shape and cut. Bake in preheated electric oven at 450 degrees for 12 minutes.

Individual Orange Refrigerator Pudding

Soak 1 tablespoon gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Combine 1 cup hot milk, ½ cup sugar and 2 egg yolks and cook over low heat of electric range until of custard consistency, then add softened gelatin. Cool and add ½ cup orange juice, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, ¼ teaspoon salt, grated rind of 1 orange and orange coloring if desired. Place in refrigerator and when mixture is partially congealed pour in ½ cup cream that has been whipped. Pour into individual molds and chill thoroughly, then unmold and serve garnished with orange sections, blanched almonds and whipped cream.



The attractive buffet setting Mrs. W. P. Coppinger has used in the picture above, shows the electrically heated table server in which she is keeping hot the crab cakes, scalloped potatoes and peas she will serve. The cheese biscuits are in the electric bread warmer, and the coffee is ready in the electric percolator. She is also using her twin crystal condiment set containing catsup and chili sauce, which she thinks should be on every buffet table

Grape Juice Shrub, Parson's Punch, Traditional Drinks

A modern version of an old-time favorite drink that was used to quench the thirst in sweltering summer weather is the famous "shrub" made of grape juice, beets and raspberries.

Here is the way to make the delicious drink.

Grape Juice Shrub

Boil together, 1½ cups coarsely grated raw beets, 2 cups raspberries, 1 cup water and 4 cups water for 10 minutes. Strain. Chill. Add 2 cups grape juice, the juice of 1 lemon and 1 quart carbonated water. Pour into tall glasses half filled with cracked ice. Serves 8.

Another summer iced drink, reminiscent of lawn socials and church fetes, is a drink called Parson's Punch. It is a tempting and tasteful fruit combination and it is easily prepared. It is particularly suitable for serving at parties or large gatherings. Follow this recipe:

Parson's Punch

Pour 1 quart boiling water over 4 tablespoons tea, and add 2 cups sugar. Stir until dissolved. Pour immediately over block of ice in a punch bowl. Combine, 2 cups lemon juice, 1 cup orange juice, 2 cups grape juice, 1 cup crushed pineapple, and 2 cups orange segments. Pour into punch bowl. Decorate with mint and additional orange slices. Makes 16 tall glasses or 40 small punch glasses.

Lowly Bean Is Glorified in Recipes

Contest Winners Give Formulae for Delicious Dishes

By The Post Food Editor.

NO ONE knows exactly what kind of a bean it was that tempted Jack of the Beanstalk to trade his mother's cow for it. Perhaps it was a great string bean or a gay pinto bean. But beans have come into notice in ways other than through fables. The Egyptian priests thought it nothing short of a crime to look at them; Pythagoras, the Greek philosopher, counted them in his meat abstinence as unclean; Romans ate them while attending funerals, thinking the three black beans would placate the Evil One. But it was the American Indian who cultivated beans as we know them. They made use of lima beans in their favorite dish, "misickquatash," known to us as succotash.

The contestants in this week's Post recipe contest have also made known some bean concoctions, in which both limas and string ones are recommended. Following are the winners.

Lima-Tomato Mold

$3 Prize.
Mary C. Lyne,
2530 Q street northwest

Recipe: Dissolve 1 package lemon-flavored gelatin in 1½ cups lima bean liquor. This should be saved from cooking fresh lima beans, if not sufficient add water to make the 1½ cups. To the liquid add 2 tablespoons cider vinegar and ½ teaspoon salt. Chill until partially set. Add 2½ cups fresh cooked lima beans. Pour all into 5½ by 9½-inch loaf pan. Chill until firm in refrigerator.

To make the tomato jelly, dissolve 1 package aspic-flavored gelatin in 2 cups hot tomato juice. Cool and pour over lima beans. Chill thoroughly in refrigerator. Unmold on platter decorated with salad greens. Garnish with halves of stuffed deviled eggs and green and red pepper rings.

Spanish String Beans

$2 Prize.
Mrs. John D. Swisher,
61 West Washington street, Hagerstown, Md.

Recipe: Wash 2 pounds green beans. Remove strings. Cut beans into small pieces. Brown 1 large, chopped onion and 1 clove garlic in 2 tablespoons bacon fat. Add the beans. Cover closely. Cook slowly until dry, then add ½ cup tomato catsup and 1 green, chopped pepper. Season with salt to taste. Cover and cook slowly until tender. Makes eight servings.

Recipe Contest

THEME — Interesting Ways to Use Canned Soups.

QUALIFICATIONS — Recipes must be kitchen-tested, practical, clearly written and exact and level measurements given. Oven temperatures and length of time for cooking must be given. All entries must be signed in long hand. Only one entry will be judged from a person. Number of servings should be given.

"CLOSING DATE—Noon, September 7.

"PRIZES—First, $3; second, $2; third, fourth and fifth, $1 each.

"RUNNERS-UP—Will be given honorable mention.

"Photographs of contestants should be sent if possible.

"Mail entries to Martha Ellyn, The Post Food Editor.

Indian Succotash

$1 Prize.
Mrs. Ella Hildebrand,
1338 Taylor street northeast

Recipe: String and wash thoroughly, 3 pounds string beans. Put into a deep kettle with ½-pound of bacon. Add salt and cover with water. Bring to boil and cook slowly, tightly covered for 1 to 1½ hours, being careful not to have liquid boil away. Add 6 medium-sized potatoes, cover and continue cooking until potatoes are about done. Scrape corn off four large ears of corn, salt and pepper ears and place on top of string beans. Cover and cook for 10 to 15 minutes. Additional hot water may be needed if too thick.

This amount serves six for a one-dish meal and is ample for two meals if served with meat. A hock of ham may be used in place of bacon, but should be cooked ½ hour or so before adding beans.

Lima Bean Pie, Peanut Butter Crust

$1 Prize.
Mrs. William L. Hurley,
311 Douglas street northeast

Recipe: Melt 3 tablespoons butter and add to it 5 tablespoons flour. Stir until well blended. Add 1 teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon paprika. Add 3 cups milk slowly, stirring constantly until smooth and thick. Bring to a boil, boil 2 minutes. Add 1½ cups cooked lima beans, ½ cup cooked, chopped celery and 2 carrots, sliced and cooked. Pour into a large buttered baking dish. Cover with the following crust:

Sift 1½ cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt together. Add 4 tablespoons peanut butter and mix thoroughly with fork. Add ½ cup milk to make soft dough. Turn onto floured board, toss lightly until outside looks smooth. Roll out to fit baking dish, cut slits for steam to escape. Cut bacon in very small pieces and sprinkle over top. Bake 20 minutes in hot oven.

String Beans With Mushrooms

$1 Prize.
Mrs. Carl J. Kreider,
1740 Euclid street northwest

Recipe: Cut 2 pounds string beans crosswise into 1-inch pieces. Wash thoroughly. Add ½-pound fresh mushrooms, which have been washed and sliced. Then add 1 cup minced onion, 1½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup water, 3 tablespoons salt and ½ teaspoon granulated sugar. Cover and cook over low heat until tender, about 30 minutes. Add dash of pepper and ½ cup cream or top milk and heat thoroughly. Serves six. One 4-ounce can of mushrooms may be substituted for the fresh ones. If canned ones are used, brown lightly in 2 tablespoons butter and add to the cooked beans.

The Federal Diary:

Housing Scene For Employes Here Brightens

Drive to Provide Defense Homes Speeded on All Fronts

By Edward Ryan

Government employes in Washington yesterday were given a slightly improved chance of being included in the developing $318,000,000 national defense housing program.

The speedup to get money for defense housing brought these moves:

The Senate approved a $100,000,000 appropriation for defense homes asked by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, following a conference earlier in the week with President Roosevelt.

Charles Palmer, housing coordinator for the National Defense Advisory Commission, reported that 110,000 dwellings for defense workers are needed now, and 50,000 more would be required when new aviation plants and other defense factories are built.

Chairman Lanham of the House Public Buildings and Grounds Committee promised speedy action on his bill to authorize $150,000,000 to be spent for defense housing under the Federal Works Agency.

First to Be Ready Dec. 2

Navy, Army, Budget and RFC officials speeded plans for a $50,000,000 start on defense dwellings, with the aid of a $10,000,000 allotment from the President's emergency fund.

USHA officials said the first of their 7,475 new homes for families of enlisted and civilian personnel at 17 Army and Navy posts would be ready December 2, the last on March 15. The agency has provided nearly $29,000,000 for the program.

Senator Wagner said he believed his $100,000,000 plan was broad enough to permit taking care of a housing shortage in Washington. He said he had no first hand information about the prospects of such a shortage.

His plan, approved in the second supplemental defense appropriation bill, would give the funds to the President for allocation to the Army and Navy to build their own temporary dwellings, or to other Federal agencies, on recommendation of the War and Navy departments, for construction wherever there is an acute housing shortage "which impedes the national defense program."

Sees New "Flu" Peril

Palmer, testifying at the first hearing on Lanham's housing bill, said that throughout the United States the need for new housing for defense workers is so serious that "unless something is done immediately we face a repetition of the World War "flu" epidemic.

He said that Army and Navy estimates of their housing needs were conservative. These estimates were presented by Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, chief of the Navy's bureau of yards and docks, who said the Navy saw need for 66,000 dwellings, and Maj. Arthur R. Wilson, who said the Army would need 50,000 housing units.

Admiral Moreell said that Washington's own housing shortage was so serious that Navy Yard workers here were leaving their jobs.

Representative Schafer (Republican), of Wisconsin, said that if Navy workers were leaving town, it would be in "good grace" to oust some of the $2,000, $3,000, and $4,000-a-year men from Government housing projects around Washington and open them to the skilled men needed at the Navy Yard.

Palmer, however, said that this plan would simply mean "swapping problems."

To Take More Testimony

Lanham called the defense chiefs back for more testimony on the bill today and said his committee would study it in executive session Tuesday.

Lanham's bill, it was pointed out, would permit defense homes to be built for these groups of defense workers: Enlisted naval and military men, civilian employes at naval or military reservations, posts or bases, and workers employed in industries essential to the national defense.

Federal housing officials suggested that this grouping would leave out the rank and file Government workers in Washington, including those employed in defense agencies, and would cover only Navy Yard workers. It was hinted that this arrangement was intended to leave the way clear for the District Alley Dwelling Authority to handle part of any Washington defense housing work.

Chairman Bulow of the Senate Civil Service Committee said that the Ramspeck bill to permit bringing 200,000 or more Government workers into the classified civil service setup is almost certain to be called up in the Senate next week.

Park Service Program To Be Held Indoors

To avoid expected rain, the Park Service campfire program will be held indoors tonight in the auditorium of the new Interior Building, Eighteenth and C streets northwest.

A lecture, beginning at 8:30, will be delivered by Mrs. L. Helen Fowler, daughter of the founder, on "The Waterlilies and Lotus of Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens." Her talk will be illustrated with pictures recently taken by Park Naturalist Donald E. McHenry.

Mrs. Harriman Due Here After Labor Day

Capital Society Eagerly Awaits Arrival of Minister to Norway, Who Returned on American Legion

By Hope Ridings Miller

"WHEN IS DAISY coming to Washington?"

That's what practically everybody in town has been asking ever since Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, United States Minister to Norway, stepped off the transport American Legion in New York on Wednesday.

Half a dozen times yesterday, in as many places, I heard conflicting reports of when she would be here and where she would stay. Well, latest dope is that she will spend the week-end and Labor Day with her daughter, Mrs. Harriman Russell, in New York, and will come to Washington on Tuesday. She will be at the Mayflower.

MRS. HARRIMAN

Now registered at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, Minister Harriman has held a sort of unofficial open house ever since she arrived. At the dock to meet her was quite a band of friends and relatives, including Mrs. Russell and her daughter, Phyllis, and Miss Maxine Davis and Mrs. Max Stern, of Washington. Now back in town, Miss Davis reports that Mrs. Harriman "never looked better in her life," and that she has some fascinating stories to tell.

Whether Mrs. Harriman's career as an envoy has ended is still a question. "I think that's up to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull," she diplomatically averred when reporters queried her about it.

SEEMS TO ME the logical thing for her to do now is to take some time off, collect her thoughts, and write a book about her experiences the past year. It's high time she turned out a sequel to "From Pinafores to Politics," her autobiography published in 1923.

When Mrs. Harriman's name came up at a small tea yesterday afternoon, somebody wondered how it happens that all her friends address her as Daisy, when her real name is Florence. Well, it seems her grandfather, Edwin Jaffray, started it all. He called her "Daisy-Paisy," and the first part stuck.

Incidentally, Mrs. Harriman's home here at 1800 Foxhall road has been leased for the winter by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dewey. Negotiations were completed, I understand, before she started home.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: From Newport come rumors that Sylvia Szechenyi, postdeb daughter of Countess Laszlo Szechenyi, is being rushed off her feet by Baron Hubert Pantz. He's a brother of Kurt Pantz, the well-known Austrian portrait painter, who has visited here frequently. Their father, Baron Ferdinand Pantz, was a member of the Austrian Parliament in the time of Emperor Franz Josef.

Arthur Bradley Campbell and his cousins, Marjorie and Isabelle Meuser and Francesca and Camilla Rospigiliosi, who have been living at Chetwode, the Astor home at Newport, will be moving out on September 9. But before then, he will entertain at a dance in honor of his cousins. Reports around the swanky Rhode Island resort have it that he is one of few persons to break into topflight Newport society in one season. Usually takes at least five.

HERE AND THERE: Mrs. Bissett Norment has returned to her home on Thirty-fifth street after a trip to Vancouver and San Francisco . . . All roads will lead to Warrenton, Va., this week-end for the Warrenton Horse Show and the round of parties planned for exhibitors and spectators . . . Biggest hunt country event of the week-end, of course, will be the horse show ball at the North Wales Club tomorrow night . . . Dinner parties beforehand will include those given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, Mr. and Mrs. William Murray Black, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. McGrath and Miss Lucia Duer . . . Tonight, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Church will entertain judges, officials and several out-of-town exhibitors at Northcliffe, their Virginia home.

Ruth C. Dean Visiting Ventnor (N. J.) Friend

Miss Ruth C. Dean, daughter of Dr. H. Trendley Dean, of the U. S. Public Health Service, and Mrs. Dean, is visiting Miss Anita Cajigas, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, at the Cajigas summer home at Ventnor, N. J.

Miss Dean will resume her studies at Arlington Hall College next month. She will be a senior.

Mrs. Keefer, Mrs. Neckley At White Sulphur

Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer and Mrs. Robert B. Neckley have gone to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where they will spend two weeks.

Mrs. Neckley, who is a well-known golfer, will enter the Mason and Dixon Tournament at the Greenbrier.

MRS. MORAN DRURY,

whose interest in the theater is more than a passing fancy, expects to leave soon for New York to begin a drama course. Chances are, one of these fine days, we'll be seeing her on the stage. But just now she's not planning to leave Washington permanently. She'll divide her time, the coming season, between here and New York

Howes to Fete Engaged Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe will give a dinner at the Clambake Club in Newport tonight in honor of Miss Carolyn Chaffee and her fiance, Frederick Brooke, jr., of Washington. Their marriage will take place tomorrow in Narragansett, R. I.

The Washington colony at Newport continues socially active as the season there draws to a close. Miss Edith Wright, daughter of Mrs. J. Butler Wright, of Washington, was guest of honor at a luncheon given on Wednesday by Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould. The latter presented Miss Wright to society at a tea dance in Newport last summer.

Mrs. Eugene Roberts, of Washington, has been joined by Mrs. Charles P. Stone. Mrs. C. Mathews Dick opened her house, Ocean View, for a fashion show on Wednesday.

Greggs Are Hosts At Service Club

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Gregg, of Alexandria, entertained at dinner at the Army and Navy Country Club last evening. Mr. Gregg, who is secretary to the committee for reciprocity information, has just returned from a trip to the West Coast.

Guests at the dinner included Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry F. Grady, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Deimel, jr., Mr. Mrs. Rives Childs and Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Groseclose.

Durkin-Cahill Wedding Solemnized at St. Ann's

Mary Durkin, a Pretty Picture in White Organdy, Given in Marriage by Her Father; Couple on Trip to New England

St. Ann's Church yesterday morning was the scene of the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Durkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose A. Durkin, to John Patrick Cahill, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cahill, of Washington. The Rev. Timothy McCarthy officiated at the 10 o'clock ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white embroidered organdy, fashioned on princess lines, with a full train. Her long veil was held to her hair by a coronet of fresh white roses and baby's breath and she carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, white roses and baby's breath.

Sister Serves As Maid of Honor

Miss Dorothy Magdalen Durkin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was gowned in yellow net, also styled on princess lines. Her shoulder veil of matching tulle was held to her hair by a coronet of yellow flowers, and she carried a spray of mixed garden flowers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Marie Krieg and Miss Dorothy Frances Clarkson, a cousin of the bride. Miss Kreig, gowned in pink net, wore a matching shoulder veil, held to her hair by two feather bluebirds, and Miss Clarksson, who was in blue, had her matching veil held by pink feather birds. All carried sprays of garden flowers. Frederick Krieg was the best man and the ushers were Francis Clarkson Durkin, brother of the bride, and Earl Watson.

Reception Follows At Durkin Home

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, 4208 Chesapeake street, in Chevy Chase. The mother of the bride was gowned in white jersey trimmed with gold kid. With it she wore a large brimmed gold straw hat and a corsage of orchids. The bridegroom's mother was in ashes of roses chiffon with blue accessories and a corsage of orchids.

When the couple left for their wedding trip the bride was wearing a navy-blue costume with matching accessories. After a honeymoon in New England, they will make their home in Washington.

The bride attended Sacred Heart Academy and St. Anthony's, and Mr. Cahill also attended St. Anthony's and Trinity. Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Charles F. Clarkson and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Clarkson, of Doylestown, Pa.

Mrs. William Mann To Return Here This Week-End

Reversing the usual order of things, whereby society leaves town over Labor Day, Mrs. William T. Mann is returning here this week-end. She is at present visiting her uncle, and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sims, at Cedarhurst, Long Island. Earlier she was at Newport staying with Mrs. Thorndike Phelps.

Mrs. Mann's debutante sister, Miss Barbara Beale, has returned with her mother, Mrs. William Beale, from a stay at York Harbor, Me. The attractive deb has decided to enter Smith College this fall, confining the social whirl to the holiday season. She was surprised to find that two of her Washington friends have been assigned to the same house on the Smith campus—Miss Kathleen Bell, daughter of the Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Daniel Bell, and Miss Sarah Everett.

Stamms, Mrs. Farnham Return to Washington

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Stamm and their daughter, Mrs. S. B. Farnham, have returned to Washington after a two weeks' trip to the New England coast. Mr. Farnham is expected to join his wife here shortly.

Mrs. Farnham recently returned from a trip to South America and was met in New York by her parents.

Lands to Make Labor Day Visit To Long Island

Rear Admiral and Wife Plan to Return To D. C. Tuesday

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, head of the Maritime Commission, and Mrs. Land will spend Labor Day week-end at Easthampton, Long Island, as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Trippe. They will return on Tuesday.

The Lands have had with them for several days Mrs. Gordon De Kay, wife of Lieut. De Kay, who is the admiral's nephew. The lieutenant is Assistant Naval Attache at the United States Embassy in Paris, but his tour of duty is up and he will leave soon for this country. Mrs. De Kay returned on the last trip of the Washington, when it was stopped by a submarine.

Mrs. De Kay, who has frequently visited Washington in the past, will leave today for South Carolina. She will return to New York in time to meet her husband.

Sally Whipple Is Honor Guest

Mrs. Charles D. Hartman entertained yesterday at a luncheon honoring Miss Sally Bailey Whipple, whose marriage to Lieut. Cornelis DeWitt Wilcox Lang will take place tomorrow.

Mrs. Hartman's home on Wyoming avenue was decorated in white for the occasion and a bridal motif was carried out in the dining room featuring dainty bouquets of gladioli, asters and baby breath.

The guests were Mrs. Sherburn Whipple, sr., mother of the bride-to-be; Mrs. John W. Lang, mother of the prospective bridegroom; Mrs. Frank B. Watson, Mrs. George V. Strong, Mrs. George Uhl, Mrs. Phillip Fleming, Mrs. William Morton, Mrs. Helen Jones, Mrs. Sherburn Whipple, jr., Miss Mary Hobson, Miss Jocelyn Fleming and Miss Edith Land.

Miss Grady Gives First of Season Luncheon Series

Miss Patricia Grady, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry F. Grady, entertained yesterday at the first in a series of luncheons she has planned for this season. The party took place in the Grady's apartment at The Highlands.

Guests were Miss Louise McNutt, the Misses Laurabelle and Jane Wyatt, Miss Margery Handwerk, Miss Mary Byrd Shearer, Miss Constance Williams and Miss Margery Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady expect to leave tomorrow on a motor trip through New England. En route, they will spend several days in New York.

Calverts Have Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Calvert, of Arlington, Va., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on Tuesday, August 20. Mrs. Calvert is the former Miss Lottie M. Copenhaver, of Winchester, Va.

Anna Maher's Troth Is Told

Of interest both in Washington and Virginia is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Maher, of Virginia Beach, Va., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Wales Maher, to Andrew Joseph R. Maloney, of Washington, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Maloney, of Arlington. The news was made known at a recent dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Maher.

The prospective bride is a graduate of Georgetown Visitation Convent and studied music at the King Smith Studio and Peabody Institute in Baltimore. She also attended the Bennett School in Millbrook, N. Y.

Mr. Maloney, who is associated with a local public utility company, is a graduate of George Washington and National Universities and is a member of Sigma Nu Phi fraternity.

The wedding will take place in the autumn.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

NOW AT NANTUCKET, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor is hoping to return to Washington in the autumn, and winter holidays from school undoubtedly will see the popular young Taylors at their favorite haunts in the Capital.

The Taylor home on Tracy place is leased to John Foster, of the British Embassy. Mr. Taylor is still in Europe where he has been doing such splendid work for the Red Cross.

It has been nearly a year now since the former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury left America, and during that time he has worked in Poland, Finland, Rumania, England and France. He was in France when it was being taken over by the Germans and his family had little news from him for two months except an occasional cable.

Mr. Taylor still doesn't know when he will be coming home. Such a conscientious worker as he thinks only of the job in hand, especially when it concerns the alleviation of human suffering.

When one is at the seaside there is nothing so stimulating to the intellect as bad weather. Bright days slip by in a complete mental calm, with time divided pleasantly between sun bathing and surf bathing. But gray and stormy days call for a little more mental activity.

Rehoboth dwellers have been fortunate during the recent—shall I say—lack of sunshine, to have such interesting indoor diversions as the exhibition of portraits by Caroline Bond, the lecture by Christopher Ward, at which he spoke of his books and light verse, and the Rehoboth Art League's showing of work by its youngest students.

A NUMBER OF Washington children have been faithfully working at their easels all summer and the results are both delightful and amusing. Milee Catledge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Turner Catledge, has taken to art with a big A and so great is her enthusiasm that she sits, brushes and paints in hand, waiting to be taken to her lesson. Her father insists that her only talent is that she can paint objects bigger and brighter than anyone else. When she grows up she might do well at commercial art, perhaps even doing justice to the claims of advertisers. Her flower pieces, done in brillian colors, would do credit to any seed catalog.

Also exhibiting at the Art League are the two small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Winslow, Hallie and Kitsy. Hallie has contributed a portrait, done with great force and simplicity, and labeled "Little Lulu," while Kitsy has put her signature to several very sea-going boat pictures.

Nine-year-old Ann Kauffman, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Frederick Kauffman, shows some very nice water colors, among them one of a house, which is particularly good.

Most versatile and, to my mind, best contributor is Molly Goodrich, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Edgar Goodrich, whose still lifes, done in water color, are really excellent. There are also some examples of her work in oils as well as some drawings in pencil.

MRS. McCENEY WERLICH, who has been spending the summer at Rehoboth to be near her father, Robert Hinckley, sr., would very much like to take her son, Bob, for a trip to Mexico before he enters Hill School in September. However, she feels that Mexico may have at least two presidents by the time she arrives there, and that the tranquillity of a country does not necessarily increase with the number of its rulers. She may give up the trip rather than risk being caught in a political upheaval or, what to her would be worse, forbidden to travel to all the delightful places which she saw on her Mexican trip last spring, and which she is anxious to show her son.

A. K. Boysen, of Washington, has arrived at Rehoboth and is staying at the Corner Cupboard. Mr. Boysen has recently been a visitor to Cape May.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, who are at Skytop, Pa., for the late summer, have as their guests their daughter, Mrs. Chauncey L. Waddell, of Riverside, N. Y., and her son, Richard H. Waddell.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., has gone to Beverly, Mass., to spend the week-end with Mrs. Lodge.

The Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Anthony Rumbold, who have been at Marion, Mass., this summer, have gone to New York, where they are stopping at the Ritz-Carlton.

Lieut. Col. Jorge Sarmiento, Military Attache of the Peruvian Embassy, is at the Ambassador Hotel in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. White, of Warrenton, have returned to Saratoga for the final races.

Mrs. Haywood D. Newbold, of Washington, has left Southampton for a stay in Manhattan.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Langhorne, of this city, gave a dinner on Wednesday evening at their home in Bar Harbor. Among their guests from Washington were Mrs. F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart and Ralph Snowden Hill, who is visiting them.

Mrs. Charles Edward Moore and Miss Beatrice Moore are at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York.

Mrs. R. H. Dunlap has gone to New York, where she is staying at the Ritz-Carlton.

Tea Wagon Oracle

I

Now politics and economics
Have always been so much Greek to me,
But now that an election's in the offing,
I can discuss either with certainty.

II

And heretofore I've found the doings
Of other nations quite a bore,
But now I know just what they're up to,
I can tell you more than a commodore.

III

I make no claims to heavy thinking,
I'm just a butterfly on the wing,
And yet while the statesmen all are groping,
I know the answers to everything.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

A general shifting of Truthtown vacationists is now taking place. Since it is highly unfashionable to be seen at Swank Springs after September 1, Truthtown socialites there are making a hurried exodus to Clamport and Barbecue Beach.

Truthtown resorters who are at Camp Ritz are frantically making transportation arrangements to get away from there by September 6, the deadline date for giving an address at that place. After that date all sorts of ordinary tourists may be seen at the camp.

Mrs. Reginald Pelf, recently appointed chairman of the Women's Auxiliary Committee to Discuss Plans for Forming an Organization to Aid Refugee British Children, has gone to Balmy Bay for a few weeks to rest up for the arduous organization duties before her.

The Great Outdoors

Glimpsed at the Dartwood Diddle's recent garden party—Mrs. Parmalee Pigeon, outstanding Truthtown dowager, fighting a losing fight with a fly over her pistachio ice cream . . . Dr. Horatio Duller discoursing to a group of fascinated women guests on the sex life of the gladioli . . . Miss Tootsie Snark and Miss Gloria Bigsbee, glamour debs, disappearing to bring more sandwiches and never returning . . . The Countess Creme de Menthe holding court on a wet canvas chair . . . Mr. Hawksberry Ramble, outstanding nature lover, guessing the age of the boxwood . . . Mrs. Ebenezer Oxley sitting with a handkerchief spread over her ankles . . . Mrs. Josiah Plush telling Mrs. Diddle that if she had her garden she would simply live in it . . . Mr. Plush heatedly telling a group of women listeners just what Britain should do . . . Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric dowager, equipped with a small spray gun with which she kept flies, hornets, bees, locusts, etc., at their proper distance.

New Champion

Word comes from Clamport, where many Truthtown socialites are summering, that Livingston DeCrasher, popular bachelor, bon vivant, gourmet and man about town, has won the annual croquet tournament. In a closely fought game, he defeated Arbuthnot Abercrombie, who has held the championship for two years.

Truthtown friends of Mr. De Crasher are planning a welcoming party at the Boxwood Country Club when he returns home, which will be in the middle of September, if it seems evident by that time that the heat has been permanently routed.

Dramatic Dinner Dress

A decorative blonde making an impression on local audiences this week is willowy young Catharine Ryan, the chief attraction at Bailey's Cross Roads Theater in "The Vinegar Tree." Miss Ryan finds time in between shows to gratify a healthy appetite for new fall clothes and does so dramatically with the black crepe dinner dress, above. The skirt features the side-saddle drape, while the bodice employs lace embroidery to give a provocative cut-out appearance. This dress, at a local shop, is well within the range of moderate budgets

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man's Fervent Kiss Won Girl's Heart, but He Never Came Back; Is He Indifferent or Embarrassed?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl in my twenties. About a year ago I met a certain young man and had several dates with him; mostly "double dates." I felt that he liked me very much, but he wouldn't take the initiative in asking to see me, although he accepted several invitations to come to my house. And apparently he enjoyed coming.

He doesn't have a car and I live out quite a distance, and something he said leads me to believe this is one reason for his not asking me for dates. I have my own car, and I think he is sensitive to the fact that my means are greater than his. But I am perfectly willing to go places with him on bus or street car and don't see why his pride should keep him from asking me.

Around the first year, after we had had several dates, he let his feelings get the best of him. I do not believe he was merely being "fresh." Can a boy kiss a girl with his whole heart and soul in the kiss, and yet not be in love with her? I knew from that day that I cared deeply for him.

Since that incident he hasn't asked me for a date, and yet when I meet him on the street his manner is entirely friendly. I feel that he does care for me, but is embarrassed because of that incident and because he doesn't know how I feel about it. Would it be foolish for me to reopen the friendship by asking him out with other friends for a bridge game some evening? Your opinion will mean a great deal to me, as I have never cared for anyone as I do for this young man. JULIE N.

Man's Absence Implies Indifference and Respect

DEAR JULIE: If the man's memorable kiss had been (to him) symbolic of that "heart and soul" feeling which you thought it expressed, he would not have let the acquaintanceship lapse thereafter. Supposing you responded to it with any grace whatsoever, or simply accepted it shyly (and I assume, from what you say, that you didn't slap his face), he would have regarded the exchange as unspoken affirmation of a "beautiful understanding" between you, waiting to be explored. And he would have been back in very short order, on his own volition, to pursue the adventure. He would, that is, if the kiss had meant anything more to him than a transient surrender to a moment's temptation.

Yet, as you say, I don't think he was being "merely fresh." He wasn't trying to take advantage of your no doubt quite obvious liking for him. But there are few men so ascetically self controlled as to refrain from kissing, with convincing ardor, an attractive girl who quite evidently is yearning to be kissed—particularly when the stage seems set for a kiss, or a bit of lovemaking. What makes their salute so convincing, at the moment, is the fact that, for the moment, they are overcome by an intensity of feeling; but the feeling may be physical and irrational, rather than spiritual and stemming from the intrinsic personality of the man.

Supposing it is the former, and the girl in the case is (as the saying goes) "a very nice girl," (as I take it you are)—then afterward the man is apt to be a bit ashamed of himself, for having taken advantage of her naivete to express his less worthy feelings. And if he avoids her thereafter, it probably is a sign of his essential indifference to her, as well as an indirect expression of his real respect for her. His reaction is more instinctive than reasoned—but his thoughts, if clarified, probably would show that he regarded the girl as "an all right sort," who "just doesn't know what it's all about," and who deserves a better brand of devotion than he would give her, if the barriers were down.

You say this man's manner is "entirely friendly" when you meet him by chance. That would seem to disprove your theory that he "is embarrassed because of that incident, etc." If he were embarrassed, or fighting a significant interest in you, his manner would be tense rather than genial, when you talked with him. It is likely he has virtually forgotten the incident, unless to remember that you are a sweet girl to kiss.

His nonchalance, as well as the deep impression which his caress made on you, lead one to think he is practised in the art of kissing and that he probably has kissed numerous other girls since he "lost his head" with you. So I expect if you could candidly compare notes on the relative significance of the "incident," you would find that you are making a mountain out of something he has long since dismissed as a molehill.

However, if you wish to invite him to your home for a game of bridge, along with several others, there is no conventional reason why you shouldn't. But you must face the fact that in so doing, you are making it plain to him that you are courting his attention. And since his failure to follow through on the kiss suggests that he doesn't find you any spell-binder, one wonders if the game is worth the candle. Frankly, I think it isn't. I think you would be wiser in letting him take the initiative in bringing you two together, if you are ever to resume a social exchange.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Men Usually Prefer Modern Furniture

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

INTERIOR decoration is generally pretty much on the feminine side—there's no use denying that. And without apology, since the men don't really mind the furbelows as much as they pretend to. Nevertheless, they stand firmly on their masculine rights when it comes to their own private quarters. And perhaps it is not so strange, in view of their taste for stanch tweed and fine leather, that, left to themselves without previous decorative prejudices, the men will almost invariably select modern furniture for their own backgrounds.

Modern furniture that is as efficient as a tier of file cabinets and a big flat-top desk . . . but for home use, seasoned with geniality—this is the sort of thing a man on his own will gravitate toward in a furniture department. The current versions of modern for men are likely to be in natural wood grains with no hardware, or else with hardware in a plastic or of saddle leather. Leather also is being used a great deal in woven strips for chair seats and backs, as well as for bed headboards.

Natural Woods Appeal

Unit furniture made of different sections that can be combined in an infinite variety of ways appeals to men, too, probably because it enables them to arrange their stuff exactly the way they like it. Besides, these unit sections usually include some of those shallow long drawers where shirts and such like can be put away so much more slickly than in the usual cavernous dresser drawer that is just the wrong proportion for men's clothes.

Natural wood grains appeal to men not only for furniture, but also for walls. As for fabrics, the current textural materials in high vogue are right up a man's alley. So are the plaids and stripes used widely by decorators.

A WOMAN'S WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

MRS. FLORENCE CONLIN, who says she's been doing social work "for years" but who could pass for a high school girl, was the toast of the landlord and tenant division of Municipal Court during the one-month survey she made there recently. The experiment, sponsored by the Council of Social Agencies, was to determine whether a social worker was needed in the court. The result? Well, Mrs. Conlin admits that within a few days defendants, lawyers, real estate companies, probation officers, police and social agencies began requesting her help in their cases.

Mrs. Conlin

"Here is a case where outside aid was indispensable," she says. "The father had deserted five years ago. The oldest son, now 22, has been holding together the family of eight with his WPA salary, plus $16 monthly paid to a blind brother by NYA. Recently, because of the lay-off period now required by WPA, even his small earnings faded out of the picture. As a result he fell behind in his rent.

"I visited the home and went over the family finances, as I did in 80 out of the 100 cases selected for the survey. Then I consulted a public assistance supervisor and arranged for some relief money. Meanwhile, the District Employment Center is lining up a job for the boy, and the landlord has agreed to withhold pressure until the family gets on its feet."

The chatelaine of one of America's bigger yachts took her dog walking in Potomac Park during a recent visit to Washington. Her dog made friends with another dog, she started talking to its mistress, and the four of them continued their stroll together. Finally the stranger said, "My car is parked near here; may I drive you home?" She accepted the offer with thanks, then added, "We're living on the waterfront." The other woman gasped and, with her dog, disappeared in a cloud of disdainful dust.

DID YOU KNOW . . . that Oliver Gasch, assistant corporation counsel, is the son of Marie Manning Gasch, better known to newspaper readers as Beatrice Fairfax? That Janet Fish, tall and stately superintendent of nurses at Emergency Hospital, is the sister of Representative Hamilton Fish? That Mrs. Coleridge Ertz is not only the sister-in-law of Novelist Susan Ertz but a great-niece of Elizabeth Barrett Browning?

Self-Reliant, Healthy Girl Has Best Chance at College

By Ida Jean Kain

A girl goes to college for four years before she finds out what it's all about—and then she wishes she could start over and do it all differently! Advice from mother—although freely given—is not as highly prized as it might be. After all, college has changed in the 20 years or so since she was an undergraduate!

But practically every question that could arise has been foreseen by Dr. Gulielma F. Alsop and Mary F. McBride in their book, "She's Off to College;" Dr. Alsop is physician at Barnard College and Miss McBride is director of the business and professional girls' department at one of the Y. W. C. A.'s in New York.

Clinging Vine Finds Nothing Which to Cling

The modern girl, the authors make clear, must be successful in many more ways than her mother. She can't be delicate, fragile or a clinging vine. Clinging vines are outmoded, the boys can't afford them! She must be strong, resilient and athletic and the only way she can be those things is to enjoy superlative health.

Sports are a necessity to the popular college girl and it's all bosh about them making bulgy muscles. Sports are streamlining and foster a gracefully erect posture. The modern athletic body is supple and lithe, rather than strong and powerful.

Girls Conscious Of Diet, Weight

Today's college girl is diet and weight conscious, and forms excellent food habits in college. At Barnard the daily diet is based on: A quart of milk, an egg, four to six pieces of fruit, salads at least once and two hot vegetables. After that the girl eats whatever she likes and can eat without gaining too much.

The medical prescription of the "girl with a health" reads like that of a beauty contest winner! She is the picture of perfect health. She is the usual height for her age and the usual weight for her height, with a haemoglobin count of 90 or above. She has a clear, pink skin without blemishes and possesses perfect teeth with only one or two cavities that have been filled. She does not wear glasses.

SmoothManners Indicate Poise

HOW important that first date! If the girl embarrasses her new admirer by careless table manners she may be sure there'll be no second one.

A girl used to the ways of polite society does not "stack" used dishes or push them away from her—clutching her silver like spears the while. She lays her silver on the side of her plate, waits quietly for servant or waiter to remove soiled dishes.

Nor does the girl of background butter a large slab of bread, sip her coffee with a spoon or eat iced cake with her fingers.

The correct way is to break off and butter a small piece of bread at a time, drink coffee from the cup, eat iced cake with a fork.

Such details may seem trifling, but they mean so much to your social rating. Yet anyone can check on the fine points of etiquette—appear as poised and sophisticated as if to the manner born.

Must you reply to a formal invitation? Answer by hand, spacing your reply as the invitation was spaced. Stuck too long with a partner at a dance? Ask him to look up your escort, suggest a trade in partners. Returning home in a taxi, don't give the driver your address, but let your escort do it.

And when you are at a large party, where all-around introductions are impossible, show yourself socially "in the know"—introduce yourself to guests who are near you, chat pleasantly.

It's so reassuring to know the right thing! Our 40-page booklet, Etiquette for Every Day, gives answers to hundreds of etiquette questions. Tells what's correct for introductions, cards; when dining, dancing, dating, entertaining, visiting, traveling and motoring; at the theater, games.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, Etiquette for Every Day, to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

House Bill Would Tax 'Pin Ball' Games Here

Revenue Too Low, Pay Rolls Too High Here, Says Overton

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

An increase in District revenue and a reduction in municipal operating expenses were suggested yesterday by Chairman Overton, of the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations, as a bill to tax vending and pin machines was introduced in the House.

Senator Overton, long an advocate of the sales tax, said he believed that the District government pay roll is too large and its capital improvements in recent years too few.

Enactment of a sales tax and modification of the income tax by raising the base to $10,000, Senator Overton declared, would assist him in his fight for a larger Federal payment.

"Congress would be more inclined to listen to arguments for a larger Federal payment if its members were convinced that District residents are paying a proportionate share of taxes," he said.

Prepare to Wield Ax

The District Commissioners are preparing to reduce the 1942 municipal budget by approximately $12,000,000 to keep within anticipated revenue and to avoid any new taxation.

A new source of revenue was proposed, meanwhile, by Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, a member of the fiscal subcommittee of the House District Committee.

His bill proposed license fees of $150 a year for all vending machines and $300 for every pin-ball machine in the National Capital.

McGehee said that he had obtained reports showing that there are 1,000 vending machines and 4,000 pin-ball machines in Washington. His plan, he estimates, would raise $150,000 from the cigarette vending machines and $1,200,000 from the pin-ball machines.

Large Profits Reported

The latter would be charged a license fee double the former, he said, because the profits are proportionally larger. Pin-ball machines often return as much as $150 a month, McGehee said he had been informed.

Due to the lateness of the session, McGehee said he would not press his revenue proposal until the next Congress, but would gather data in support of it in the meantime.

Senator Overton, in urging more revenue for the District, explained that he was not critical of the Commissioners' decision to keep the 1942 budget within revenue available.

However, he said he was impressed with the fact that the city's capital improvements have been decreasing during the last few years while its operating expenses have been growing steadily.

Suggests Income Tax

Last year Senator Overton initiated a move to replace obsolete schools and put money in the District appropriation bill for the purchase of sites for consolidated elementary schools.

Together with Chairman Caldwell of the House subcommittee on District appropriations, he directed the Commissioners to prepare a five-year program of Capital needs. Department heads are now engaged in preparing this report.

Senator Overton suggested that the income tax base be raised to $10,000 and that the rates be increased somewhat along the lines of the Pond plan, to tie in with the sales tax.

Because of the national defense program and the recent acquisition of valuable District property by the Federal Government, Overton said his formula, based on the relation of United States-owned property to the whole District, would yield more than the $8,000,000 estimate of two years ago.

Rail Express Strike Decision Awaits Parley

Two strikes affecting the Nation's Capital, one active and the other impending, remained unchanged yesterday.

Until September 1, when district chairmen of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks meet here, no action will be taken in the threatened strike of 33,000 employes of the Railway Express Agency. George M. Harrison, head of the union, said. He added, however, that more than 95 per cent of the union's members had voted to strike and only an unexpected change in the company's stand can avert a walkout.

The clerks are demanding a 44-hour week instead of their present 48-hour week. The shorter work week, except for certain classes of employes, was recommended by a fact-finding board appointed in July by President Roosevelt.

A strike of painters on the Lafayette Building, Fifteenth and I streets northwest, will continue until called off by orders from the International Painters' Union, Joseph F. Hillock, busines agent of Painters' Local No. 368, declared. Twenty-nine painters stopped work on the building, which is to house the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, on orders from international union headquarters at Lafayette, Ind.

The strike, Hillock explained, was called by the international because of a dispute in New York which called out all painters under contract to the Gladstone Raines Co., of New York, painting contractor on the local building. He added that painters would not be affected on other Government jobs here.

Keep Money but Return Heirlooms, Thieves Asked

Mrs. Helen Irwin, 2200 Sixteenth street northwest, last night requested the return of family heirlooms in her pocketbook which was stolen from her Tuesday night by two colored boys in Union Station.

"I'm not looking for the return of the money in the pocketbook," Mrs. Irwin said. "But I would like to get back a watch, fountain pen and two wallets which were in it."

The watch had belonged to her husband and his father before him, she said, and she wanted to pass it along to her 7-year-old son, Richard, along with the other keepsakes belonging to her husband.

Schmidt was named deputy international templar, and Mrs. Shaw, grand assistant secretary.

Others elected were C. H. McElfresh, Monrovia, Md., grand chief templar; Raymond E. Hardy, Baltimore, grand secretary, and Edwin W. Mullinix, Sykesville, Md., grand treasurer.

Rip Van Winkle Play Postponed Till Fall

Hampered by a week of rain, the Summer Festival Committee yesterday announced that the Washington Players' production of "Rip Van Winkle" would be postponed until fall. The production, scheduled as the ninth event of the season in the Sylvan Theater, will be presented at a date to be decided later.

The committee's tenth and last event, Sigmund Romberg's "Blossom Time," will be given by the Columbia Light Opera Company Wednesday night at the Watergate. Tickets are on sale at the National Symphony box office, Homer L. Kitt music store.

2 Men Held In Kidnaping Of Motorist

Suspects Slugged, Robbed Him of Car, Cash, Says Victim; Jailed in Fairfax

Two bandit suspects were lodged in Fairfax (Va.) Jail yesterday, and a New York man was continuing his kidnaping-delayed trip to Norfolk after a few drinks in Washington had set off a brief but hectic chain of incidents.

Clarence E. Strafstrom, of New York City, stopped at a tavern here for refreshments while driving to Norfolk. He became acquainted with two men who offered him company on the trip.

The drive ended suddenly for Strafstrom, for when he awoke from a blow to the head, he found himself 9 miles south of Alexandria, his arms strapped by his belt and legs bound by his shoelaces. A wallet with $35, his car, and the two strangers were gone. He managed to free himself and hitch a ride to Alexandria, where he reported to police at 12:15 a. m.

Caught in Richmond

Alexandria police broadcast a State-wide lookout, and less than an hour later Richmond police announced they had captured the two men and recovered the car and cash. Later yesterday Strafstrom identified the pair, who were transferred to Fairfax Jail.

The suspects, charged with assault and highway robbery, gave their names as Charles Mullins, 24, of Waterloo, Ohio, and Clarence J. Murphy, 24, of Oldtown, Me.

An aged colored man was seriously injured yesterday afternoon when assaulted in his home by a thug who robbed him of $5.40. The victim, John H. Brown, 82, of 195 St. Catherine street northeast, told police that a stranger knocked at the door, and when he opened it the intruder choked him unconscious.

Found by Grandson

Brown was found lying on the floor by a grandson, Edgar Porter, 15, of 715 Eastern avenue northeast. He was taken to Casualty Hospital.

A purse snatcher got $1.50 from Miss Valeria Normandin yesterday, but he had to make a long run for it. Miss Normandin, 2700 Connecticut avenue northwest, was accosted on the south end of the Taft Bridge. She screamed, and an autoist pursued the thief, who had jumped into a cab.

The chase continued downtown to the Greyhound Bus Terminal, into which the snatcher fled and escaped.

D. C. Man Dies In Va. Crash, 7 Hurt Here

Two Children Are Among the Victims; Pair Hit on Curb

Seven persons, four of them children, were injured in District area traffic yesterday, and a Washington man was killed when his automobile crashed into a truck near Woodstock, Va.

George Henry Johnson, colored, 38, was killed when the automobile he was drivink collided with a transfer van just south of Woodstock. Lottie Green, his sister, and Silas Walker, both colored, both of Washington, were slightly injured.

Two children, Lilly Sheakin, 8, of 927 G place northwest, and Betty Dunn, 10, of 300 G street northwest suffered lacerations of the feet when they were struck by an automobile while sitting on the curb at Constitution avenue and Twelfth street northwest. Police said the automobile was operated by John A. Pignatello, 31, of 711 G street southeast.

Three women injured in an accident at Bristol, Md., were brought to Casualty Hospital by the Marlboro rescue squad. They were Ada Schmidt, 55; Ruth Schenkel, 16, and Mamie Hackley, colored, 35, all of Chevy Chase, Md. All three sustained minor injuries.

Clara Shipp, 34, of 1248 Irving street northwest, suffered bruises and a fractured right ankle when she was struck by an automobile in the 3100 block of Fourteenth street northwest. Police said the automobile was operated by Edward O. Ellis, 21, of 6408 Luzon avenue northwest.

Matthew L. Harris, 33, of 766 Gresham place northwest, was hurt when struck by an automobile, police said, was operated by Pauline B. Holmes, 40, of 722 Gresham place, at Gresham place and Georgia avenue.

B. & O. to Survey Hyattsville Stop

In answer to repeated petitions of various citizens' groups in the metropolitan area of Prince Georges County, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is about to conduct a survey to determine the feasibility of stopping all through trains at the Hyattsville station.

Such a survey was made in 1937, when the requests were first made, but the railroad authorities did not feel that the situation warranted action at that time.

Federal Court Clerks Open Convention

Closer Accord of Bar, Court Groups Urged By Francis W. Hill

Swapping anecdotes of "dockets" and "briefs," Federal Court clerks from 11 circuit courts and 91 district tribunals last night brought a busman's-holiday conclusion to a day of proposals for streamlined justice.

In an afternoon session, during the opening day of the nineteenth annual convention of the Federal Court Clerks Association at Wardman Park Hotel, Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the District Bar Association, urged special committees representing bar groups and court clerks for increased cooperation between the two organizations.

The bar head said that attorneys were frequently confronted by unusual situations in which they were nonplussed as to the proper procedure.

Conferences between representatives of both groups would expedite procedure and would "render a real service in bettering the administration of justice," Hill asserted.

Last night the clerks adjourned to the Shoreham Hotel to witness a swimming and diving exhibition, then returned to Wardman Park Hotel to compare notes on the informal side of the prosecution of justice in their respective judicial bailiwicks.

1,800 in D. C. Area To Take U. S. Test For Typists' Jobs

Nearly 1,000 stenographers from Washington and nearby, with typewriters and erasers, will troop into McKinley High School today to compete for Government jobs.

They will be among the first of 80,000 citizens throughout the country who are expected to take the Civil Service Commission's examination for Government typists and stenographers during the next few weeks.

Prizes in their gigantic typing contest will be jobs in Federal agencies at salaries ranging from $1,260 for junior typist, to $1,440 for senior typists and junior stenographers, and $1,620 for senior stenographers. In Washington about 1,800 persons will take the examination today and tomorrow, with others to come in later.

Capt. McMurray To Discuss Sham War

Capt. Paul H. McMurray, United States Army Reserves, will speak at 12:30 p. m. today at the Washington Round Table at the National Press Club, Fourteenth and F streets northwest. His topic will be "Echoes From the First Army's Maneuvers."

Veterinarians Boost National Control Plan to Curb Rabies

Association Adopts Measures as Official Policy; Steady Increase in Animal Diseases Man May Acquire Noted

The House of Representatives of the American Veterinary Medical Association voted, 57 to 43, last night for reliance upon national control measures to curb canine rabies. Disapproval of reliance upon compulsory annual vaccination offered as a solution to the problem was voiced at the seventy-seventh annual convention of the association in the Mayflower Hotel.

National control measures officially adopted as the policy of the A. V. M. A. toward rabies, are:

Measures should be instituted to insure that all dogs shall be kept under control, and the ownerless stray eliminated.

A national law should be passed giving the dog a status equal with other livestock.

A national governmental agency, preferably the Bureau of Animal Industry, should be charged with correllating a cooperative Federal-State plan for the eradication of the disease.

There should be uniform compulsory laws capable of State and municipal enforcement, providing for the humane destruction of all stray and ownerless dogs, the licensing and control of all other dogs, and a six months' quarantine for all dogs brought into the country.

Steady increase in animal diseases men may acquire has made necessary the establishment of departments of preventive medicine in veterinary colleges, said Dr. A. F. Schalk, professor of veterinary medicine at Ohio State University. Animal diseases, he said, are transmitted to humans not only directly, but through consumption of animal foods.

Dr. Cliff D. Carpenter, pathologist, Fort Wayne, Ind., told the convention that this country's farmers would save $100,000,000 annually if all the present known methods for controlling poultry diseases were put into effect promptly. He discussed problems of the billion dollar poultry industry with Dr. James E. Rice, professor emeritus of poultry husbandry at Cornell University.

Dr. Harry W. Jakeman, of Boston, was elected president of the association at yesterday morning's meeting. He will be installed at the 1941 convention. Vice presidents elected are Dr. Claude H. Case, Akron, Ohio; Dr. James D. Grossman, Columbus, Ohio; Dr. Seymour Hadwen, Toronto, Canada; Col. Joseph F. Crosby, of Washington, and Dr. W. J. Butler, of Helena, Mont.

Dr. I. E. Newson, dean of veterinary medicine at Colorado State College of Agriculture, Fort Collins, Colo., was elected chairman of the executive board. Reelected treasurer for the twenty-third consecutive term was Dr. M. Jacob, University of Tennessee.

Dr. Jay Arthur Myers, professor of medicine, University of Minnesota, was voted an honorary member of the association at last night's session for his work in the eradication of bovine tuberculosis. Appointed executive secretary of the A. V. M. A., starting January 1, was Dr. John G. Hardenberg, who has been director of research of the Walker-Gordon Laboratory Co., Plainsboro, N. J. Dr. L. A. Merillat, of Chicago, will launch a new publication this fall, the American Journal of Veterinary Research.

San Francisco was chosen for the 1942 convention. Indianapolis will be the convention city next year, having been selected at the last convention.

Legal Fraternity Elects 2 District Men to Offices

H. L. LOHNES

Horace L. Lohnes, Washington attorney, has been elected chancellor of Delta Theta Phi, legal fraternity, it was announced yesterday in Cleveland, where 300 delegates are attending the twenty-fourth biennial convention. Lohnes is first vice president of the Federal Communications Bar Association.

Another District man honored at the convention is Meredith M. Daubin, elected to the fraternity's supreme court. The delegates voted to establish a new senate at the Washington College of Law, to be known as the John W. Davis Senate.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Through some sort of an oversight, no doubt, the last 24 hours have elapsed without mention by this department of the Cleveland Indians and the sad plight of Oscar Vitt, who has a winning ball team on his hands—and in his hair.

POVICH

In the sense that the Indians pay little heed to the supposed authority of Manager Vitt, he seems to be a manager without a ball team, but the Cleveland players would doubtless describe it as vice versa.

The only parallel we can think of to the Vitt situation was, strangely enough, provided by another Cleveland club, back in the late twenties. That was when Jack McCallister was named Cleveland manager after Tris Speaker abruptly resigned. McCallister, like Vitt, reigned very weakly as the manager.

In fact, the story is told of how Cleveland players of that era over-ruled McCallister whenever his strategy didn't suit them. George Uhle, the old pitcher; George Burns, the old first baseman, and Sherry Smith, another pitching ancient, used to take the direction of McCallister's Cleveland club pretty much into their own hands.

Whenever any question of strategy would come up, Uhle, Smith and Busns used to gather around the water cooler in the Indians' dugout and kindly invite Manager McCallister to confer with them. If they were debating a hit-and-run play or a sacrifice, they would take a vote—the four of 'em. If the vote were a 2-to-2 tie, they'd arrive at a decision by tossing out the vote of Manager McCallister.

Understand now, please, that our sympathies are all with Vitt in his horrible situation with his ball players. The poor fellow is so worried about keeping the Indians up there in front amid all the internal turmoil on his club that his is not a happy world. He deserves credit for keeping a rigid upper lip and refusing to quit to a bunch of ball players who booh-hooed their way into the front office and gained the support of a club owner who didn't have the nerve to tell 'em off.

It is a ridiculous situation on the Cleveland team and scarcely will do the Indians any good in the final stretch of the pennant race. Already there is considerable contempt for the Indians around the league, and Buck Newsom who was ever the one to speak forthrightly, probably expressed it the other day when the Cleveland club was being discussed.

"I see by the papers that Vitt was going to enter an official protest because I was pitching with tape around my broken thumb," said Newsom. "Well, that don't go with me. No protest by the Cleveland club is official until it is made by Hal Trosky, who runs the team, not Vitt."

Speaking of the Indians, as we have been for the past two weeks, the fact is that the second-place Detroit Tigers are not viewing with any considerable alarm the present league lead held by the Cleveland club. Manager Del Baker said so yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

"We still have nine games to play with the Indians in the last month of the season," said Baker, who appeared to like the thought of those nine games immensely. "When it comes to a show-down, I think we'll do all right against the Indians. When we were winning pennants back in 1934 and '35, Cleveland teams didn't bother us much."

That seems to be a current impression around the league—that the Indians will fold when the traffic gets heavy in September and the rush hour is at hand. At least one Detroit player does not tremble at the prospect that Bob Feller will pitch every third day if necessary to keep the Indians in the lead.

"I hope they do work Feller out of turn," he said. "Great pitcher that boy, but he can't carry the Indians to the pennant alone. He's a great pitcher only when he works every fourth day. If Vitt starts shoving him in there as a relief man, Feller won't do 'em any good. He gives too much when he's pitching. He's better with four days rest than three. The one thing that Feller isn't is a relief pitcher and Vitt will find that out; in fact, he should know it by this time."

Baker does not share the Cleveland club's alarm at the late-season surge of the New York Yankees. "I hope the Yankees are the best club we have to beat out. We played 'em three games in New York last week and they didn't look any better to us than they did earlier in the season when they were in the second division. The Yanks don't have it this year. I don't think they're going to catch anybody."

We asked Baker if he thought his team could win the pennant and he cracked back, "Why not?" Well, we won't go into that except to note that the only surprising feature about his decaying infield is that it held up longer than most folks believed it would. Cleveland may blow the pennant, but if the Tigers don't win it, it will have been lost in the Detroit infield that didn't stand up as most of Baker's friends warned him it wouldn't. Then again, perhaps he knew it all the time.

Gene Sarazen Upsets Picard In P.G.A. Golf

Hagen Loses to McSpaden on Technicality; Snead Is Winner

By the Associated Press

Hershey, Pa., Aug. 29.—That old gaffer Gene Sarazen, who is enjoying an astonishing season of success in what should, by rights, be the twilight of his career, fought his way to the quarter-finals of the Professional Golfers Association Championship today with a victory over Henry Picard, the defending champion, on the thirty-sixth green.

And that other stripling Walter Hagen (47), was out of it only because he got to dreaming late in the afternoon and accidentally touched the ball of his opponent, Harold (Jug) McSpaden and automatically lost a crucial hole. The five-time former champion lost out, finally, on the thirty-sixth hole, where he stroked a putt with all his unbounded confidence and watched it lick the cup—and stay out.

The other six survivors of two rounds of medal play and three match conflicts were Sam Snead, who clashes with Sarazen tomorrow; Paul Runyan, twice former P. G. A. winner, who engages McSpaden; Byron Nelson, former Open champion and P. G. A. finalist last year, who meets Eddie Kirk, an unknown from Framingham, Mich., and Ben Hogan and Ralph Guldahl, a pair of topnotchers from Texas who need no introduction.

Nelson Beats Metz

Nelson pulled perhaps the day's second best upset, behind that of Sarazen, when he knocked the props from under Dick Metz, of Chicago. Metz had won the two medal rounds and was a dozen strokes under par for the week when he encountered the 1939 Open champion. Nelson, after being one down at the end of the morning round, clung to Metz until Dick finally cracked in the cold, drizzly afternoon, and lost 2 and 1.

Sarazen though, won his match. The little guy who captured his first of three P. G. A. crowns 18 years ago this summer, shot a par 73 in the morning to take a one-up lead over Picard, and then fairly blazed around in 68 strokes in the afternoon to make his victory stick.

Picard, the home pro who knows every patch of clover on his own water-logged course, shot a 68 in the afternoon too, but it couldn't save him.

On the final green Picard wound up and placed his tee shot less than 2 feet from the hole. It was a sure birdie and it appeared certain he would carry his tired antagonist an extra hole. But Sarazen knocked his about 6 feet beyond the pin, gave it a quick once over and banged it squarely into the hole.

Haig Has 72

It was nice drama, that. The only improvement would have been another win for the Haig, who, by all the law of averages, shouldn't have survived the qualifying round. But he scored an under-par 72 to lead McSpaden two up at the end of their morning round, and except for a spell of absent mindedness would have held him all square at 36. He simply didn't see McSpaden's ball when he dragged his club across it on the thirty-first hole.

Snead shot five under par golf to slaughter Jimmy Hines, 7 and 6. Runyan, the little geezer who can't drive within 40 yards of any opponent, knocked out Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, 4 and 3.

Kirk, the boy from Michigan, was the only real outsider among the surviving eight. But he waded through some nice opposition the last two days. He was the guy who trimmed Jimmy Demaret yesterday, 2 and 1, and he was only two above par for 32 holes when he closed out Art Clark, of Uniontown, Pa., 5 and 4, today.

Hogan, the year's biggest money winner, shot a 71 in the morning and was four under par when he finally basned Al Brosch, of Farmingdale, N. Y., 5 and 4. He wound

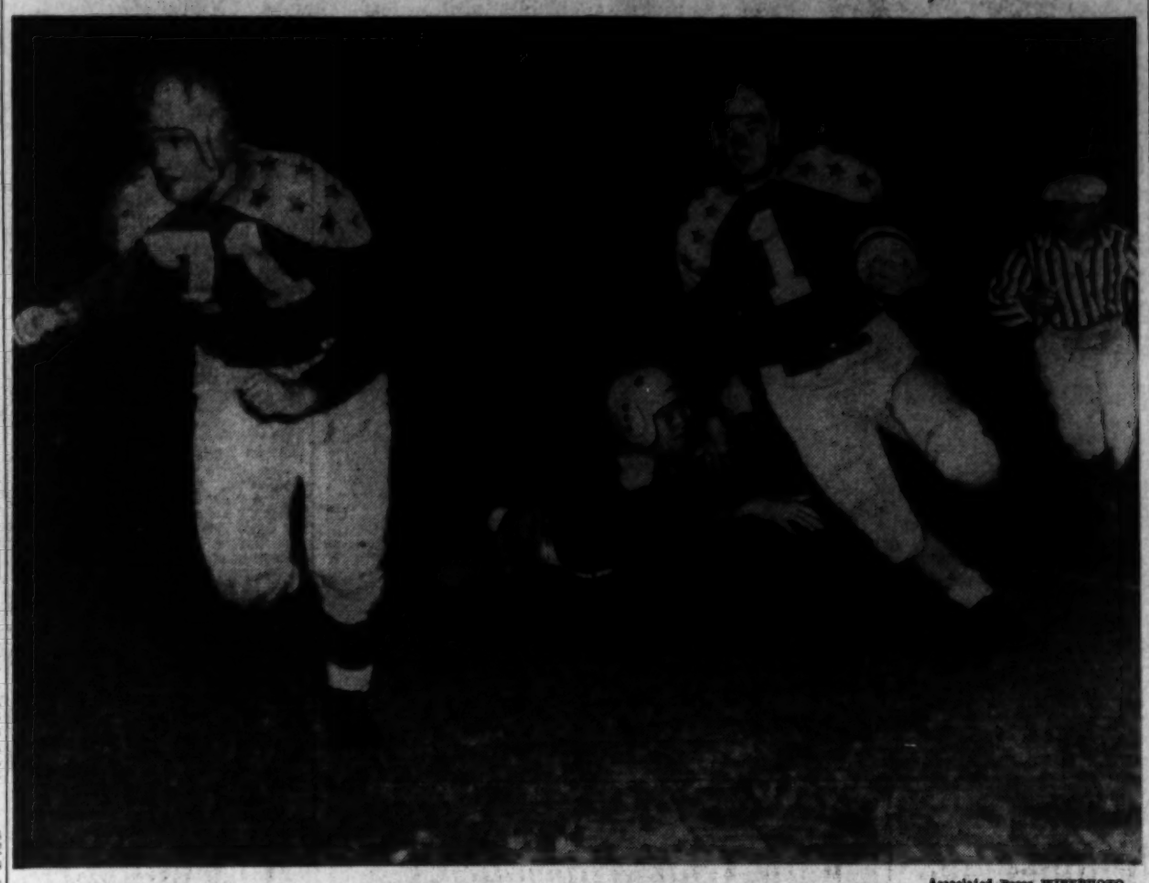
Cincinnati Recalls John Vander Meer

Cincinnati, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds recalled Johnny Vander Meer, their double-no-hit king of two years ago, from the Indianapolis Club of the American Association tonight.

Johnny, plagued by wildness all last year, was sent to Indianapolis early this season in hopes of improving his control. He has won six and lost two for the Indians, a Red farm club, and came within shouting distance of another no-hit game.

Jewel Ens, Indianapolis manager, told Manager Bill McKenchnie of the Reds that Vandy was ready to come back to the majors.

Packers' Passes Rout All-Stars, 45-28



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Nile Kinnick (1), of Iowa, appears to be on the way to a touchdown but he was stopped on this end run soon after the picture was snapped at Chicago. Jim Logan (71), of Indiana, and a left guard, runs interference. That's a would-be Packer tackler hitting the ground

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Springing all the aerial tricks in their well-packed kit, the world champion Green Bay Packers completely mystified a dangerous All-Star squad before 84,567 in Soldier Field tonight and won Chicago's seventh annual charity football game almost as they pleased, 45 to 28.

When split-seconds timing meant touchdowns, the Packers were there and each time the collegians shot into the lead or even threatened, the precise professionals turned on the heat and romped away.

Six times they crossed the All-Stars' goal in one of the wildest scoring games of the series and all but one came on a pass either from the veteran Arnie Herber or Cecil Isbell, twin terrors of the National League.

All-Stars Score

The All-Stars put over a touchdown three and one-half minutes after the game started. Ambrose Schindler went over for a touchdown in four plays after he had intercepted Cecil Isbell's pass and went to the 17-yard line. Nile Kinnick's try for extra point was good.

Then the Green Bay organization went into action which was climaxed by Isbell's 55-yard pass to Don Hutson and a 31-yard gallop for a touchdown. Smith tied up the game when he kicked the extra point.

The Packers forged ahead on a beautiful pass, Isbell to Mulleneaux, who had replaced Gantenbein. The score was 14 to 7 when Smith again kicked the goal. With a minute to go, the All-Stars put the ball on the 1-yard line when Kinnick passed to Kavanaugh 24 yards. The whole left side of the Packer line stopped Kellogg in his tracks as the quarter ended, with the Packers leading, 14 to 7.

The All-Stars tied the game shortly after the second quarter opened. On two tries after Kenney Washington, Negro U. C. L. A. star, went over for the touchdown. Kellogg's try for extra point was good and the score was tied.

Tie Is Broken

The tie lasted about two minutes as Herber passed 35 yards and Uram dodged Washington and crossed the line for another touchdown. Tiny Engenbretzen kicked the ball between the goal posts.

Isbell passed to Hutson good for another touchdown for the Packers. Smith kicked good.

The All-Star aerial game went into action and Kinnick passed to Banks McFadden for a touchdown. Kinnick kicked goal.

It was a great victory for the Packers, avenging ttheir stunning collapse in the 1937 spectacle when Sammy Baugh and Gaynell Tinsley completed the only scoring pass of the night for an All-Star victory.

For two periods it looked like a new scoring record for any kind of a ball game. The first period ended with the Packers in front, 14 to 7. They led at the half, 28 to 21, and apparently were just beginning to go.

As it was, it broke the scoring record of 28 to 16, set in 1938 as the All-Stars routed the Washington Redskins. The crowd also shattered all attendance records for the series.

Rowe, Newsom Beat Nats in Double-Header

Greenberg Provides Power for Tigers With Five Hits, Including Two Homers; Chase Loses Opener, 3-2; Hudson Routed, 6-0

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Three large gentlemen named Schoolboy Rowe, Buck Newsom and Hank Greenberg pooled their talents at Griffith Stadium yesterday against the Nats and compounded a double victory for the Detroit Tigers.

The scores were 3 to 2 and 6 to 0. The Nats succeeded only in tightening the pennant race in a negative sort of way. Their futility against the pitching of the Messrs. Rowe and Newsom, and the swatting of Greenberg moved the Detroit club within two games of the league-leading Cleveland Indians who were idle in Philadelphia but doubtless listening in attentively.

Rowe and Newsom held the Nats tight in the grip of their pitching and Greenberg belted the daylights out of 'em. That was the formula in each game. The second game was called at the end of six innings on account of a fog and mist that darkened the field, but it was just as well. Newsom had not allowed a Nat past first base after the first inning.

The rather innocent victim of the entire proceedings was Ken Chase, who pitched a clever sort of game in the opening battle against Rowe only to see the Nats make a dismal muff of a chance for a big inning.

Sidney Hudson was the loser of the second game. The Tigers weren't impressed with his record of 13 victories and belted him out of there in two innings, scoring four runs. Given that 4-0 lead, Newsom coasted to his sixteenth victory of the year against two defeats. He held the Nats to four hits in the abbreviated affair.

Rowe was a powerful help to himself in that first game against Chase. In fact, he slugged his winning run across the plate in the eighth inning, betaking a 2-2 tie with a two-bagger against the right-field wall that scored Dick Bartell from second base. A bit earlier, Chase invited disaster when he pitched a two-bagger to Bartell with one out. Bartell drove the ball to deep left—a triple for a faster man.

Back in the second inning, the Tigers took a 1-to-0 lead against

Joe Krakauskas To Face Yankees' Donald Today

The Nats entrained last night for a four-game series at Yankee Stadium starting today and concluding with a double-header on Sunday.

Joe Krakauskas will be restored to a starting role on the Nats' staff today. He will oppose Atley Donald, Yankee right-hander. Manager Bucky Harris indicated that Sid Hudson, who lasted only two innings against the Tigers yesterday, would return to the mound during the Yankee series.

Red Sox Beat Chicago as Run Is Forced In

Cronin Scores in 9th With Winning Run Of 4-3 Victory

Boston, Aug. 29.—The Red Sox escaped a tumble into the second division today by defeating the Chicago White Sox, 4-3, in the series' finale. Relief Pitcher Johnny Rigney gave the Red Sockers the game by forcing in the winning run with two out in the ninth.

After uncorking a three-run rally in the sixth, the Red Sox found themselves in a deadlock when they went to bat in the ninth. They loaded the bases with two singles and a pass before Rigney forced in Pitcher Jack Wilson by giving Manager Joe Cronin a base on balls.

Wilson gave the Chisox nine hits while his mates were pounding Jack Knott, who retired in the eighth, and Rigney for 11 safeties.

Browns Bow To New York, 10-3 and 6-5

Champions Now Only 4½ Games Behind Cleveland and 2½ Out of Second Place

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 29.—The courageous New York Yankees battled like champions today to sweep a double-header from the St. Louis Browns, 10 to 8 and 6 to 5, and narrow the gap separating them from first place to 4½ games 2½ out of second.

The first game was a contest only until the fifth inning, when the Yankees scored all their ten runs in a startling uprising that saw the bases filled nine times as 16 men went to bat. Lefty Marius Russo coasted to his eleventh victory by scattering 11 hits, one less than the Yanks collected off four hurlers.

The nightcap went 13 innings before a perfect squeeze bunt by Frank Crosetti with the baser loaded and two out brought home the winning run.

Elden Auker went all the way for St. Louis and was winning, 4 to 1, with two out, in the ninth. Then Joe DiMaggio, riding the bench because of a charley horse, delivered a pinch homer with two on to tie the score. It was his twenty-eighth of the season.

George McQuinn opened the eleventh with a home run, but the Yanks again knotted the count on Charley Keller's double and Buddy Rosar's single. Relief Pitcher John Murphy got credit for the win.

Challedon Faces Hard Campaign Before Retiring

By the Associated Press

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 29. W. L. Brann has mapped out a very strenuous campaign for his champion horse Challedon. The champ came out of his recent race in good shape despite a slight welt over his eye. Challedon will start in the Saratoga Cup, mile and 6 furlongs, Saturday. His next start will be in the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park, which, like the Saratoga Cup, is a weight for age affair. The $50,000 New York Handicap may attract the breeder to send his horse along for the rich 2¼-mile event.

Mr. Brann intends to retire Challendon to the stud next year. He will stand at Brann's Glade Valley Farm in Maryland.

Comiskey-Baer To Meet Week Of Sept. 23

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 29.—Promoter Jack Kearns announced late today that Patrick Edward Comiskey, the Paterson, N. J., heavyweight, and Max Baer, former world's champion, would meet in Jersey City "the week of September 23."

He said Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, had accepted his offer and that they would leave the coast immediately, arriving here by plane to sign the formal agreement Tuesday.

At that time, Kearns said the exact date of the fight—probably "the latter part of the week"—and the length of the bout would be announced.

Earlier in the day Abe J. Greene, Jersey boxing commissioner, said he had given Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, until tomorrow afternoon to accept or reject negotiations, which have been dragging along for several days without any definite announcement.

Kearns said he talked with Hoffman by phone today and that later the manager of the former "Madcap Maxie" had accepted the terms in a telegram.

Kearns said that a check for the guarantee—which Greene had demanded—would be presented to him at the time of the signing, and that all the conditions demanded by Greene to show Kearns' good faith in the promotion had been met and accepted.

The bout will be held in Roosevelt Stadium, home of the Jersey City Giants of the International Baseball League.

The promoter was Jack Dempsey's manager when the Manassa Mauler was the world's champion.

Cincinnati Reds Beat Brooklyn, 9-3, Increase League Lead

Derringer Credited With 17th Victory

Rhinelanders Now 8½ Games in Front; Whitlow Wyatt Is Routed in 2 Innings

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 29.—Neither rain nor the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers could stop the Cincinnati Reds today as they hammered out a 9-to-3 triumph that gave them an apparently unshakable 8½-game grip on the National League lead.

Already behind their schedule and forced to play a game tomorrow on what was to have been an open date, the two teams waited an hour beyond starting time today for a break in a downpour in order to get their game going. Rain fell persistently through the last 4½ innings but by that time the champions had the contest under control and the drizzle made little difference.

Paul Derringer, in acquiring his seventeenth victory, kept seven hits scattered, although one of them was a home run by Ducky Medwick in the first inning.

On the other hand the Reds battered five Brooklyn pitchers for a dozen hits, including two home runs.

They went to work on Whitlow Wyatt with two runs in the first inning on a walk and doubles by Frank McCormick and Jim Ripple, the latter making his debut in left-field after being claimed from the Dodgers on waivers.

The Reds scored again in the second on Mike McCormick's double, a sacrifice and an infield out, causing Whitlow Wyatt to be replaced the following frame by Lefty Lee Grissom, a former Red.

He gave up a walk and a single that resulted in a run on a forceout and was removed for a pinch hitter in the fifth. Tex Carleton, who pitched a no-hitter here early in the season, passed out three runs immediately on two singles, a fly, and Ernie Lombardi's fourteenth home run. Hugh Casey did little better, giving a single ahead of a home run to Billy Myers in the sixth.

Bucs Take Eighth Straight From Quakers; MacFayden Relieves

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 29.—Hitting timely and turning in three double plays, the Pittsburgh Pirates whitewashed Philadelphia today, 4 to 0, for their eighth straight triumph over the Quakers.

Mace Brown, who has shown a tendency to weaken in the late innings, was summarily yanked by Manager Frankie Frisch in the eighth after Rookie Dan Litwhiler singled and Johnny Rizzo bounced a double off the leftfield fence. Danny MacFayden halted the potential rally.

Debs Garms and Bob Elliott gathered three hits apiece. Garms' triple with two out in the third and Elliott's surprise bunt scored the first Pirate run. They clinched the game in the fourth when Arky Vaughan tripled, scoring Fletcher, and came home on Vince DiMaggio's towering fly to center.

A. J. Biddle, Wife Win Mixed Net Doubles Crown

By the Associated Press

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Aug. 29.—Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., and his wife, of Philadelphia, Pa., continued their blistering pace to win today the Robert E. Lee week mixed doubles tennis crown.

Biddle, United States representative in Poland until after the Nazi occupation of that country, and his wife won 47 games against a field of 22 teams.

In second place were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Orton, of Chicago, who won 42 games to beat out Prince and Princess Alexander Hohenlohe by two points.

Princess Hohenlohe, a daughter of the Biddles, was married to the Polish prince shortly before the Nazi invasion.

'Cookie' Lavagetto Stricken With Acute Appendicitis

Dodger Third-Sacker Undergoes Operation; Injuries Continue to Plague Club

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 29.—Acute appendicitis struck Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto today and dealt a new stunning blow to pennant hopes of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

As surgeons removed a gangrenous appendix from the 23-year-old veteran third sacker, Manager Leo Durocher assembled a "scrambled" infield and insisted "we'll carry on." He conceded, however, that his pennant-hungry charges had experienced another tough break in their injury-plagued battle to wrest the league lead from the Champion Reds—currently eight and one-half games ahead.

LAVAGETTO

"Lavagetto is a very sick boy," said Dr. Reed Shank, staff surgeon of the Cincinnati Reds, as he left an operating room in Christ Hospital.

The appendix had not ruptured but, he added, "there was a definite gangrenous condition and we took it in the nick of time."

The young Californian was stricken during the night after retiring in apparent good health.

Barring complications which Dr. Shank said he did not expect, Lavagetto will be confined to the hospital a week or ten days and must rest the remainder of the baseball season.

Rookie Pete Reiser will take over the hot corner and Durocher and Johnny Hudson will divide the shortstop spot where Reiser has been performing in the absence of Harold "Peewee" Reese.

Reese, from Louisville, Ky., and one of the rookie finds of the year, fractured a bone in his left foot several weeks ago shortly after recovering from the effects of a "beaning."

Other Dodgers have met injury or been otherwise incapacitated; Whit Wyatt, of the hurling staff, nursed a bad knee early in the season; Joe Medwick, $150,000 former Cardinal outfielder, and Pitcher Hugh Casey were hit with pitched balls; Dolph Camilli, slugging first baseman, was out with a muscular ailment and Durocher himself has recently complained of a sore throwing arm.

Lavagetto has hit .257 in 118 games, against an even .300 last year. He batted in 41 runs, and scored 56, including 4 circuit blows.

Everett Meets Alpert In Finals of Southpaw Play

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Alvin Everett, Rome, Ga., defending champion, and Sam G. Alpert, of Chicago, the medalist, will meet tomorrow in the 36-hole final of the National Left-handers' Golf Tournament.

Everett, who can play equally well right-handed, coasted to an easy 7 and 6 victory over Bob Edgar, St. Louis, in their semifinal match today, while Alpert defeated Robert Romberger of Toledo, Ohio, 3 and 2.

Starting the afternoon round 3 up, Everett increased his advantage to 5 up at the end of the twenty-seventh hole, and went on to win two of the next three, to run out the match on the thirtieth green. The Southerner was around the first 18 holes in 72, one over par, and had a 37 on the first nine this afternoon. On the three remaining holes he was two under par, getting a birdie deuce on the 210-yard par three eleventh hole.

Alpert, a Chicago public accountant who entered the tourney on a hunch he might be back on his game after a long slump, likewise gained a 3 up lead on the Toledo school teacher in the morning and held it through the next nine holes.

He went 4 up with a par 4 at the twenty-eighth. Romberger's birdie 4 on the thirty-second reduced the lead to 3 up again and they halved the next to end the match.

Bill McGee Only Allows Two Hits; St. Louis in 3d Place

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—The fast-charging St. Louis Cardinals piled up five runs in the first inning today and shut out the New York Giants, 5 to 0, on the magnificent two-hit hurling of Fiddler Bill McGee.

The victory gave the Redbirds undisputed possession of third place in the National League and dropped the Giants back to within half a game of the fifth-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

The only blows given up by McGee in nailing his thirteenth win were singles, one in the first by Johnny Ruckert and the other in the eighth by Tony Cuccinello.

Hal Schumacher was the victim of the Cardinal assault, yielding five hits, including Martin Marion's single with the bases loaded, which was good for three runs. Paul Dean and Jim Lynn, who shared the New York pitching burden after the first inning, allowed only three hits, but their fine performance came too late.

Howell, Pro Grid Ace, Nominated For Legislature

By the Associated Press

Lonoke, Ark., Aug. 29.—Big Jim Lee Howell, the pass snagging end of the New York Giants' pro football team and former All-Southwest Conference player at the University of Arkansas, will represent Lonoke County in the Arkansas Legislature next year.

The 26-year-old Howell, who makes his home here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Howell, won the Democratic nomination as representative in yesterday's primary while he was in the Giant training camp at Orahgeburg, N. Y. He defeated Harry Griffin, of Carlisle 2,438 to 2,300. Democratic nomination is tantamount to election.

He did most of his campaigning before he went to training camp two weeks ago and his friends did the rest.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 29.—If some dope named Pete, whose only claim to fame was owning a card in a plumber's local, got the kind of deal which Ossie Vitt is now getting, the National Labor Relations Board would come buckety-bucking to the rescue with a fist full of brass-knuckled rulings that would protect Pete and slap his tormentors all over the lot.

CONSIDINE

No one seems to deny now that Vitt has been told that this is his last season as manager of the Cleveland Indians. That he has hollered and cajoled his listless athletes up to the brink of Cleveland's first pennant in 20 years, apparently doesn't matter. His bosses, Alva Bradley and C. C. Slapnicka, refused to back him up militantly when his pouting players asked that he be dismissed in mid-season for hurting their feelings. And forced him to rescind a recent suspension of one of the club's chronic trouble-makers, Jeff Heath.

Unlike P. K. Wrigley, who silenced Gabby Hartnett's hecklers by announcing that Gab would manage the Cubs in 1941, even though the current Cubs are in sixth place, Bradley is cupping a more sympathetic ear to the complaints of ball players than to the established wisdom of a manager who long since has proved that he knows his job and does it well.

We believe every player should have a right to air his complaints. But by the same token, so should the manager be permitted to squawk to the boss. And if the manager happens to be doing as well as Vitt is doing, any reasoning employer should have the gumption to uphold him. On another team a crop of those Cleveland crybabies would have been dealt with so severely they'd never let out another unjustified weep. We keep wondering what diabolical means Old John McGraw would have decided upon, if faced with the sullen revolt which is about to unseat Vitt.

Vitt has turned in the best managerial job of the year—bar none. But as it is now, the team is rudderless. Vitt, has authority spiked, manages it with pardonably less fire and zeal, and Luke Sewell, who seems to be the crown prince of the dynasty, is putting in his aggressive bids, though why anyone should want the jobs staggers the imagination. If the Indians cross the finish line first, on the sheer momentum built up by Vitts' peppering tactics during the season, they will go into the world series without a manager. That is, unless Bradley acts now and gives Vitt a new, long-term contract.

Speaking of Hartnett, Gabby said the other day that he was through experimenting with Dizzy Dean. "If we can pitch him when he comes back," Gab said, "we'll keep him. If he can't pitch, I'm not sure he'll be with us at camp next spring."

Hartnett's slight indecision about Dean's future is the result of Wrigley's keen interest in the once-garrulous thrower. Insiders say that Wrigley still can't believe that Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon would have charged him $185,000 for a worthless pitcher. If Hartnett had had his way, Dean would have been traded last year. But Wrigley, who personally ordered Dizzy's return from the Cub's Tulsa farm believes that Dean can still win. And no one can fail to vouchsafe for him that little delusion, in view of the cost of the dream.

At Tulsa Dean won eight and lost six. The report that he picked up a sidearm motion gives ball players a chuckle, for Diz has been a side-armer since he lost his stuff in 1937. We have a hunch that Dizzy will soon convince even Wrigley (the last Dean enthusiast) that he is through. He will be put on the market at the end of the season, and one of Larry McPhail's louder announcements at the next winter meeting will be that he has acquired the services of a man who—publicized in the McPhail manner—can still draw enough extra fans to a single lame performance to pay his season's salary.

Price, Doerer Win At Rock Creek

Al Price and Tommy Doerer defeated Mel Shorey and Cliff Spencer in an exhibition match at Rock Creek Course yesterday. The foursome finished all even at the end of 18 and went 9 more where the Doerer-Price duo won 2 up.

Doerer and Price posted a best ball at 64. Doerer posted a 67 on the first 18, while the others had 69s.

Darby Du Captures O'Donnell Trophy at Marlboro Track

Victor Comes From Last Place to Win

Jockey Walters Pilots Winner; Candle Ends Runs Second in Sprint

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 29.—A stretch-running son of Tommy Boy, Darby Du, won the fine trophy offered by Tom O'Donnell, Washington restaurauteur, for the winner of today's fature race, named in honor of O'Donnell's Farm, one of the county's most elaborate country places. Darby Du came from last position under the handling of Apprentice Jockey Chester Walters and won in going away fashion over the well backed Candle Ends. The winning margin was a length. Thre additional lengths away from first money came June Date, to be third in the limit field of eight.

Darby Du, best known for his efforts at longer distances, found the 6½ furlongs suitable to his purposes today and paid a $13.80 mutuel while operating over a heavy track in 1:26 4-5. Despite sagging skies that finally let go a steady drizzle, some 6,000 fans reported for the afternoon's action.

With Eltonhead breaking in front, Darby Du was anything but a pleasing picture to his backers as the field passed the stands the first time with the 4-year-old gelding in last position. Bell Chimes and Candle Ends were closest to the pacemaker. It was not until the group reached the backstretch that Walters swung Darby Du to the outside and began the move that was to spell victory.

Candle Ends disposed of Eltonhead to get to the front as the field reached the stretch, with Darby Du gaining with leaps and bounds on the outside. In the final drive, Candle Ends drew out, but Darby Du came under the whip with a terrific rush and caught his rival, to be opening a gap at the end.

The program opened with a thrilling nose finish in which Miss Mud, aptly named for the conditions, nodded out Misprint. The two hooked up a quarter of a mile from home and it was a dingdong affair, with the winner barely lasting. She paid $3.90.

Miss Mud's victory paved the way for a $40.50 payoff in the daily double. Corsica, ridden by H. Claggett, the apprentice sensation, took the second race and completed the $40.50 transaction. Corsica was the fourth winner in a row in two days for Claggett. The daughter of Chance Play paid $11.10 in her own right.

LAST SCAMP, well handled, came to outside for racing room and wore down leaders to win in final drive. SQUARE PLAY raced BRAZEN HUSSY into defeat to take command and inside sixteenth pole, but could not resist winner. BRAZEN HUSSY set good pace and weakened in closing test. SHORTS tired.

Jockey Kelly Wins At Marlboro After Being Fined $25

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 29.—Jockey Willie Kelly received word just before the last race that he had been fined $25 for rough riding in the fourth race. He went out on the track and got most of that back with a brilliant performance on Last Scamp, owned by L. F. Pascault, of Washington. Kelly brought the daughter of Sea Scamp along in the closing strides to win by a neck margin over Square Play with Brazen Hussy, the favorite and pacemaker most of the way, third in the field of eight. Last Scamp paid $10.50.

Ebony Boy Takes Feature at Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Ebony Boy, owned by Mrs. Ethdel D. Jacobs, led all the way today to win the Soldier Field Purse at Washington Park. Fore Isus was eight lengths back in second place and Her Reigh was third.

The winner, ridden by Bill Thompson, paid $7.40. The race was the best event on an all claiming card.

Selections at Marlboro

Dear Al:

In answer to inquiry, all Maryland tracks have the tote. It is compulsory in the State. No use trying to buy Triphammer. The 2-year-old was sold by J. Merryman Black to Danny Galotis, of Washington, and joins the Chalotaur Stable. The juvenile will be trained by Vernon Arthur. One of the track wisecrackers was riding back with me and somebody said they smelled rubber burning. The witty one spoke up, "can't be on this car. With these lousy tires, you'd smell rope." Talked to Jockey Eddie Smith's mother yesterday. Eddie is doing all right for himself up in New England and his wife and baby are well. Eddie's cousin, Robert E. Anderson, was the youngest of those to pass the bar examination in Washington this month. He is just over 21. This Herbert Claggett, the apprentice sensation, looks and acts like a rider. But they all look good when they are winning. Trainer Louie Garthright reports that Catrowest, which started here the other day, bucked. That is the height of something or another, for the horse is 8 years old. The longest daily double of the meeting was that $71.70 here last Wednesday. Alan Clarke will be down today and probably will be dressed up. The following get of Mowlee will be in action: Remolee, Little Mowlee, Ann Mowlee and In The Red. The last named probably explains the whole thing best. Jockey A. F. Martinez continues to set the pace for the locbl riding colony. He must be slipping, however, because he was only on six horses instead of the usual seven. Thirty-eight different trainers and 13 different jockeys have won races at this meeting. Winning Mark, winner of the 4-mile race at Washington Park Wednesday, formerly raced in Maryland for Gordon H. Pearce. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Kenner seems to have found a likely spot in this opening sprint. Needs only the right ride. Salburne will be right there if he fails to bleed. Dressmaker may be along in time to pick up the show award.

Second race—Woodville turned in a smart, winning effort last out and promises to improve off that. Has a fair running mate in Westing and I'm casting one vote for the combination. Albert D and Chief Cherokee like the track as evidenced in recent starts.

Third race—Delhi Dan has been kept busy running second. He seems most likely of the also eligible contenders to get into action and I'm going to string along with him. True Line breaks off the rail and is a threat. Glitter Girl would be dangerous off best form. The doubtful starters from Miss Neptune down are formidable.

Fourth race—Miss Maker is earning the reputation of a real hard luck horse. She should have won her last. This route suits and I'm going to string along with her. Sky Hostess has plenty of foot. Should get to the front and will be the one to catch. Little Mowlee may make the turns better this time.

Fifth race—Golden Mayne, winner of two over this track, could be the right one. Has closed gamely in both races and should go this distance. Dulie has a bit of class and should be prominent. More Poise may take it all.

Sixth race—Bubbleworth should come right back with another set of brackets in this field. Wild Day showed good form last out and may surprise. Maetake and Real Money are good ones on the reserve list.

Seventh race—Sun Sweep loves the tracks and will do a lot of running if sent postward. Puddles is dropping down and will be prominent in this group. Playdema should go well.

Best bet—Bubbleworth.

Rain Forces Postponement of Heurich-St. Elizabeth Game

Play-Off Set For Today in Title Series

Federation Game To Be Played on Ellipse at 4 P. M., If It Is Clear

The oft-postponed opening game of the District sandlot playoffs will be attempted again this afternoon, when Heurich Brewers, winner of The Washington Post Industrial League, faces St. Elizabeths, Militia League titleholder, on the South Ellipse. Game time is 4 o'clock.

The playoff series, the winner of which will represent Washington in the national tournament at Birmingham, is composed of Heurich, St. Elizabeth's and Pepco and will be conducted on a two-defeats-and-out basis.

Eddie Colliflower, who has been waiting for the opportunity to face St. Elizabeth's all week, remains Heurich's starting pitcher while Joe McFadden is slated to toil for the Militia winners. Both have acquired enviable records throughout the local sandlot season and although Colliflower has been pitching for upward of ten years on the local scene, he still retains a measure of his old-time brilliance as attested by his 3-0 shutout over Cameo in the Industrial playoffs.

The National Capital Amateur Baseball Federation, sponsors of the tournament, have erected 1,000 bleacher seats. Sandlot fans who have been attending the games throughout the seasons are urged to support this game in order that the winning team's journey to Birmingham may be financed.

Redskins Cut Six Players; German Goes

Veteran May Be Traded To Cards for Tackle; Farkas Injures Knee

By Al Hailey

A Staff Correspondent

ENROUTE TO MILWAUKEE WITH THE REDSKINS, Aug. 29.—With six men dealt out of the picture in the first squad cut, the Redskin bosses today were in a huddle over negotiations for a trade with the Chicago Cardinals with Jimmy German, lone veteran to get the axe, as the medium of exchange.

German, who came to the Redskins last year, topped the list of those whose release Coach Ray Flaherty announced late tonight after the intra-squad exhibition last night in Spokane.

Released outright were John Thomassin, tackle from Southern California; Vince Farrar, halfback from the Pittsburgh Steelers; Ernie Lain, fullback from Rice, and Frank Kiss, center from South Carolina—all rookies.

Gene Blackwell, draftee end from Alabama, is to go to the Wilmington, Del., pro football club and may get another chance with the Redskins later in the season.

Conference Due

German, who long has had a yearning to play with the Chicago Cardinals, was prevailed upon to join the Wilmington club, also. Charlie Biddle, owner of the Cards, is to meet Redskin Owner George Marshall in Milwaukee Saturday to confer over possibility of a trade for German.

Flaherty hopes to emerge from the Biddle conference with a new Redskin tackle. The 'Skins' tackle problem has grown acute with the failure of Thomassin to make the grade, and Flaherty has his eye on the Cardinals' lush supply.

Turk Edwards, now assistant coach, is not expected to see as heavy action as last year, and Willie Wilkin, Bo Russell, Jim Barber and Rookie Bob Fisher are the only other tackles on the squad.

German's release in the first cut came as a surprise. The halfback and quarterback running star had been having trouble rounding into form, however, and Rookie Roy Zimmerman, 6-foot-3, 205-pounder, looked the better of the two to the Redskin bosses, who figure that, with Zimmerman, Sammy Baugh and Frank Filchock, the quarterback situation will be well in hand.

With the squad now shaved down to 38 players, Flaherty must release five more after the exhibition game Monday afternoon in Milwaukee with the Greenbay Packers. The Packers date will be the first test of Redskin offense and defense as a unit, which so far has been not very pleasing to Flaherty.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald

Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Ken Chase, despite his defeat, was the No. 1 performer for the Nats yesterday and merits the chief award in the Man of the Month race. Points were distributed as follows:

To Chase, ten points, because he held the Tigers to three runs in the first game and drove home one of the Nats' two runs with his fourth-inning single.

To Johnny Welaj, four points, because he made two of the Nats' hits in the first game and figured in a run, and because he made one of the Nats' hits in the second game.

To George Case, three points, because he beat out a bunt in the first game and made two hits in the second game in addition to a sensational catch in centerfield.

To Buddy Lewis, two points, because he made two first-game hits.

To Buddy Myer, two points, because he made a hit, stole a base and scored a run in the first game. The totals:

Ken Chase	75	Jake Early	22
Sidney Hudson	61	Buddy Myer	19
Cecil Travis	60	Johnny Welaj	17
George Case	50	Sam West	15
Buddy Lewis	43	Joe Krakauskas	13
Jimmy Pofahl	40	Rick Farrell	11
Jimmy Bloodworth	34	Rene Monteagudo	4
Gee Walker	31	Walter Masterson	2
Dutch Leonard	31	Alex Carrasquel	2

Duseks Win Team Match As 1,800 Customers Roar

Ernie and Emil, of the wrestling Duseks, upset the best plans and the winning streak of Lou Plummer and Eddie Newman in a sensational two-man team battle last night at Turner's Arena. With Plummer out of the way, he mighy Duseks pounced upon ewman while 1,800 customers, the largest indoor gathering in months, roared.

The Dusek victory was not an altogether popular one, for Newman, inadvertently, aided in their victory. Eddie, who took quite a beating during the early stages of the battle, made a flying tackle that eliminated Plummer, his teammate in the all-important final fall. Newman then tried to stave off the Dusek pair but, after being blindfolded by Plummer's robe, he was pinned.

Plummer and Newman won the first fall when Emil went out in 8 minutes and Ernie followed in 9. In the second fall, Newman was pinned in 6½ minutes and 60 seconds later Plummer met a similar fate. The times on the final fall were Plummer in 8 minutes and Newman in 10.

Mildred Burke, woman's champion, defended her title successfully when she defeated Betty Foster on an alligator hold in 14½ minutes. Joe Cox and Warren Bockwinkle went to a 30-minute draw as did Tom O'Toole and Herb Freeman. Sheriff Tom Henley threw Tommy Mahoney in 20 minutes with a body press.

Pan-American Games Approved

Buenos Aires, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Pan-American Sports Congress, at its first working meeting here today, approved a plan of holding the Pan-American games every four years, starting in 1942.

The discussion on the site of the first games was postponed until Saturday's meeting.

Fritzie Zivic Scores Over Sammy Angott

20,000 Fans Witness Lightweight Battle At Forbes Field

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 29.—Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, punched his way to a decision tonight over the N. B. R. Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott, of Washington, Pa., and Louisville, Ky., in ten fast rounds before about 20,000 fans at Forbes Field.

Zivic's 143½ pounds gave him a 6½ weight advantage.

Henry Armstrong, the Negro champion, who has signed to risk his welterweight title in a bout here next month against the winner in a Dapper Dan charity affair here, was a spectator.

There were no knockdowns, but in the eighth Zivic's two-handed attack had his opponent bewildered and the Zivic rooters began yelling for a knockout.

Darby Metcalf Wins

Canandaigua, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP).—Skippering his rough-weather boat, Ghost, through a 30-mile wind which piled up Canandaigua Lake into swamping waves, Darby Metcalf, of Los Angeles, Calif., won the first heat today in the International Snipe championships. Second heat of the contest, feature of the annual Snipe Class International Racing Association regatta, is scheduled tomorrow.

WildwoodFleet OfCometSloops To Race Here

Four Boats to Represent New Jersey in President Cup Regatta, Sept. 14-15

The Wildwood (N. J.) fleet of comet sloops will be represented by four boats in the sailing races of the President's Cup Regatta set for September 14 and 15 on the Potomac River off Hains Point, Sailing Chairman Arthur H. Clephane announced yesterday.

Two of the four little craft—which represents nearly half of the Barnegat Bay fleet at Wildwood—are veterans of the 1940 mid-winter regatta held last February in San Juan, Puerto Rico, and will be sailed here by the same husband-and-wife teams.

They are the Winsome sailed by Mr. and Mrs Ward H. Bright and the Nedabreze with Mr. and Mrs. Ken Grace as skipper and crew, respectively. Others are the Aloha, owned by Robert Parker, and Debby to be sailed by the all-brother team of Jack and Casey English, Clephane reports. The quartet will fly the flag of the Greater Wildwood Yacht Club.

With the river freed of pollution which last year caused small boat sailors a great deal of discomfort, Chairman Clephane was optimistic of an even larger field than the 125 craft entered last season.

Interest was particularly keen, he noted, as this will be the first time sailors will be afforded a triangular course—always popular with followers of the windjammers. The Georgetown Channel has been dredged out opposite the new National Airport, thus affording such a course, he said.

Among the firsts entries received for the swift 20-foot class, for round-bottom boats, were the Challenger, owned by Dr. J. Russell Verbrycke, jr., well-known stomach specialist here, and the Babs, to be sailed by Jack Zimmer, a manufacturers' representative, of Arlington, Va.

Rowe, Newsom Beat Nats in Double-Header

Greenberg Provides Power for Tigers With Five Hits, Including Two Homers; Chase Loses Opener, 3-2; Hudson Routed, 6-0

Chase when Pete Fox saw something to his liking and smacked it. It was a high curve—on the batters' power beam—and Fox whopped it for a triple to deep center, scoring Bartell, who had walked. Two were out at the moment.

Nats Tie Score

In the third inning the Nats bounced back to tie the score after two were out. Buddy Lewis singled to right, stole second and scored when Johnny Welaj drove a single between Higgins and Bartell.

Hank Greenberg, who made only four hits in that first game, got the fourth of 'em in the fifth inning and lifted the Tigers into a 2-to-1 lead. It was his twenty-fifth home run of the season—an enormous blast half-way up in the leftfield bleachers.

In the same inning, the Nats used their speed to tie the score again. Myer beat out a hit to York on a close play and stole second with one out. Early was purposely passed and then Chase confounded everybody by driving a single to left to get the run home.

We said the Nats lost the game in the eighth when Bartell and Rowe doubled, but actually they lost it in the seventh when they couldn't get a run despite the most inviting chance for a big inning.

Case Beats Out a Bunt

George Case led off the seventh by beating out a bunt that he popped toward first base and the customers were hot on the scent of a mess of runs when Lewis followed with a single to center. But Lewis was too ambitious as George Case raced to third, and when he rounded first base too far, Bartell cut off the throw and flagged Lewis with a heave to York. Welaj walked but Travis popped up to Bartell and the big inning went blooie. Myer ended it with a line drive into Rowe's glove.

After that the only threat of another run by the Nats was delivered by Jake Early who smote a vicious fly ball to deep right center with two out in the eighth and was pained to see McCoskey catch it on a dead run.

In that second game, the Tigers didn't dally with Hudson. Pete Fox was safe when Pofahl dropped his high pop for a twobase error. With one out, Gehringer celebrated his return to the line-up with a right-field single that scored Fox. Then along came Greenberg with one of the better kind of home runs into the leftfield seats and the Tigers had a 3-0 lead.

They had a 4-0 lead by the end of the second. Sullivan and Bartell greeted Hudson with singles and Sullivan scored while Newsom was in the act of hitting into a double play. They got their last two runs off Alex Carrasquel in the sixth. He walked Higgins, pitched a double to Sullivan, filled the bases by walking Bartell, and then gave up runs on long flies by Newsom and Fox.

The Nats had a lot of trouble with Newsom. George Case greeted him with a single to left in the first inning but the Nats couldn't press that advantage. Pofahl singled with two out in the second and Ferrell walked, but pinch-hitter Jake Early flied out. Welaj beat out a useless infield single with two out in the third, and with two out in the fourth, Case hit an equally useless single to right. As we were saying, the Nats didn't get a man past first base after the first inning against Newsom.

The fog fell finally in the sixth inning but as far as Newsom was concerned the Nates were in a fog from the outset.

it up typically with four pars in the last five holes.

Guldahl, whom the boys still say isn't a match player, was four shots under par when he wrapped up Jim Foulis, of Hinsdale, Ill., 5 and 3. If he loses to Hogan tomorrow, then, all right, he isn't a match player.

RESULTS

Sam Snead, Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., defeated Jimmy Hines, Great Neck, Long Island, 7 and 6.

Gene Sarazen, Brookfield Center, Conn., defeated Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., 1 up.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., defeated Ed Dudley, Bala, Pa., 4 and 3.

Byron Nelson, Toledo, Ohio, defeated Dick Metz, Oak Park, Ill., 2 and 1.

Eddie Kirk, Framington, Mich., defeated Arthur Clark, Uniontown, Pa., 5 and 4.

Ben Hogan, White Plains, N. Y., defeated Al Brosch, Farmingdale, Long Island, 5 and 4.

Ralph Guldahl, Chicago, Ill., defeated Jim Foulis, Hinsdale, Ill., 5 and 3.

TIDE TABLES

A. M. tides, light type. P. M. tides, heavy type.

For fishing points along the Eastern Shore Maryland Route No 50 to Annapolis and cross at Annapolis-Matapeake Ferry Follow down Route No 213 For Ocean City Md. follow Route No. 404, No. 18 and No 113

For Cape Charles, Wachapreague and Chincoteague, Route No 213 to Salisbury, then Route No. 3

Shadyside and Herring Bay reached by way of Mariboro and Route No 5 Herring Bay, North Beach and Seaside by turning right just beyond Hill Bridge on the new Route No 416 Follow on down No 2 for Western Shore of Maryland. Solomons Island and Brooms Island Breezy Point Beach best reached by following through Seaside

Note: The above predictions give the times of high and low water and not the time the current changes (slack water). In Chesapeak Bay midchannel between Chesapeake Beach and Annapolis, slack water occur about 2½ to 4½ hours after high and low water by the shore. At other places given in the table, slack water occurs from one-half to 1½ hours after the times of high and low water

Times given above are for Baltimore and Washington. Subtract or add the number of hours & the various points for time of tides at these points

Darby Du Captures O'Donnell Trophy at Marlboro Track

Jockey Walters Pilots Winner; Candle Ends Runs Second in Sprint

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 29.—A stretch-running son of Tommy Boy, Darby Du, won the fine trophy offered by Tom O'Donnell, Washington restaurateur, for the winner of today's fature race, named in honor of O'Donnell's Farm, one of the county's most elaborate country places. Darby Du came from last position under the handling of Apprentice Jockey Chester Walters and won in going away fashion over the well backed Candle Ends. The winning margin was a length. Thre additional lengths away from first money came June Date, to be third in the limit field of eight.

Darby Du, best known for his efforts at longer distances, found the 6½ furlongs suitable to his purposes today and paid a $13.80 mutuel while operating over a heavy track in 1:26 4-5. Despite sagging skies that finally let go a steady drizzle, some 6,000 fans reported for the afternoon's action.

With Eltonhead breaking in front, Darby Du was anything but a pleasing picture to his backers as the field passed the stands the first time with the 4-year-old gelding in last position. Bell Chimes and Candle Ends were closest to the pacemaker. It was not until the group reached the backstretch that Walters swung Darby Du to the outside and began the move that was to spell victory.

Candle Ends disposed of Eltonhead to get to the front as the field reached the stretch, with Darby Du gaining with leaps and bounds on the outside. In the final drive, Candle Ends drew out, but Darby Du came under the whip with a terrific rush and caught his rival, to be opening a gap at the end.

The program opened with a thrilling nose finish in which Miss Mud, aptly named for the conditions, nodded out Misprint. The two hooked up a quarter of a mile from home and it was a dingdong affair, with the winner barely lasting. She paid $3.90.

Miss Mud's victory paved the way for a $40.50 payoff in the daily double. Corsica, ridden by H. Claggett, the apprentice sensation, took the second race and completed the $40.50 transaction. Corsica was the fourth winner in a row in two days for Claggett. The daughter of Change Play paid $11.10 in her own right.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS MUD, $3.90, $4.90, $3.30; MISPRINT, $4.00, $3.70; SOLO DASH, $6.00.

MISS MUD came up to challenge MISPRINT on backstretch, rallied under drive to take command and was weakening at close. MISPRINT was hustled to front, set good pace and closed gamely. SOLO DASH went to inside to improve position and floundered in heaviest going. COURLANDER closed with bold rush. NEUTRAL was off slowly and had some trouble. HAPPY SIS ran out at first turn.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:40. Off 2:41. Winner, R. Frank's b. f. (3), by Chance Play—Calocorsica. Trained by J. Camac. Value to winner, $275; second, $75; third, $35; fourth, $15. Time, 1:11.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CORSICA, $11.10, $5.40, $3.60; LULA KHAYYAM, $5.10, $3.20; WAR SCARE, $3.10.

CORSICA slow to begin, worked way to contention on outside, responded when placed to drive and won going away. LULA KHAYYAM ran HIGHLAND SONG into defeat to take command and closed willingly, but could not resist winner. WAR SCARE, HARDY MISS and LADY BUCK were bothered at first turn.

Daily Double, MISS MUD and CORSICA, Paid $40.50

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:09. Off 3:10. Winner, A. A. Baldwin's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PUSHKIN, $13.70, $5.80, $3.50; PACK SADDLE, $11.50, $6.00; COUNORA, $3.80.

PUSHKIN, driven to keep up early, responded to punishment to wear down COUNORA and was kept to pressure to end. PACK SADDLE could not stay up early and came with rush through stretch. COUNORA took command early and faltered suddenly in stretch test. HEPZIBAH was knocked back in opening furlong and failed to recover.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:12. Off 4:14. Winner, W. W. Waters' b. g. (4), by Tommy Boy—Donna Vivian. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $325; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:26⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARBY DU, $13.80, $5.50, $3.50; CANDLE ENDS, $4.90, $2.90; JUNE DATE, $10.20.

DARBY DU, slow to begin, circled leaders to improve position and closed full of run to win going away. CANDLE ENDS was keen forward factor from beginning and closed gamely, but could not resist winner. JUNE DATE was sent to contention after a quarter and was a tiring third. ELTONHEAD was used up setting pace under hustling tactics.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:46. Off 4:48. Winner, Mrs. I. C. KISSIN KID, at home in going and well placed early, responded to drive to dispose of LIMERICK and just lasted. WORTHOWNING, in trouble early when knocked off stride, STAR TURN, recovered to go to contention boldly and closed under punishment. FIRST FLING, unable to get to front, came to inside in closing test and closed gamely. PETEE LAD was up and back and then closed full of run.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:20. Off 5:22. Winner, L. F. Pascault's b. m. Jockey Kelly Wins At Marlboro After Being Fined $25

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 29.—Jockey Willie Kelly received word just before the last race that he had been fined $25 for rough riding in the fourth race. He went out on the track and got most of that back with a brilliant performance on Last Scamp, owned by L. F. Pascault, of Washington. Kelly brought the daughter of Sea Scamp along in the closing strides to win by a neck margin over Square Play with Brazen Hussy, the favorite and pacemaker most of the way, third in the field of eight. Last Scamp paid $10.80.

Rain Forces Postponement of Heurich-St. Elizabeth Game

Play-Off Set For Today in Title Series

Federation Game To Be Played on Ellipse at 4 P. M., If It Is Clear

The oft-postponed opening game of the District sandlot playoffs will be attempted again this afternoon, when Heurich Brewers, winner of The Washington Post Industrial League, faces St. Elizabeths, Militia League titleholder, on the South Ellipse. Game time is 4 o'clock.

The playoff series, the winner of which will represent Washington in the national tournament at Birmingham, is composed of Heurich, St. Elizabeth's and Pepco and will be conducted on a two-defeats-and-out basis.

Eddie Colliflower, who has been waiting for the opportunity to face St. Elizabeth's all week, remains Heurich's starting pitcher while Joe McFadden is slated to toil for the Militia winners. Both have acquired enviable records throughout the local sandlot season and although Colliflower has been pitching for upward of ten years on the local scene, he still retains a measure of his old-time brilliance as attested by his 3-0 shutout over Cameo in the Industrial playoffs.

The National Capital Amateur Baseball Federation, sponsors of the tournament, have erected 1,000 bleacher seats. Sandlot fans who have been attending the games throughout the seasons are urged to support this game in order that the winning team's journey to Birmingham may be financed.

Fritzie Zivic Scores Over Sammy Angott

20,000 Fans Witness Lightweight Battle At Forbes Field

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 29.—Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, punched his way to a decision tonight over the N. B. R. Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott, of Washington, Pa., and Louisville, Ky., in ten fast rounds before about 20,000 fans at Forbes Field.

Zivic's 143¾ pounds gave him a 6¼ weight advantage.

The decision in the nontitle battle was unaimous. Zivic took charge in the first round and never was headed.

Henry Armstrong, the Negro champion, who has signed to risk his welterweight title in a bout here next month against the winner in a Dapper Dan charity affair here, was a spectator.

There were no knockdowns, but in the eighth Zivic's two-handed attack had his opponent bewildered and the Zivic rooters began yelling for a knockout.

Ben Moroz, 299, of Philadelphia, billed as the biggest man in the ring, lost by a technical knockout in the fourth round of a scheduled six-round bout to big Jim Thompson, 235-pound Pittsburgh Negro.

Moroz, winner of Golden and Silver Glove boxing titles in Philadelphia two years ago, came up with a nasty cut over his left eye after taking a nine count, causing Referee Al Graybar to end the contest.

Jackie Conn, 166, kid brother of Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn, lost his first pro fight when Lou Pitts, 157, also of Pittsburgh, gave him a good lacing in six rounds.

Darby Metcalf Wins

Canandaigua, N. Y., Aug. 29 (AP).—Skippering his rough-weather boat, Ghost, through a 30-mile wind which piled up Canandaigua Lake into swamping waves, Darby Metcalf, of Los Angeles, Calif., won the first heat today in the International Snipe championships. Second heat of the contest, feature of the annual Snipe Class International Racing Association regatta, is scheduled tomorrow.

Wildwood Fleet Of Comet Sloops To Race Here

Four Boats to Represent New Jersey in President Cup Regatta, Sept. 14-15

The Wildwood (N. J.) fleet of comet sloops will be represented by four boats in the sailing races of the President's Cup Regatta set for September 14 and 15 on the Potomac River off Hains Point, Sailing Chairman Arthur H. Clephane announced yesterday.

Two of the four little craft—which represents nearly half of the Barnegat Bay fleet at Wildwood—are veterans of the 1940 mid-winter regatta held last February in San Juan, Puerto Rico, and will be sailed here by the same husband-and-wife teams.

They are the Winsome sailed by Mr. and Mrs Ward H. Bright and the Nedabreze with Mr. and Mrs. Ken Grace as skipper and crew, respectively. Others are the Aloha, owned by Robert Parker, and Debby to be sailed by the all-brother team of Jack and Casey English, Clephane reports. The quartet will fly the flag of the Greater Wildwood Yacht Club.

With the river freed of pollution which last year caused small boat sailors a great deal of discomfort, Chairman Clephane was optimistic of an even larger field than the 125 craft entered last season.

Interest was particularly keen, he noted, as this will be the first time sailors will be afforded a triangular course—always popular with followers of the windjammers. The Georgetown Channel has been dredged out opposite the new National Airport, thus affording such a course, he said.

Among the firsts entries received for the swift 20-foot class, for round-bottom boats, were the Challenger, owned by Dr. J. Russell Verbrycke, jr., well-known stomach specialist here, and the Babs, to be sailed by Jack Zimmer, a manufacturers' representative, of Arlington, Va.

Chase when Pete Fox saw something to his liking and smacked it. It was a high curve—on the batters' power beam—and Fox whopped it for a triple to deep center, scoring Bartell, who had walked. Two were out at the moment.

Nats Tie Score

In the third inning the Nats bounced back to tie the score after two were out. Buddy Lewis singled to right, stole second and scored when Johnny Welaj drove a single between Higgins and Bartell.

Hank Greenberg, who made only four hits in that first game, got the fourth of 'em in the fifth inning and lifted the Tigers into a 2-to-1 lead. It was his twenty-fifth home run of the season—an enormous blast half-way up in the leftfield bleachers.

In the same inning, the Nats used their speed to tie the score again. Myer beat out a hit to York on a close play and stole second with one out. Early was purposely passed and then Chase confounded everybody by driving a single to left to get the run home.

We said the Nats lost the game in the eighth when Bartell and Rowe doubled, but actually they lost it in the seventh when they couldn't get a run despite the most inviting chance for a big inning.

Case Beats Out a Bunt

George Case led off the seventh by beating out a bunt that he popped toward first base and the customers were hot on the scent of a mess of runs when Lewis followed with a single to center. But Lewis was too ambitious as George Case raced to third, and when he rounded first base too far, Bartell cut off the throw and flagged Lewis with a heave to York. Welaj walked but Travis popped up to Bartell and the big inning went blooie. Myer ended it with a line drive into Rowe's glove.

After that the only threat of another run by the Nats was delivered by Jake Early who smote a vicious fly ball to deep right center with two out in the eighth and was pained to see McCoskey catch it on a dead run.

In that second game, the Tigers didn't dally with Hudson. Pete Fox was safe when Pofahl dropped his high pop for a twobase error. With one out, Gehringer celebrated his return to the line-up with a right-field single that scored Fox. Then along came Greenberg with one of the better kind of home runs into the leftfield seats and the Tigers had a 3-0 lead.

They had a 4-0 lead by the end of the second. Sullivan and Bartell greeted Hudson with singles and Sullivan scored while Newsom was in the act of hitting into a double play. They got their last two runs off Alex Carrasquel in the sixth. He walked Higgins, pitched a double to Sullivan, filled the bases by walking Bartell, and then gave up runs on long flies by Newsom and Fox.

The Nats had a lot of trouble with Newsom. George Case greeted him with a single to left in the first inning but the Nats couldn't press that advantage. Pofahl singled with two out in the second and Ferrell walked, but pinch-hitter Jake Early flied out. Welaj beat out a useless infield single with two out in the third, and with two out in the fourth, Case hit an equally useless single to right. As we were saying, the Nats didn't get a man past first base after the first inning against Newsom.

The fog fell finally in the sixth inning but as far as Newsom was concerned the Nates were in a fog from the outset.

Redskins Cut Six Players; German Goes

Veteran May Be Traded To Cards for Tackle; Farkas Injures Knee

By Al Hailey
A Staff Correspondent

ENROUTE TO MILWAUKEE WITH THE REDSKINS, Aug. 29.—With six men dealt out of the picture in the first squad cut, the Redskin bosses today were in a huddle over negotiations for a trade with the Chicago Cardinals with Jimmy German, lone veteran to get the axe, as the medium of exchange.

German, who came to the Redskins last year, topped the list of those whose release Coach Ray Flaherty announced late tonight after the intra-squad exhibition last night in Spokane.

Released outright were John Thomassin, tackle from Southern California; Vince Farrar, halfback from the Pittsburgh Steelers; Ernie Lain, fullback from Rice, and Frank Kiss, center from South Carolina—all rookies.

Gene Blackwell, draftee end from Alabama, is to go to the Wilmington, Del., pro football club and may get another chance with the Redskins later in the season.

Conference Due

German, who long has had a yearning to play with the Chicago Cardinals, was prevailed upon to join the Wilmington club, also. Charlie Biddle, owner of the Cards, is to meet Redskin Owner George Marshall in Milwaukee Saturday to confer over possibility of a trade for German.

Flaherty hopes to emerge from the Biddle conference with a new Redskin tackle. The 'Skins' tackle problem has grown acute with the failure of Thomassin to make the grade, and Flaherty has his eye on the Cardinals' lush supply.

Turk Edwards, now assistant coach, is not expected to see as heavy action as last year, and Willie Wilkin, Bo Russell, Jim Barber and Rookie Bob Fisher are the only other tackles on the squad.

German's release in the first cut came as a surprise. The halfback and quarterback running star had been having trouble rounding into form, however, and Rookie Roy Zimmerman, 6-foot-3, 205-pounder, looked the better of the two to the Redskin bosses, who figure that, with Zimmerman, Sammy Baugh and Frank Filchock, the quarterback situation will be well in hand.

With the squad now shaved down to 38 players, Flaherty must release five more after the exhibition game Monday afternoon in Milwaukee with the Greenbay Packers. The Packers date will be the first test of Redskin offense and defense as a unit, which so far has been not very pleasing to Flaherty.

Champions Hold Meeting

Don Goodman's Studebaker Champions will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Ed McDonough, 3534 Tenth street northwest. All players are requested to attend.

Man of the Month

The Man of the Month contest is sponsored jointly by The Washington Post and Station WJSV. Following each of the Nats' games, Arch McDonald will award points to Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Man of the Month will be presented with a $50 merchandise order by The Post.

By Arch McDonald
Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Ken Chase, despite his defeat, was the No. 1 performer for the Nats yesterday and merits the chief award in the Man of the Month race. Points were distributed as follows:

To Chase, ten points, because he held the Tigers to three runs in the first game and drove home one of the Nats' two runs with his fourth-inning single.

To Johnny Welaj, four points, because he made two of the Nats' hits in the first game and figured in a run, and because he made one of the Nats' hits in the second game.

To George Case, three points, because he beat out a bunt in the first game and made two hits in the second game in addition to a sensational catch in centerfield.

To Buddy Lewis, two points, because he made two first-game hits.

To Buddy Myer, two points, because he made a hit, stole a base and scored a run in the first game. The totals:

Ken Chase	75	Jake Early	23
Sidney Hudson	61	Buddy Myer	19
Cecil Travis	60	Johnny Welaj	17
George Case	50	Sam West	17
Buddy Lewis	43	Joe Krakauskas	15
Jimmy Pofahl	40	Rick Farrell	11
Jimmy Bloodworth	34	Rene Monteagudo	4
Gee Walker	31	Walter Masterson	3

Duseks Win Team Match As 1,800 Customers Roar

Ernie and Emil, of the wrestling Duseks, upset the best plans and the winning streak of Lou Plummer and Eddie Newman in a sensational two-man team battle last night at Turner's Arena. With Plummer out of the way, he mighy Duseks pounced upon ewman while 1,800 customers, the largest indoor gathering in months, roared.

The Dusek victory was not an altogether popular one, for Newman, inadvertently, aided in their victory. Eddie, who took quite a beating during the early stages of the battle, made a flying tackle that eliminated Plummer, his teammate in the all-important final fall. Newman then tried to stave off the Dusek pair but, after being blindfolded by Plummer's robe, he was pinned.

Plummer and Newman won the first fall when Emil went out in 8 minutes and Ernie followed in 9. In the second fall, Newman was pinned in 6½ minutes and 60 seconds later Plummer met a similar fate. The times on the final fall were Plummer in 8 minutes and Newman in 10.

Mildred Burke, woman's champion, defended her title successfully when she defeated Betty Foster on an alligator hold in 14½ minutes. Joe Cox and Warren Bockwinkle went to a 30-minute draw as did Tom O'Toole and Herb Freeman. Sheriff Tom Henley threw Tommy Mahoney in 20 minutes with a body press.

Pan-American Games Approved

Buenos Aires, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Pan-American Sports Congress, at its first working meeting here today, approved a plan of holding the Pan-American games every four years, starting in 1942.

The discussion on the site of the first games was postponed until Saturday's meeting.

Longer Hours? Local Brokers React Coldly

No Warm Supporters Of Plan Found Here; Most Are Indifferent

Washington's financial district reacted coldly yesterday to a proposal, now before the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange, to lengthen trading time by one hour.

Governors of the big board have taken under advisement for discussion at the regular September 11 meeting a petition to extend trading from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., New York time, Mondays through Fridays, instead of closing, as is now the rule, at 3 p. m.

Questioned by The Post, representatives of important local firms appeared to agree that the change would not have a great effect on their operations. No warm supporters of the idea, proposed by an important group of member firms, could be found in Washington.

More Expense Seen

Were the change adopted, it might mean a heavier load of mechanical charges for Washington brokerage houses and, in some instances, it might mean an extra working hour for some of the hundreds of financial district employes.

Hungry as New York and Washington investment houses are for more business, their spokesmen appeared to believe that the extra trading hour would not cure the condition that has brought daily share volume on the New York board to almost record lows in past weeks.

Typical comments follow:

A member of Brown, Goodwyn & Olds: "It might be very good, bringing an opportunity to do more business. But trading is so bad today that the additional hour might mean a disproportionate increase in expenses. The big firms would take a licking unless they did a lot of new business in that hour."

A member of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath: "We favor anything that is good for the industry. But our offices are always open longer than the New York trading hours. It would not affect us in the slightest. Only our mechanical expenses would rise, and those negligibly. It might possibly bring in more business."

Change "Might Help"

A member of Johnston, Lemon & Co.: "The proposal would not make much difference to us as an investment house. Local investment dealers are generally open for the full working day anyhow. At any rate, 4 p. m. in New York is 3 p. m. here in the summertime, and our staffs are all on hand anyhow. There would be very little effect on local dealers. The suggested change would not hurt, and it might help."

A member of Hibbs & Co.: "The suggestion would help the Pacific Coast firms. In October the Wage-Hour Law requirements lower the work week to 40 hours and that might complicate matters somewhat. It is really too soon to tell. I don't believe the change will be approved. One difficulty might be that an afternoon newspaper here would not be able to get the closing prices in its late editions, as usual."

A member of W. W. Mackall & Co., whose president is head of the Washington Stock Exchange: "Since we have no seat on the big board, the proposal would not affect us so much. It would not bring us very much new business. I believe, though the New York firms certainly need more. Lengthening the 45-minute trading period of the Washington Exchange has been suggested, but there is no need for it."

Riggs Bank Among Leaders

There are now 116 banks in the United States with resources exceeding $100,000,000 each, the American Banker reveals in a tabulation of June 29, 1940, statements. A year ago, similar tabulation revealed 108 banks with resources topping $100,000,000. The Riggs National Bank, with resources of $129,617,135, is the only Washington bank listed.

Bank Reserves In Week Rise $70,000,000

Gain Is Attributed To Gold Purchases, Treasury Spending

By the Associated Press

Lendable excess reserves of member banks of the Federal Reserve System increased $70,000,000 to a total of $6,490,000,000 in the week ended August 28.

Reporting this, the Federal Reserve Board attributed the gain to Treasury spending and purchases of foreign gold.

The board also disclosed that investments of the 12 Federal Reserve banks in Treasury notes declined $4,274,000 to $1,122,458,000 during the week.

"During the week ended August 28 member bank reserve balances increased $97,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from increases of $71,000,000 in gold stock and $4,000,000 in Treasury currency, and a decrease of $76,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, offset in part by a decrease of $12,000,000 in reserve bank credit, and increases of $30,000,000 in money in circulation and $12,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. Excess reserves of member banks on August 28 were estimated to be approximately $6,490,000,000, an increase of $70,000,000 for the week.

Holdings of United States Treasury notes decreased $4,000,000 for the week.

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended August 28, 1940, were reported as follows:

Sugar Futures

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Sugar futures slanted downward today on an easier trend in the market for raws. The domestic contract closed 1 to 4 points lower on sales of 239 lots. The world contract dipped 2 to 3 points, with turnover at 111 lots.

Offerings of raw sugar at 2.70 cents increased after confirmation of a refiner's purchase late yesterday of Puerto Ricos at this level. Confirmed also was the purchase by a Southern refiner of 25,000 bags of Cubas, first half October shipment, at 1.76 cents, cost and freight.

Refined locally was unchanged at 4.20@4.35 cents. No. 3 contract:

Cotton Futures

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Transfer of hedges from October to the December position accounted for a considerable part of cotton futures trading today and prices remained in a narrow range. The market closed unchanged to 2 points higher. Scattered buying for foreign account and mill interests failed to register on the list because of the hedging operations. Worth street was again a source of good news for the trade, textile agents reporting substantial buying of print cloths, broadcloths and other constructions. Brokerage quarters estimated the day's business at around 12,000,000 yards. Prices were firmer. Exports Wednesday, 2,820 bales; season so far, 43,877. Port receipts, 11,959. Port stocks, 2,565,867.

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Retirement of E. Arthur Baldwin and Otto Pruessman, vice presidents and European and Far Eastern managers of the International General Electric Co., respectively, has been announced by Clark H. Minor, president.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Hogs moved 10 to 15 cents lower today, with the top at 7.35. Best steers were steady, with the top at 13.25, while all others moved 25 cents lower. Spring lambs were held at steady prices, with bids slightly lower on natives. In reaction to the high prices in the two previous sessions, hogs weighing 240 lbs. down sold around 10 cents lower, while heavier weights and sows moved 10-15 cents off. Best wholesale pork loins remained steady at 25 cents a lb. Receipts again overshot expectations. Shipper demand in the cattle market was less active and the general market draggy. The general run of yearlings and weighty steers were approximately 25 cents under the week's high time.

(U. S. Dept. Agr.)—SALABLE HOGS—Receipts, 11,000; total, 14,500; very slow; weights 240 lbs. and down 10-15 lower than Wednesday's average; heavier weights 10-15 lower, with some bids off more; good and choice, 190-240 lbs., 7.30@7.35; top, 7.35; 240-270 lbs., 7.10@7.45; 270-300 lbs., 6.80@7.20; sows, 10-15 lower; 300-350 lbs., 6.15@6.40; few lighter weights, 6.50; 350-400 lbs., 5.75@6.15; 400-450 lbs., 5.50@5.70; 450-500 lbs., 5.35@5.60.

SALABLE SHEEP—Receipts, 5,000; total, 8,500. Late Wednesday's spring lambs 15-30 lower; mostly 25 off; yearlings, 25 lower; sorted handyweight natives, 9.60@9.65; other natives mostly 9.50 down; three loads 93-lb. handyweight, 9.60; handfed yearlings, 8.00; native ewes mostly 2.00@3.50; few light weights, 3.75@4.00. Today's trade: Market on native and Western spring lambs not as yet established; most offerings and steady prices, bidding slightly lower on natives; few light handyweight native ewes, 2.50@3.50.

SALABLE CATTLE—Receipts, 5,000; calves, 1,000; shipper demand less active and general market rather draggy; strictly good and choice grain-fed steers fully steady, however; supply small; all others off 25; mostly 10-15 lower; several yearlings and weighty steers approximately 25 cents under week's high time; top today, 13.25 paid for 1,305-lb. averages; next highest price, 13.15; best long yearlings, 12.50; mostly 9.50@12.25 market; with common steers 7.00@7.50; heifers barely steady; strictly choice kind absent; best, 11.85; cows draggy and weak; no reliable outlet for light canner cows selling at 4.00 down; most beef cows 5.15@6.15; some bulls fully steady, however, on all grades; heavy sausage offerings to 7.40; vealers mostly 12.00 down; few selects, 12.50.

Drafting of New U. S. Policy On War Debts Seen Advisable

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

World events are compelling an end to the do-nothing policy of American officials at Washington in respect to the defaulted war debt. Nine years of passivity in the matter is a bipartisan issue, for the cessation of interest and amortization payments started under former President Hoover and continued under President Roosevelt.

All through this period this writer has felt that collection, in part at least, was feasible, even though the difficulties of international transfer through the foreign exchange market were obvious.

Mr. Rukeyser

This writer has believed that the mode of payments which was indicated was through mobilization of the foreign-owned American stocks, bonds, industrial plants and bank balances, which were possessed primarily by nationals in the debtor countries.

Such similar mobilization of private property as collateral for Government loans was accomplished during the first World War.

Failure to achieve some such settlement before the present war was harmful not only to the United States, but also to the Allies. The national defense of the latter was weakened by the injury to their credit resulting from the default. It specifically resulted in the barrier to further American loans in the form of the Johnson Act and the cash and carry provisions of the amended Neutrality Act.

But the lack of a solution presents new and difficult problems.

A trial balloon has been sent out in connection with the British debt as a phase of the negotiations to give the United States military, naval and air bases on British possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

In connection with Allied nations which have fallen into German control, the unsettlement of war debts presents ticklish aspects.

France particularly still has substantial American investments, as do the other more or less captive nations, though of course to a lesser extent.

The Administration has attempted a stop-gap remedy through freezing French and other "captive nation" credits in the United States. In order to prevent American property from falling into hands which might be considered unfriendly, the unsettled war debt account offers a possible way out.

Fortunately, this Government has not forgiven the debts, but has regularly twice a year presented bills to the debtor nations.

Such steamers as the Normandie, and such dollar investments and bank balances as the French possess could with genuine propriety be applied against the war debt. In order to avoid embarrassment later, it might be desirable for our Government promptly to formulate a policy in respect to war debts. If some deal should be made with friendly Great Britain, it would be especially timely to treat other nations with no more generosity than is shown the British.

And in all these discussions it should not be forgotten that Finland even in its hour of crisis and distress has regularly met its obligations in full.

2 Major Makers Begin Assembly Of 1941 Autos

Detroit, Aug. 29 (AP).—The start of 1941 model production by Ford and Chevrolet, Automotive News reported today, boosted the current week's output of the automobile industry to an estimated 31,542 cars and trucks, compared with 23,473 last week and 24,342 this week a year ago.

Including this week's estimate, the publication placed August production at 91,501 units, which contrasts with 103,343 assembled in August, 1939.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Cotton goods sales running into several million yards were reported by Worth street selling agents today. Interest broadened to include most popular print cloth and broad cloth; and all transactions were made at full asking prices.

Volume of Government contracts combined with unseasonal cold weather to stimulate demand for woolen piece goods. However, activity lagged in rayon and silk goods markets.

Sales were reported on the basis of the following quotations for immediate delivery: Print cloths: 38½, 64x60, 5.35, 4¾; broadcloths, 37, 100x60, 4.10, 6¾; sheetings, 37, 48x48 4.00, 5½; combed lawns, 40, 76x72 9.00, 6¼.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Aug. 29 (AP). (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Recently advanced asking prices for domestic wools were meeting some resistance from buyers operating in the Boston market today. A fair amount of business, however, continued to be transacted. Twelve months Texas wools, ranging in length from short to good French combing, were bringing 83@88, scoured basis. Choice lots occasionally brought 88@90, scoured basis. Good fine territory wools of good French combing length were bringing 85@87, scoured basis, in original bags.

Week's Freight Loadings Reach Ten-Month Peak

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 761,002 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was an increase of 17,881 cars, or 2.4 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 77,096, or 11.3 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 140,445, or 22.6 per cent, compared with 1938.

Loadings last week were highest since the week ended November 18, 1939, when they totaled 771,404.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of loadings, based on 1929-30 as 100, advanced to 75.6 compared with 74.9 the previous week and 68.4 a year ago.

Truckers Lose Fight to Avert Rail Rate Cut

ICC Rejects Plea Of Motor Carriers On "L. C. L." Tariffs

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission denied yesterday a plea by the trucking industry for suspension of railroad tariffs reducing thousands of rates on less-than carload shipments within the South, between the North and the South, and from the Midwest to the South.

While refusing to suspend the tariffs, the ICC ordered an investigation into their "lawfulness." The reduced rates are to go into effect September 1.

The American Trucking Association, Inc., and affiliated organizations, which led the opposition to the reductions, described them as a "thinly disguised attempt to destroy the motor carrier industry."

The railroads replied that it was an attempt to make rail rates on merchandise traffic "conform to modern trends of transportation."

The reductions will be made by lowering classifications on approximately 3,500 articles. Reductions will be made on articles not classified as light, bulky, hazardous, fragile or perishable.

While opposing the railroads' reduction proposals, the trucking industry put itself in a position to meet the reductions by filing tariffs to maintain the present parity of rates between the railroads and trucks.

The truck industry estimated that the changes would result in a reduction of about 10 per cent in the total less-than-carload revenue on traffic now moving by rail and truck. The railroads insisted, however, that they would attain a substantial increase in revenue by "modernizing and reforming" their merchandise rate structure.

Gulf Oil Arranges $50,000,000 Loan

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—Gulf Oil Corporation was reported by the New York Sun today to have arranged a $50,000,000 loan from "at least four of the larger New York banks together with banks in Pittsburgh."

The loan, it was said, will be used to refund debenture obligations of Gulf Oil issued in 1938 to a group of institutions, mainly insurance companies.

Midland Steel Votes 50-Cent Dividend

Cleveland, Aug. 29 (AP).—Midland Steel Products Co. today declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common, payable October 1 to holders of record September 13. This brings 1940 dividends to $1.50, the same rate as last year until a year-end dividend of $3.50 brought total payments to $5.

Strength in Aircrafts Marks Uneven Trend; General List Dips in Sluggish Trading

New York, Aug. 29.—An irregular decline on dull trading characterized the market today but the aviations were the exception to the rule both in point of price trend and volume of business. Four of the five most active stocks on the big board were members of the air crops and in general these stocks were strong.

Featuring was United Aircraft, which accepted an order to build 17,000 airplane motors for the Army and Navy in 1941 and 1942 for $160,000,000. The formal contract has not yet been negotiated, but apparently the company is sufficiently well assured that the Government will carry out its share of the bargain to justify it in starting immediately on a plant expansion program. United gained more than a point. It was the second most active stock of the day, following Aviation Corporation, which was unchanged, and being followed in point of activity by Curtiss Wright and North American Aviation. The general market receded an average of 0.08 point on trading of 264,760 shares.

This narrow price change for the day showed that the financial district either did not apppreciate, or did not take seriously, the Overton-Russell amendment added to the conscription bill just before it passed the Senate Wednesday night. Under this amendment the President is authorized to take over private manufacturing plants and facilities when the Government is unable to come to an agreement as to terms of contracts with the owners of the property.

The willingness of one company to contract to supply $160,000,000 in airplane motors shows the extent to which American industry is cooperating in the defense program. It is doing so while there is still no decision on what it will have to pay over in taxes or how it can amortize the extra costs which it must assume in order to fill its contract.

Stock fluctuations reflected none of these discussions in the street today. Few stocks moved as much as a point away from their previous final prices.

Listed bond dealings again were modest today, with prices tending to move slightly higher. United States Treasury obligations were marked up a few thirty-seconds of a point. Best grade corporate issues held well, owing to the ready distribution of the new issues announced earlier in the week. The speculative groups reflected the mildly encouraging tone of the equities department. Trading in all listed bonds was only $3,320,000.

Alleghany Corporation bonds were active and higher in the corporate division, some of the bonds moving to best levels of this year. Utility holding issues also were in quiet demand. Speculative railroad bonds furnished much of the business for the day, and fractional advances were the rule in such obligations. The industrial specialties were generally higher, where changed, and other groups also did well.

SUPERMAN — Just a Playboy — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

GAS! DON'T LET IT WORRY YOU, MISS LANE!
TERRIFIED AT BEING CONFRONTED BY THE MAN OF STEEL, THE CRIMINALS HURL TEAR-GAS BOMBS AT HIM AS THEY RACE FROM THE ROOM.
A TERRIFIC PUFF FROM SUPERMAN'S POWERFUL LUNGS, AND THE GAS IS BLOWN FROM THE ROOM....
JUST LIKE THAT!
HOW CAN YOU TAKE SUCH A MARVELOUS FEAT SO CALMLY?
HE'S AFTER US BUT THIS WILL KNOCK HIM OFF HIS FEET!
CRASH!
CATCHING THE BARREL...
WANT TO PLAY, EH?
THE FLOUR—IN MY EYES!
I CAN'T SEE A THING!
I'LL REASSURE YOU, I'M SURE, TO KNOW THAT I'M STILL HERE!
SUPERMAN HURLS IT BACK SO THAT IT SMASHES OVER THE HOODLUMS' HEADS, SHOWERING THEM WITH FLOUR!

JOE PALOOKA — In Conference — BY HAM FISHER

I HAVE THE GREAT HONOR TO ANNOUNCE THAT WE ARE REPRESENTING MR. KNOBBY WALSH.
HE FELL FOR IT EH? GOOD.
HAS HE ANY CHANCE OF WINNING AT ALL?
OF COURSE NOT. YOU DON'T THINK WE'D HAVE THE CASE IF HE DID—DO YOU?
HADN'T WE BETTER GET A RETAINER FIRST?
THAT'S NOT ENTIRELY NECESSARY. BUT IT MIGHT BE A GOOD IDEA.
I AIN'T GIVIN' YA ANOTHER DRINK TILL YA PAY UP.
MY DEAR BOY, WE ARE SOLVENT AGAIN. WE ARE REPRESENTING MR. KNOBBY WALSH.

WINNIE WINKLE — Aides De Camp — BY BRANNER

WELL, I'M GLAD THE TRUTH IS OUT AT LAST, BOB!
BUT I HAVEN'T BEEN CAUGHT YET AND I DON'T INTEND TO BE!
I'M GLAD I KNOW YOU FOR WHAT YOU ARE—JUST A GANGSTER AND A CROOK!
I'M SORRY, FOLKS, BUT I WAS GOING TO ASK YOU TO HELP ME IN MY NEXT JOB, ANYWAY—
—BUT NOW THAT BILL KNOWS SO MUCH ABOUT ME, YOU'RE ALL GOING TO HAVE TO HELP ME—WHETHER YOU LIKE OR NOT!

MR. AND MRS. — The Final Triumph — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

WELL, WHERE ARE THE FISH?
DIDN'T CATCH ANY. NARY A ONE
WHAT A SHAME! DIDN'T ANYBODY CATCH ANY?
SURE. LOTS OF 'EM. ALL AROUND ME
YOU SEEM PRETTY CHEERFUL, CONSIDERING THAT OTHERS HAD ALL THE LUCK
YEAH. BUT THEIR LUCK'S OVER; MINE'S JUST BEGUN
SUCH AS WHAT?
I DON'T HAVE TO GO ROUND AMONG THE NEIGHBORS TRYING TO GET RID OF MY FISH. THEY DO

HM—PRETTY—LETS HAVE A BETTER LOOK—
I'VE USED DARK GLASSES
WHAT YOU WANT IS TO LOOK JUST THE OPPOSITE FROM THE WAY PEOPLE REMEMBER YOU—PLAIN—NO STYLE—
NOTHING DOING—DARK GLASSES LOOK LIKE A DISGUISE—YOU WANT SOME THICK LENSED GLASSES THAT HIDE YOUR EYES—BUT DON'T ATTRACT ATTENTION—
THEN THERE'S YOUR HAIR—YOUR CLOTHES—YES, YOU NEED SOME PLAIN CLOTHES—I CAN CHANGE HER FOR YOU, MR. FORTER

Listen! with Glynn

Probably about as widely-traveled a group of gentlemen as you can find gathered together in any one place outside of the Explorers' Club are the members of WJSV's engineering staff.

They're not exactly stay-at-homes now, by any means—what with trips with the President, with Mr. Willkie, with Messrs. McNary and Wallace, and with the various "remote" jobs from various parts of the country that the Washington staff of C. B. S. is called upon to perform—but up to the time they variously joined WJSV most of them had been in practically every known place on the globe.

The explanation is that they all were telegraphers with the American Merchant Marine and in their adventurous times have seen the world many times over.

Ed Laker, for instance, has had multitudinous visits to Europe for thorough-going inspection tours of Germany, France, England, and what have you.

Along with Harold Forry, the control room supervisor, and Frank Seville, he still holds a first class telegraph radio operator's license—a little feature which allows them to operate any ship radio station under U. S. license. The other members of the staff who retain their licenses are J. S. Whitman, Granville Clink, Linwood McDonald, William Kriz, Larry Holt and Andrew Massey.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES
Going Away Present
BY MILTON CANIFF
I CAN'T BELIEVE THIS IS TRUE!
WE'RE NOT OUT OF THE WOODS YET, HU SHEE! BIG STOOP OPENED THE PRISON DOORS TO CONFUSE THE GUARDS!
IT'S LIGHT ENOUGH FOR THE GUARDS TO SEE US.... WE'LL HAVE TO RUN FOR IT! STOOP WILL JOIN US AT THE PLANE!
FOOLS! DO NOT TRY TO FIRE AS YOU RUN! STOP, TAKE CAREFUL AIM... AND MAKE EACH SHOT COUNT!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY
By Dale Allen
AS JOHN STARTS TO SPEAK AT THE PURPLE SHIRTS' RALLY, FAKE PHOTOGRAPHERS BLOCK THE STAGE FROM VIEW WITH BLINDING FLASHLIGHT EXPLOSIONS!
UNDER COVER OF THE CONFUSION, A DOZEN BURLY TROOPERS BOX HIM IN AND SWIFTLY MARCH HIM OFF THE PLATFORM!
LET ME GO, YOU HOODLUMS! I'M GOING TO SPEAK TO THAT CROWD!
POOR FELLOW! HE'S SUFFERING FROM DELUSIONS!
TAKE HIM HOME, MEN... AND DON'T HURRY! IT MIGHT BE ANNOYING IF HE CAME BACK BEFORE OUR MEETING IS OVER!

DONALD DUCK
Walt Disney's "Donald Duck's Vacation" Now Showing at RKO-Keith's Theater
BY WALT DISNEY
POP!
BOY-OH-BOY, AM I TIRED! WHAT A DREAM!

DIXIE DUGAN
A Chance!
BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL
BUT THIS IS ELECTION DAY, UNCLE PHIL! YOU'VE GOT TO GET UP AND VOTE!
NO, MICHAEL! THAT FORTUNE TELLER TOLD ME LAST NIGHT WHAT WAS GOING TO HAPPEN! MUFF IS GONNA WIN AND I'LL BE THE LAUGH OF THE DISTRICT!
AND HE SAYS HE'S NEVER GOING OUT OF THE HOUSE AGAIN!
HE'S CRAZY, MICKEY! HE'S GOT A SWELL CHANCE OF WINNING! WE'VE BLOCKED EVERY TRICK THAT MUFF HAS TRIED TO PULL! LOOK HOW SORE HE IS!!
VOTE HERE
WHY ARE YOU CHALLENGING THIS MAN'S RIGHT TO VOTE?
BECAUSE HE'S NOT DAN WHITE, MR. MUFF! I'M THE UNDERTAKER WHO BURIED DAN WHITE SIX MONTHS AGO!
AND MR. CLANCY SAYS IT'S SO CLOSE THAT ONE VOTE MAY DECIDE THE ELECTION!
GIMME MY PANTS!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY
Wandering in the Hills
BY FRANK V. MARTINEK
HE JUST WALKED OVER THIS HILL A MOMENT AGO—WHERE'D HE GO TO?
I WONDER!—THERE'S NOTHING BUT MILES AND MILES OF HILLS AND VALLEYS—
LET'S GO TO THE BOTTOM OF THE HILL—MAYBE WE CAN FIND HIS FOOTPRINTS SOMEPLACE ON THAT DIRT ROAD
HELP!
BIG CHIEF WAHOO
Indictment
BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON
THE PLANE'S CONTROL STICK BROKE OFF BEFORE THE CRASH, LOOK HOW IT HAD BEEN SAWED ALMOST THROUGH!
IT HELD ALL RIGHT UNTIL THE PILOT JERKED IT UNDER THE TERRIFIC PRESSURE OF THE POWER DIVE. THEN IT LET GO!
SABOTAGE! COLD-BLOODED MURDER!
AND ONLY BY CHANCE WE FOUND IT OUT!
MISTER PERRY, THE GUILTY RAT WHO DID THAT JOB MUST BE RIGHT HERE IN YOUR PLANT!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED
WE'RE REALLY ON THE SPOT, WAHOO, NO JOB, NO DOUGH, AND 10,000 MILES FROM HOME!
LOOKS LIKE WE GONNA HAVE UM LONG SWIM STEVE!
BEFORE WE CAN EVEN START SWIMMING, WE'VE GOT TO HIKE TO THE COAST! LET'S CHECK THIS MAP FOR A SHORT CUT! HMM! WHAT'S THAT—A BLOT?
CHINA
INDIA
Bay of Bengal
A DANGEROUS LAND, BAKDORE! NO FOREIGNER EVER SETS FOOT IN IT, SAHIB!
WELL, WE'VE GOT TO CROSS IT TO REACH THE SEA—AND SMALL AS IT IS, WE CAN'T STEP OVER IT!
I'VE A SEPARATE SCORE TO SETTLE WITH THIS DOUBLE-CROSSER, BROWNING, BUT FOR MURDERIN' SAM, I'M GONNA GIVE YOU ALL TH' SAME DOSE!
BETTER STOP AND THINK, SHARK—YOU'RE DEALING WITH THE LAW!
OH, YEAH? I'LL SHOW YOU JUST HOW MUCH THAT RED COAT MEANS TO ME—
—'CAUSE YOU'RE YELLOW UNDERNEATH!
